May Extend Life of Labor Board

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—Labor Secretary Schwellenbach, beset by a growing soft coal strike, tonight turned to the task of establishing a post-war wage-price policy that would cut the number of strikes for higher pay.

The wage-price discussions were brought to a head at conferences of Schwellenbach, Chairman Taylor of the war labor board, and the new director of the office of economic stabilization, John C. Collet.

Schwellenbach had said that he intended to put thru the war labor board a test case that would provide a pattern for wage demands contingent upon price increases. The OES passes upon the price raises and the war labor board under war time procedure passed upon the wage requests.

WLB's Life May Be Extended

The secretary believes many strikes might be averted if unions and employers knew how far the government would go in approving wage and price increases in the reconversion period while limited controls still are on.

If the WLB were given such a test case, it would mean that, instead of liquidating itself by Dec. 15, as it had been aiming to do, it would have a major role in fixing post-war wage-price policy.

A strong move developed within Schwellenbach's own department late today, however, to by-pass the labor board altogether on the ground that the old procedure was too drawn out. Some advisers want to streamline the process, to speed a price decision by OES Director Collet. A new agency might have to be created within the labor department, OES, or the office of war mobilization and reconversion, to accomplish this.

Test Case Plea Delayed

Taylor said at a news conference requested by reporters that Schwellenbach had not yet asked the board to take the test case. He added that he had requested a conference to discuss the problem.

Taylor asserted there were two ways of approaching the situation: 1 By the test case method, and 2. By developing an over-all policy among the various agencies involved—the OPA, OES, OWMR, WLB, and the labor department.

Taylor has been arranging to quit on Oct. 15, and the board members had decided that henceforth they would handle only cases in which each side stipulated it would abide by the decisions. This would cut down the caseload.

As the coal strike grew, Schwellenbach, after a second day of meetings with bituminous operators and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, said:

"Enough progress was made to prompt both sides to join in asking that they meet here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock."

STRIKES IN MINES TIEUP MAKING OF STEEL FOR NEW CARS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP)—Tons of steel intended for such reconversion products as new automobiles and refrigerators were lost today as the spreading, 18 day old coal shutdown forced the closing of more steel mills.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, biggest steel making subsidiary of United States steel, said that the dearth of coking coal was causing it the loss of 60,000 tons of ingot steel this week. A company spokesman commented that 43,400 pounds are required to make an automobile and 200 pounds for a refrigerator.

Cutting its operations to 51 per cent of capacity, United States Steel announced that by the week-end a total of 18 of its blast furnaces and 58 open hearths would be closed in the Pittsburgh area.

The list of idle coal miners grew to 173,000.

Only Canada, Britain Share, Truman Says

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Tiptonville, Tenn., Oct. 8—The United States will not tell the secret of the atom bomb, President Truman tonight told a press conference.

The President explained that he was referring to the "know how" of building the bomb and not to its scientific principles, which the world knows, anyway. Emphasizing that the bomb secret will not be shared, he said he hoped it could be kept a secret for all time.

In answer to a question, President Truman said that Great Britain and Canada had not formally agreed to keep the secret also, but he was sure that they would. Even if he were to reveal the secret, the President believed that no country has the productive capacity or resources to produce atom bombs. This would apply to both Great Britain and Canada.

Believes Russia Lacks Ability

In response to another question, President Truman said he did not think that Russia would be able to turn out the bomb in the foreseeable future.

The President indicated that he would appoint State Secretary Byrnes to initiate discussions with Great Britain and Canada in view of international agreements which he seeks in his desire to outlaw the use of the atomic bomb.

He said he does not know how soon Russia would be able to use atomic energy, because he has not been over there. When reporters asked him if he planned to visit Russia, he replied that he would like to do so, but there isn't a chance in the world that he will.

The President vigorously denied retention of bomb secrets had caused any lack of ardor between Russia and the United States.

Denies Clash with Russia

President Truman added that there was no clash of American interests with Russia and Russia has been as badly misrepresented in this country as we have been in Russia. He believed that understanding some times was made more difficult because of differences of language and translations.

The President held his wholly unheralded press conference at Linda cottage, near Reelfoot lake, where he moved in for a two day rest. Reporters who assembled there expected to hear an "off the record" talk.

Mr. Truman said that none of our allies had asked for the secret of the bomb. He said that Great Britain spent 100 million dollars on the development of atomic energy before it turned its work over to the United States, which spent two billion dollars before the first bomb was unleashed on the Japs.

Asserts Conference No Failure

Then turning to the deadlocked London conference of foreign ministers, Mr. Truman said he did not believe the conference was a failure. Therefore, he announced, no meeting of leaders to the three nations, the United States, Russia, and Britain was contemplated now. If such a meeting becomes necessary, tho, the President assured reporters that there will be one. He then went on to say that the London conference is one step toward the goal.

The President said he was not alarmed about the wave of strikes in the United States. He explained that the labor stoppages wer the result of a letdown after the war. He said that we have always had such letdowns after every war.

The reason for the strikes, he said, is not the difference in the amount of take home pay, but a reaction to the war, which would have happened anyway.

Mr. Truman motored to Reelfoot lake from Caruthersville this morning. His host was W. A. McCutcheon of Tiptonville, counsel for Mrs. Linda Morris of Memphis, Tenn., owner of the lodge. On Wednesday the President will fly to Paducah, Ky., and from there motor to Gilbertsville, Ky., to dedicate a dam.

GAVE UP HOMES TO FLEE REDS, KARELIANS SAY

400,000 Begin Life Anew in Finland

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 8—A Karelian stood in the living room of a farm house a hundred miles north of Helsinki, Finland. He and 400,000 of his people had deserted their homeland and property to escape residence under soviet rule when their country was ceded by Finland to Russia. He and scores of other farmers were interviewed far from a Helsinki seething with communist and anti-communist propaganda.

The man stood with his black boots widespread. His dark green breeches bulged at his calves. Muscles curved under his ski jacket. His ruddy chin was square. His blue eyes were steady under a broad, low brow topped with yellow hair.

21 Families, All Refugees

Living with him in this one large building owned by a lumber company were 21 families of 151 persons. All were refugees from the Reds and all waiting for an opportunity to acquire new land and build new houses under the Finnish government's rehabilitation program approved in Moscow.

"Rather than lose your farm, equipment and home, why don't you go back to Karelia, say to hell with the Russians and live your own life?" the Karelian was asked.

"I am afraid of the Russians," replied this picture of physical courage. "I am too old to take chances." Tho only 38, he is a veteran of two Finnish wars against Russia.

"Why are you afraid?"

"The Karelians, living so close to Russia, know conditions there better than any one — labor conscription, property taken by the state, and constant spying and harassment by the OGPU. I worked hard for 20 years to establish a farm and home for my wife and five children. I would rather lose everything than personal freedom."

Elder Echoes Sentiment

I turned to an older man. He, too, was wearing the black boots characteristic of these people. His skinny, weathered neck extended from a gaping sweater. Go home?

"Never, under the Russians," he replied with a negative emphasis unmistakable without translation. "We lost our homesteads in the war, but we did not surrender our personal freedom." This from rustics who never heard of the "Four Freedoms."

The Karelians were paid for their property losses from a Finnish treasury strained by Russian reparations. Part of the payment was in bonds sapped of their value by inflation. For example, the legal exchange rate is 120 finmarks for a United States dollar, but on the popular bootleg money market 800 finmarks may be obtained for one dollar's worth of Swedish crowns.

Scorers Clear Greenberg of Crucial Error

BY EDWARD BURNS

Baseball's 1945 world series roars onto the seventh and deciding game in Wrigley field tomorrow—and really roars, tho today will be an off day. Yesterday the Cubs beat the Tigers, 8 to 7, with two out in the 12th inning, in a game that perhaps transcends all others in many of its unsual aspects.

Tragedy and farce. Bad plays and good ones. Thousands and thousands of dollars in the balance. And to cap off the wildness of baseball's wildest day, the three official scorers made the great Hank Greenberg the goat in their on-the-spot ruling, then, five hours later, reversed themselves, to remove the goat horns from the head that had worn laurel after Hank had knocked a score-tying homer with two out in the eighth inning.

If you are one of those isolated persons who doesn't know all about this ball game of ball games, we'd like to tell you what happened in this scoring reversal business, a reversal which is unprecedented in world series history.

How It All Happened

Let's take up the magnificent windup inning. The score, you know, had been 5 to 1 for the Cubs and 7 to 3 going into the eighth. Then the Tigers tied the score in a four run eighth inning riot which was polished off by Greenberg's homer which tied the score at 7 to 7.

If the Tigers had gone on to victory over the momentarily panicky Cubs, they would have been world champions right now, with the Tiger players possessed of $62,000 more than the Cubs. The Cubs hadn't won three games in a world series since they went on to be world champions in 1908.

After the handsome lead had disappeared in the eighth, the Cubs suddenly braced behind the wonderful pitching efforts of Hank Borowy, the Cubs' $100,000 July bargain from the Yankees.

Trout Radiates Confidence

So the game went into the home 12th, still 7 to 7, and Dizzy Trout, winner of the Tigers' Saturday victory radiating confidence.

Dewey Williams, first Cub to face Trout in the 12th grounded out to Eddie Mayo. Frank Secory, a great guy, but obscure this season except when he busted a 10th inning pinch double with the bases loaded to beat those Cardinals in a vital down the stretch game early last month, batted for Lennie Merullo who had just left the game, injured.

Secory startled Trout and thousands of others by lining a whistling single to left center. Billy Schuster, a fleet footed gent who has specialized this season in pinch running, went to first to run for Secory. Then Trout struck out Borowy.

Now for the Details

There were two out, remember and with Trout bearing down first base seemed like a long way from home, tho Hack, the next batsman, went to the plate with a record of three singles and two runs, the Cubs' first two, batted in.

Stan took a wide one, then two strikes. Then he rammed a hit to left. There never was any question about it being a hit. The caliber of the shot seemed up to Greenberg, the home run feller.

Hank charged the ball—and appeared to have a good chance to halt Schuster at second base, certainly at third. As Greenberg bent forward to seize the ball, it bounded over his shoulder and on toward the wall. Before he had a chance to recoup, Schuster had reached the plate with the winning run—the run that sent thousands of fans reaching for cash to join the scramble for tickets for tomorrow's game, which will be the world championship, whoever wins.

The three official scorers were sitting en banc, as they say in appelate courts, put their noggins together, as customary, as excitement raged.

The three scorers—H. G. Salsinger of Detroit, Martin J. Healey of St. Louis, and myself — were looking straight at the play. We decided unanimously that the ball had bounded high over Greenberg's shoulder, also that he had charged the ball unnecessarily. The three of ROME, Oct. 8—A copy of an order by Adolf Hitler dated October, 1942, that all allied Commandos and saboteurs, even if in proper uniform, falling into German hands were to be "exterminated without mercy" and without a hearing, was introduced today at the opening of the trial of Gen. Anton Dostler before an American military commission.

Dostler, who commanded the German 135th fortress brigade during the fighting in Italy, is the first enemy general to be tried by Americans as a war criminal and faces a firing squad if the commission convicts him and its finding is sustained.

Dostler is accused of having ordered the execution of two lieutenants and 13 enlisted men of the 5th army at Punta Bianca on the Italian coast southeast of La Spezia March 26, 1944. The Americans, members of the 2677th special reconnaissance battalion working under the office of strategic service [OSS], were caught while on a mission to demolish a railroad tunnel.

Overrule Defense Points

Col. Claudius Wolfe, San Antonio, Tex., the defense counsel, sought to delve into the general nature of OSS work, presumably seeking to prove that it fell outside the normal military duties of uniformed personnel, and might, therefore, have justified the German action.

But when Wolfe pressed a witness to characterize the OSS as engaged in "cloak and dagger" work the objection of Maj. Gen. Lawrence Jaynes, Alexandria, Va., chairman of the commission, was sustained. The effect was to rule out the possibility that the OSS rather than the German general would go on trial.

The defense then contended the Geneva convention specifies that war criminals be tried by courts martial, instead of commissions, and that the commission itself was unauthorized to preside, since it was appointed by military authorities instead of President Truman. Both contentions were overruled.

On Legitimate Mission.

It is the prosecution's contention that the 15 Americans did not fall under the classification in Hitler's decree, being in uniform and on a legitimate military operational errand, not espionage. The prosecution also makes much of the fact that the 15 were held for two days before being killed.

The Americans were landed in rubber boats from a naval PT craft 60 miles north of La Spezia the night of March 22, 1944.

They were armed and carried a total of 650 pounds of explosives to wreck the tunnel on an important German supply line which the air force couldn't knock out.

The Americans lost radio contact with the offshore party, were unable to accomplish the errand, went into hiding, and were captured by the Germans on March 24.

The next day, according to Maj. Frederick W. Roche, the prosecutor, Dostler in a signed telegram ordered the men shot. The Americans were questioned until 3 a. m. on the 26th and four hours later were taken out and shot in two groups and buried in a single grave. [Their bodies were exhumed last May.]

1ST U. S. MASS TRIAL

WIESBADEN, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP)—A gruesome tale of quick death to Russian and Polish workers when sickness ended their usefulness to Nazi warlords was unfolded today in the opening of a trial of seven persons charged with operating a murder factory at the Hadamar insane asylum.

New York, Oct. 8 [Special]—A tangled romance was studied tonight by police trying to pierce the mystery surrounding the death of Navy Lt. John Gerald Mooney, 37, of Washington, D. C., and the critical condition of a WAVE lieutenant with whom he was said to have been in love.

The couple, both physicians, were found early today in their room at the Hotel Governor Clinton. Lt. Mooney was dead from an overdose of sleeping tablets. Lying unconscious nearby was Lt. Pauline Elizabeth Rupp, 34, of San Francisco, Cal. Police said it appeared she also had taken an overdose of a sedative.

Several bottles of pills and an envelope containing 45 tablets were in the room. Both navy officers were lying on the floor fully clad. The door was locked when a physician from Bellevue hospital arrived there in response to a telephoned plea from Lt. Rupp, his friend.

Wife Had Forgiven Him

Mystery concerning their activities deepened when it was learned that Lt. Mooney's wife, Mildred, in Washington, had forgiven him for his romance with Dr. Rupp.

"I am positive it was not a case of a wife who was in the way," she explained, "for my husband had told me he was in love with Lt. Rupp and I had offered to give him a divorce. We were married 10 years ago and have no children.

"My husband and I had a friendly understanding. I knew he was seeing Lt. Rupp, but I didn't mind so much. I know they often took sleeping pills. Perhaps they took too many.

"His mother is 70 and lives only for her son. This news will kill her."

Mrs. Mooney said her husband had talked with her last week and told her Lt. Rupp was on her way east to be discharged from the navy. She said she didn't know her husband's plans, but was certain he had no thoughts of suicide.

In Critical Condition

Lt. Rupp is now at Bellevue hospital where she was reported in a critical condition suffering from a temporary psychosis.

She was a graduate of New York university medical school and had interned at Bellevue. She served on the medical staff of St. Alban's Naval hospital and met Lt. Mooney there while he was undergoing treatment for a stomach ailment after returning from Europe.

Lt. Mooney was in the process of being discharged from service and had been on leave from the Lido separation center, Nassau county, N. Y.

MARINE WHO RULED AS 'KING FAUSTIN' OVER ISLAND DIES

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Faustin E. Wirkus, 49, a marine warrant officer and former "king" of the Island of La Gonave—a dependency of Haiti—died today at Brooklyn naval hospital.

Faustin E. Wirkus

In 1925, while serving with the marines in Haiti, he was sent to La Gonave by the marine corps and given the title of "Sequestrator."

The natives liked him so well they made him King Faustin II. He ruled the island for three years—a job which he said meant being judge, tax collector, midwife, and teacher. "When I got there, they had $2,000 in the bank," Wirkus said, "and when I left, they had $50,000."

He later left the island and became an author and lecturer. He wrote a book about his experiences entitled "The White King of La Gonave." Wirkus went back on the marine corps active list during World War II, and helped train recruits.

War Objector to Get Honor Medal as Hero

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 [Special]—President Truman on Friday will bestow the congressional medal of honor on a man who refused to bear arms in defense of his country.

The chief executive will place the medal on Pfc. Desmond T. Doss of Richmond, Va., conscientious objector and valorous, twice-wounded medical aid man.

Doss, a native of Lynchburg, Va., went into battle on Guam, on Leyte, and Okinawa with nothing but lifegiving equipment. But among men of the 77th division his name became legendary due to many episodes which the war department related today. The 26 year old former ship joiner was described by Brig. Gen. Edwin H. Randle, as one whose devotion to duty and intrepidity under fire eased the pain and saved many lives of men. For this kind of service in the Leyte campaign he had received the bronze star.

Refused to Touch Weapon

"Private Doss was and still is a conscientious objector," Gen. Randle stated. "He refused to carry arms or even touch a weapon."

The formal war department citation says:

"Pvt. 1st Class Doss was with the 307th infantry medical detachment when it assaulted a jagged escarpment on Okinawa on April 29, 1945. Heavy artillery, mortar, and machine gun fire inflicted 75 casualties and drove the others back. Doss remained in the fire swept area with the many stricken, carrying them one by one to the edge of the escarpment and there lowering them on a rope-supported litter down the face of a cliff.

"On May 2 he exposed himself to heavy fire in rescuing a wounded man 200 yards forward of the lines.

Wounded Twice

"On May 5, he braved enemy shelling and small arms fire to assist an artillery officer. Later that day, when an American was severely wounded by fire from a cave, Pvt. Doss crawled to 25 feet from the enemy position, rendered aid and carried him 100 yards to safety.

"On May 21, in a night attack near Shuri he remained in exposed territory giving aid to the injured until he was himself seriously wounded by a grenade. Litter bearers carrying him back were caught in an enemy tank attack and Doss, seeing a more critically wounded man near-by, crawled off the litter and directed the bearers to give their first attention to the other man. Awaiting the litter bearers return, he was again struck."

Doss will be the first conscientious objector ever to receive the medal of honor.

REAR ADM. SAMPLE ON PLANE MISSING A WEEK NEAR JAPAN

Rear Adm. William D. Sample, 47, commander of fleet squadron 22 and former captain of the aircraft carrier Hornet, was on an airplane that has been missing since last Tuesday near Japan, his brother, Rolf, of 5231 Winthrop av., said yesterday.

Rolf Sample was notified of the missing plane by his father, Gen. William R. Sample [retired] of Atlanta, Ga., who said he was attempting to learn the type of plane and the nature of the mission which the admiral was on. The admiral's wife, Mary Lee, of San Francisco, Cal., was notified by the navy Sunday that he was missing.

Adm. Sample was wounded by Japanese shellfire in action with squadron 22, but recovered and refused to accept a home leave.

in the American occupation zone of Germany, an elderly nurse and a trim, young secretary testified that hundreds died of poisonous injections administered in the guise of medical treatment to ailing prisoners.

The trial got off to a stormy beginning, when defense counsel lost a move to introduce the issue of the responsibility of the defendants, all small-fry Nazis, in carrying out orders of Nazi higher-ups.

Rule Against Defense

After a heated debate, the six man American military tribunal ruled against defense efforts to bring up the issue in the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses. The court ruled, however, the same witnesses would be available for direct questioning by the defense later.

The Nazis are being defended by four German attorneys, and three Americans, including a Jewish officer, Capt. Nelson Wintman, of Chelsea, Mass.

Col. Leon Jaworski of Houston, Tex., the prosecutor, blocked questions on the German euthanasia laws relating to insane or feebleminded persons, with a declaration that "what the accused did to Germans is not involved here."

Argues for Jurisdiction

Earlier, the court upheld the right of the United States military government to try German civilians under international law for crimes against nationals of other allies, even before the occupation of Germany. The defense sought dismissal of the charges on the grounds that the United States had no authority.

Jaworski declared that international law was based on custom and usage among nations, as well as treaties and conventions and that "the jurisdiction of this court exists as much where nationals of our allies were victims as where our own nationals are victims."

Judith Thomas, neatly dressed former Hadamar secretary, testified that Russian and Polish workers began arriving at the camp in the summer of 1944, most of them suffering from respiratory diseases.

Within an hour or two after their arrival, she continued, patients were put to bed and given injections of morphine mixed with scopolamine, which they were told were inoculations against contagious diseases. They died quickly, and the bodies were carried to a cellar, where they were stacked like cordwood to await burial in communal graves, she testified.

KRAMER BLAMES CHIEFS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 8—Joseph Kramer's nazi superiors were to blame for the horror camps at Belsen and Oswiecim [Auschwitz], the British military court trying Kramer and 44 aides was told today by the defense counsel, Maj. Thomas C. Winwood. All actions of the defendants were based on orders from the top, he said, in extenuation of the atrocity charges. Kramer, Winwood stated, had pledged unwavering obedience unto death to Hitler and the Nazi party.

As to concentration camps, the British officer said: "Concentration camps do not have a German copyright." He cited those run by the British in the Boer war and now in Egypt to "segregate undesirable elements from Greece."

Assails the Victims

Winwood asserted, "The type of internees who comes to the camps was very low—they were composed of the dregs of the ghettos of Poland. They had very little idea of how to behave in ordinary life. How to treat them was a problem which Gestapo Chief Himmler solved by issuing definite instructions to the men running the camps under his own orders thru SS Gen. Pohl, inspector general for concentration camps."

The lawyer's claim, therefore, was that Kramer had to try to make the unruly elements live according to the orders of Himmler, under the most trying conditions and that, instead of being the "Beast of Belsen," he served as "the scapegoat of Belsen for that man Himmler, for the man Hitler and a scapegoat for the whole nazi system."

Kramer Takes Stand

Kramer then took the stand. He stood straight and quiet in front of the judges in military uniform and the judge advocate in wig and gown, held a Bible in his hand and took the oath as a witness.

At first his voice was thin and weak. It got stronger as he launched into his story of the difficulties which faced him at Oswiecim and Belsen.

Kramer told of his career from his joining the Nazi party Dec. 1, 1931, more than a year before Hitler became chancellor. He said he volunteered for the nazi elite guard the following year because he was out of work.

Kramer testified he was present at the selections of victims for gas chamber executions at Oswiecim, but denied that he had participated actively. He said that Commandant Hoess, head of the entire camp, told him that the gas chambers were outside his jurisdiction.

100 SAILORS HIRE PLANES TO GET HOME QUICKER

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 8 [Special]—More than 100 sailors on furlough have chartered five airplanes in a unique "share the ride" plan, it was learned today from the National Skyways air line.

Officials of the air line, which normally deals in cargo flights, said they were approached on the subject several days ago when the sailors, all from the U. S. S. Astoria, learned of the forthcoming furloughs. Their ship will be in port for a month, they said, and they want to spend as much time at home as possible.

The five air liners will leave some time tomorrow on the cross-country try jaunt which will terminate at New York City. Short stopovers will be made en route to drop men off near their homes.

Then on Nov. 2, the flight will take off from New York and will proceed westward, picking up the sailors who must return to their ship.

HESS ARRIVES FOR NUERNBERG TRIAL OF NAZIS

Hitler's Ex-Deputy Is Taken from Britain

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 8—Rudolf Hess, former deputy fuehrer of Germany who parachuted into Scotland on May 10, 1941, is in prison at Nuernberg, Germany, tonight. He left Britain in a royal air force plane earlier in the day to join other leading Nazis for trial as war criminals at Nuernberg. Black jowled and unshaven, he looked ill and much thinner than when he arrived here.

Rudolf Hess

He was smuggled from Maindiff Court hospital near Abergavenny, Monmouthshire, where he spent most of his captivity, in a closed car with drawn blinds which took him to Madeley air field about 10 miles away. There a Dominie transport plane was waiting to fly him to Germany.

Hess wore a gray civilian suit and a gray slouch hat. He was accompanied on the flight by an armed guard, a medical officer and attendant and a representative of the war crimes commission. The only others aboard the plane were the crew of three. A handful of curious outside the air field at 8:50 a. m. witnessed the departure.

Delay Faces Indictments

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—Uncertainty over the status of the French and Russian members of the four-power war crimes tribunal threatened delay today in the scheduled filing of indictments tomorrow against the 24 Nazi Nuernberg defendants.

Former Attorney General Francis Biddle, American judge for the international court, landed at Tempelhof airdrome. His arrival completed the American delegation.

The United States will have the leading role at the trial.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief American prosecutor, whose staff has developed a major part of the evidence, will prosecute a broad conspiracy charge constituting the first count against the defendants.

YAMASHITA WINS 2 JAP OFFICERS AS HIS COUNSEL

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 8—Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita this afternoon pleaded "not guilty" when arraigned before a United States military commission on war criminal charges based on atrocities committed by soldiers under his command.

Maj. Gen. R. B. Reynolds

The trial date was set for Oct. 29 by Maj. Gen. R. B. Reynolds, president of the trial commission.

Today's affair was the most popular event in Manila, with ice cream vendors and other small merchants selling wares on the street outside the high commissioner's dwelling as M. P.s searched civilians attending the trial at the gate, taking from them all pocket knives but finding no weapon more deadly.

Courtroom Jammed

The courtroom was jammed with military personnel, including both generals and GIs, and civilian spectators.

Of interest to Chicagoans was the fact Gen. Reynolds was formerly in charge of the 6th service command in Chicago.

Gen. Yamashita took a keen interest in the proceedings and made his own "not guilty" plea in a firm, strong voice.

The arraignment opened promptly at 2 p. m. when the military commission filed into the ballroom of the former residence of the Philippines high commissioner and took seats at a long bench directly in front of crossed American and Filipino flags as those in the courtroom stood at attention.

Wears All His Ribbons

The once dashing "Tiger of Malaya," now plump and potbellied, and tall for a Japanese, was wearing a grey-green uniform over a white shirt. He had four rows of ribbons on his left breast, twin lapel ornaments, each bearing three tiny stars, and below his right breast an oval medal with a star in the center signifying that he is of commander status.

Yamashita's hair was close cropped, and his face was sad but intelligent. His seat was within 15 feet of the front row of spectators, who included Donna Esperanza Limjap de Osmena, wife of the Philippines president, whose son, Emilio, was executed by the Japanese for his refusal to take a collaborationist role.

Has Own Interpreter

The preliminaries, such as stating the purpose of the trial, reading war criminal documents into the record, and other necessary formalities, were translated for Yamashita by Marine Corps Majors Harry D. Pratt, Los Angeles, Cal., and Eugene Boardman, Milwaukee, Wis., both of whom saw service on Guadalcanal.

Yamashita, however, who is slightly deaf, had some trouble understanding them, so their efforts were supplemented by Masakatsu Hamamoto, a graduate of Harvard university in 1927, a former civilian interpreter for Yamashita and one time private secretary to Premier Hideki Tojo.

Reads Rights of Accused

Next the defendant, his attorneys, and the prosecution rose and faced the bench while Reynolds read the "rights of the accused."

This brought a slight hitch, since one right was that Yamashita have in advance a copy of the charges and specifications, together with a translation of them. Yamashita said he had received the charges but had never seen a copy of the specifications.

Maj. Kerr, however, explained that the charges, as prepared, also included the specifications. The defense, headed by Col. Harry E. Clarke, Altoona, Pa., then said they were prepared to accept the fact that Yamashita had been given both charges and specifications.

The document accused Yamashita's men of crimes ranging from petty looting to wholesale slaughter and torture. It gave the names of American and Filipino soldiers who were tortured and mutilated by the "Tiger's" men; it gave the dates, exact locations of the crimes, and the names of the witnesses who escaped final execution.

Rape cases ran into thousands. Specific beatings were dispassionately noted. The burning, pillaging and looting of Manila were laid at the door of Yamashita's men.

This settled, Yamashita was asked whom he wished to have as counsel and replied, "I am happy to accept the choice of the commission as to my counsel. I am highly honored to have been given such distinguished persons to represent me.

Objects to Jap Counsel

"I have this additional request. I would like to have my chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Akira Muto, and my deputy chief of staff, Gen. Utsu Nomiya, present as additional counsel. There are a number of records and facts with which they alone are conversant, and I need their advice and assistance."

This brought a heated objection from Maj. Kerr, who demanded to know whether the defense also planned to call both men as defense witnesses, pointed out that they also were potential war criminals, and termed the whole suggestion "highly irregular."

Col. Clarke, however, said it was only fair that Yamashita have present men with such intimate knowledge of the case. Gen. Reynolds then allowed Yamashita's request because "the accused has asked for these men, says he needs them and it is the desire of this commission to conduct a fair trial."

Yamashita thanked the court.

U. S. FORCES NEW NAVY MINISTER IN JAP CABINET

Yonai Named Instead of Adm. Toyoda

TOKYO, Oct. 9 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Adm. Mitsumasa Yonai, once an opponent of "Pearl Harbor Premier" Hideki Tojo, today was chosen navy minister in Japan's new cabinet instead of Adm. Soyemu Toyoda.

The last minute appointment first was reported by Japanese newspaper men, then confirmed by government officials on the eve of the first meeting of Premier Kijuro Shidehara's cabinet.

Toyoda, who belatedly accepted the navy portfolio yesterday after considering the offer more than two days, was reported unacceptable to Gen. MacArthur, altho there was no comment at American headquarters.

However, Shidehara very carefully had selected his cabinet with an eye to MacArthur's wholehearted approval.

Will Take Office Today

Yonai was a member of the supreme war council, was navy minister five years ago and was deputy prime minister under Premier Koiso in 1944.

Investiture of the cabinet was scheduled for this morning before the imperial palace. Then the new government was scheduled to hold its first meeting at the premier's official residence, where Shidehara had agreed to meet the allied press.

Hardly had he named his colleagues, including the governor of the Bank of Japan as finance minister, than the press began to growl at his appointment of conservative old timers. The average age of the cabinet is 61.

"Should Never Go Back"

Shidehara took on his first big domestic task admitting to the press he was new at the business and would rely heavily on political advisers.

The anti-militarists got little comfort from his selections, which included five holdovers from the previous cabinet. The newspaper Asahi declared, "We should never go back 15 years. We need fresh political sense."

Lt. Gen. Sadashi Shimomura, holdover war minister from Higashikuni's cabinet, and Yonai are not expected to serve more than a week. They will complete the demobilization, after which their ministries probably will be abolished.

5,000 Police Resign

The new justice ministry followed up Shidehara's order Saturday abolishing the secret police by liquidating the "thought section" in its criminal bureau, Domei agency reported.

Domei estimated that 5,000 police officers were resigning as a result of Gen. MacArthur's orders that the government get rid of this oriental version of the Nazi Gestapo.

The Americans shifted war dictator Hideki Tojo, whose attempt at suicide failed, from an army hospital to Omori prison camp to await trial as a suspect war criminal.

With fuel of any kind already drastically short, 6,000 Koreans walked out of the coal mines near the city of Sapporo on the northernmost home island of Hokkaido. The strike was spreading to adjacent mines. The cause of the walkout was not learned, but it occurred in a region where food is particularly short and living conditions were reported deplorable.

Doctors 'Declare' Strike Against Argentine Regime

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 8 (AP)—The wave of unrest in Argentina against the military government threatened to spread to the medical profession tonight with members of the Argentine medical association announcing that a general strike "already had been declared in principle." The strike, association members said, "can be ordered at any moment." If the general strike is called, association members reported, doctors will refuse to diagnose, prescribe, or operate except when necessary to save a life.

LAVAL REMAINS IN DUNGEON AS TRIAL GOES ON

Won't Go Back to Be 'Shouted At'

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 8—The Laval treason trial today limped toward its conclusion without the presence of Pierre Laval, his lawyers or defense witnesses. The day's session was delayed an hour and a half in which Laval was given a chance to change his mind about appearing.

But Laval was content to maintain his position taken Saturday when he walked out of his own trial. In a dungeon cell, a court attendant once more served Laval a summons to appear.

Laval had been taken to the dungeon from the apartment he had occupied near the courtroom after he decided not to reappear in court. He refused to allow his barber to shave him. Asked by the court attendant if he would return to the trial, Laval remarked:

"What, go back there and be shouted at some more?"

Part of the hour and 33 minutes' delay was caused by the absence of one of the jurors, Jean Germinal. He was replaced by one of the two remaining substitute jurors.

At length the judge came into the courtroom. The prosecution called the only witnesses it could find—Gen. Andre Doyen, chief of the French armistice commission, and Pierre de la Pommeraye, aged secretary of the senate.

Doyen dwelt on Laval's alleged part in handing over the rich French Bor copper mines in Yugoslavia to the Germans, and his abortive attempt to arrange a spectacular meeting in Paris between Petain and Hitler, which ended with Petain arresting him Dec. 13, 1940.

Doyen expressed regret that Laval was absent "as I have very grave things to say against him."

Profitable to Germans

"One man in France was ready to apply an anti-British policy useful to Germany," Doyen said, "that man was Pierre Laval."

Doyen charged that Laval arranged the Montoire meeting of Hitler and Petain. He said that between September and December of 1940 Laval spent most of his time in Paris and his friendship for the Germans was "indecent and very profitable to the Germans."

La Pommeraye's contribution was the reiteration of a comment he said Laval made upon obtaining Petain's signature to constitutional acts, "That's how republics are overthrown."

Barring further surprises a verdict on Laval should be handed down Wednesday night.

U. S. SOLDIERS PLANT AMERICAN FLAG ON CREST OF FUJIYAMA

TOKYO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Old Glory flies today from Fujiyama—planted there Sept. 21 by a valiant band of 10 officers and enlisted men of the 27th Infantry division after a tortuous climb in snow, wind, hail, fog, and rain.

The rare atmosphere at the top of Japan's 12,365 foot sacred mountain played tricks on their vision, the climbers said. Stones and shoes appeared green-blue. Eyeballs burned. Heavy fog cut their vision to arm's length.

Fourteen set out to make the climb. Two aggravated old leg injuries and were forced to turn back. Two others turned back to help the injured down the mountainside. Among those to complete the trek were: Lt. Ralph E. Wright, Peoria, Ill.; Pfc. Richard Burwick, Lansing, Mich., and Sgt. Robert Mallicoat, Jacksonville, Ill.

CHICAGO DOCTOR TELLS OF LABORS AS JAP CAPTIVE

Lt. Ferdinand V. Berley, of 4153 Congress st., a navy doctor who was captured on Corregidor, told yesterday how he and other navy men were forced by their Japanese captors to perform manual labor. He has just returned home for a 90 day leave.

Lt. Berley said that he and other physicians worked on farms, and road construction. At times they were forced to do carpentry work, and once for two and one-half months Lt. Berley chopped wood. Food was insufficient, and only Red Cross supplies helped keep men alive, he added.

The lieutenant is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Berley who have another son, Lt. Alfred Burley, in the navy. He is a dental officer.

HIROHITO ADMITS HE KNEW U.S. WAS TO BE ATTACKED

'Good Christian'

TOKYO, Oct. 8 [Reuters]—Emperor Hirohito, "a good Christian," was not upset by the American announcement that the United States had decided to abolish Shintoism as the Japanese state religion, an imperial household spokesman said tonight. "He received the news calmly and with complete absence of surprise," he added. "He is, in fact, a good Christian and a confirmed abstainer. He is a good Christian in that he is a strong advocate of clean living and high morals, that he is an ardent reader of the bible."

TOKYO, Oct. 8 (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, using former Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni as his mouthpiece, admitted today that he knew in advance of the plan to attack Pearl Harbor, but contended he understood that a declaration of war was to be made beforehand.

The answer to questions from American correspondents grew from a news conference with Higashi-Kuni on Sept. 18. The prince at that time said he did not know the answer, but would try to find out. It was apparent that he got the information from his cousin, Hirohito.

Signed After Attack

"Altho his majesty had heard from the naval chief of staff the general outline of operations, he had not been informed of the details of their execution," Higashi-Kuni said today.

"Furthermore, it was his majesty's understanding that in executing operations the government of the United States would be duly notified prior to commencement of armed action."

He said the emperor affixed his signature to the rescript declaring war at 11:30 a. m. Dec. 8, 1941, Japanese time. This was 4 p. m., Dec. 7, at Pearl Harbor, more than eight hours after the sneak attack.

"Officers Committed"

Higashi-Kuni gave this reply to another pending question:

"With respect to outrages against native inhabitants of Japanese occupied areas most strict supervision was exercised for the enforcement of military discipline, but unfortunately considerable offenses were committed. Regarding our punishment of these offenders, investigation at present is under way."

Higashi-Kuni made his answers thru Gen. MacArthur's press office, expressing regrets that pressure of business prevented him from meeting correspondents again.

PALESTINE JEWS TO RESIST BAN ON IMMIGRATION

Resolve to Defend All the Refugees from Europe

JERUSALEM, Oct. 8 [Reuters]—Jewish mass meetings in Palestine today adopted resolutions stating they would defend incoming refugees from Europe "by all ways and means and would assist their incorporation in the Jewish community."

"The Jews of Palestine will strenuously oppose any infringement of the rights of jury in its homeland and will never submit to landing restrictions," the resolution—identical at all meetings—added.

A six hour general strike was held in protest against British immigration restrictions.

[The New York Times quoted Bernard Joseph, acting chairman of the political department of the Jewish agency, as saying that if violence were used in order to prevent Jewish immigration into Palestine, the Jewish forces, armed and well organized, would themselves resort to violence in retaliation. "Jews will continue to come into the country by all means and will be helped to do so by Jews all over the world," Joseph said.]

Zionists Back Move

Official Zionist support of unauthorized Jewish immigration into Palestine was given for the first time in a resolution adopted Sunday by the inner Zionist general council after a day-long meeting in Jerusalem.

The resolution said:

"The inner general council welcomes every effort to increase Jewish immigration despite the illegal, immoral limitations of the [British] white paper."

British armored cars and troops stood by as a precautionary measure and diverted traffic while 50,000 demonstrators at Tel Aviv marched without incident thru shuttered streets before keeping a two minute silence for the 6,000,000 Jewish war victims.

Incidents reported today included a suspected attempt to sabotage the Iraq gasoline pipe line near Beisan last evening, when five men, surprised while digging a hole near the pipe line relief station, drove off in an automobile.

Offers 7-Year Plan

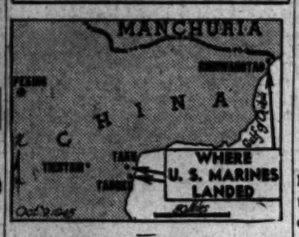
JERUSALEM, Oct. 8 (AP)—A nationwide program which would absorb 4,000,000 Jewish immigrants into Palestine without displacing Arabs from their land could be realized thru the inauguration of a seven-year development plan, Dr. Abraham Granovsky, newly elected chairman of the board of directors of the national Jewish fund, said today.

The Jewish spokesman said such a plan could be successfully carried out if Jews were allowed to buy an additional 2,000,000 acres, which would bring the total Jewish-owned land to approximately 34 per cent of the total Palestine area.

Jap Liner Hits Mine, Nearly 6,000 Missing

OSAKA, Japan, Oct. 9 [Tuesday] —(AP)—Domei said today that a Japanese passenger ship with 6,000 Japanese aboard struck a mine and sank off Kobe Sunday. Only 180 passengers had been picked up by yesterday, Domei added. All the remainder were feared missing and lost.

Marines in China



TIENTSIN, China, Oct. 8 (AP)—United States marines again have landed in north China to help Chiang Kai-shek and collect weapons to be surrendered by the Japanese.

The marines went ashore at three points Sunday with their own tanks and artillery, rocket detachments and a complete air wing. A small marine advance party has been here since Sept. 28, but Sunday's landings were in strength.

Veterans of the 1st marine division, which fought from Guadalcanal to Okinawa, took possession of Taku and near-by Tangku port facilities while a force of 200 United States transports and warships stood off the Taku river bar. Then the division moved inland toward Tientsin.

A smaller landing team from the 6th division went ashore at Chinwangtao, an all-weather port, and outlet for the Kailan coal mines on the Gulf of Chihli

FURLOUGH GIVEN DECORATED SON OF BELGIAN AID

Pvt. Jack de Vise

Pvt. Jack de Vise, 19, whose father, Victor, of 102 E. Chestnut st., is chancellor of the Belgian consulate in Chicago, returned home on furlough yesterday after fighting in France, Holland, and Germany with the brigade of Belgian volunteers which was trained in Canada after the surrender of Belgium.

A Belgian citizen, but a resident of Chicago since 1935, De Vise was graduated from the Lake View High school in 1943 and enlisted in the Belgian army in August the same year. He trained with a unit of 150 parachutists attached to the infantry brigade of 2,000 men from the United States and South America. A commando unit of 150 men also was attached to the unit.

The Belgians lost 400 men killed after entering action in the Normandy invasion. Most of the men were lost in Holland. De Vise, the only Chicagoan in the brigade, was wounded three times, in the legs, head, and shoulders. His decorations include the Order of Liberation of Belgium and the France-German star.

INTERNATIONALE SUNG AS WORLD UNIONS ADJOURN

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP)—The World Trade Union Federation closed its first congress today with the singing of the "Internationale" and left to its executive committee the job of carrying out demands for a voice in the peace councils.

Most of the all-CIO American delegation will leave at once for a 10 day visit to Russia as guests of the soviet union. Sidney Hillman, head of the American group, said he would return to the United States immediately. Neither he nor Vaselly Kuznetsov, head of the soviet delegation, joined in singing the "Internationale."

IKE MAY EASE ZONE MILITARY RULE BY NOV. 15

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said tonight that the denazification of the American occupation zone of Germany had progressed so far that military government detachments might be withdrawn by Nov. 15 from county and city subdivisions.

The announcement said provincial military detachments may be withdrawn by Dec. 15.

Functional control, as distinguished from policy control, then will pass into the hands of the normal German civil government channels in provinces, cities, and counties.

To Supervise Elections

Headquarters said the military government would maintain sufficient officer personnel, however, to supervise elections and pass upon candidates.

"Removal of Nazis and those associated with nazi ideology from the government has been accomplished to the extent that additional responsibilities may now be placed in the German administrative machinery," the announcement said.

All military government at county and city levels will be withdrawn 30 days after the completion of the last election within its area. In the case of the counties, the withdrawal date will be April 30, 1946, and for the cities, June 30, 1946.

For Liaison and Security

Military government liaison and security officers will be substituted for present controls. Their duties will be to keep contact between occupation troops and the civil governments and to call upon troops if necessary to quell disorders. The liaison personnel normally will consist of two officers plus necessary administrative personnel for each government unit.

"Insofar as the functions of the occupational troops are to maintain security and put down civil disorders, there will be no need for tactical units to assume any responsibility for German civil government," the announcement said.

He was home on leave after serving as a guard on merchant vessels.

U. S. JURIST NAMED EISENHOWER ADVISER ON JEWISH MATTERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—Appointment of Judge Simon H. Rifkind of the United States District court in New York to be adviser to Gen. Eisenhower or Jewish matters in the American zone of occupation was announced today by War Secretary Patterson.

Patterson said the appointment of an adviser was asked by Eisenhower on Aug. 10.

The secretary asked Rifkind to accept in a letter dated Oct. 4, which said the problems to be considered were those affecting food, fuel, housing, and morale in the camps; repatriation and settlement; the special situation of German Jews now living as part of the German community, and relations with UNRRA, intergovernmental committee on refugees, and the Jewish voluntary agencies authorized to act in Germany.

Rifkind is expected to leave within 10 days and be gone about three months.

Vatican Will Try Nazi Soon for Beating of 3

ROME, Oct. 8—Werner Pabst, 30, one of seven German soldiers who are interned in the Vatican, will be tried before a Vatican court on a charge of having beaten a pontifical gendarme, the latter's wife and a Vatican gardener. A fight occurred when the gendarme prevented Pabst from accompanying a visitor to the Vatican gate. Pabst escaped last spring from a prisoners' cage near Rome and found shelter in Vatican City.

● These days men will advise you—Go Straight with Old Poindexter—a Kentucky Straight Bourbon, a 40% small grain whisky. Drink for quality rather than quantity.

Consider their suggestion—fill a liqueur glass with Old Poindexter. Lift it to your nostrils and inhale, gently and slowly. Then touch the edge of the glass to your lips. Let a drop or two linger on your tongue—analyze this rainbow flavor, a riot of aromatics.

Continue this process in leisurely fashion—it's a post-graduate course in serenity and contentment.

Latin Americans Held in Germany Ask Help

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 8—Unable to get any aid from the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, 706 Latin Americans, mostly women and children, have appealed for help to get out of the Kevelaer displaced persons camp in Germany. Inadequately clothed, fed, and housed, they fear the severe German winter may take a heavy death toll among them unless something is done immediately.

Site of Camp

This group, from 16 Central and South American countries, wrote an appeal for assistance to Dr. Luis Vallarino of Panama City, a cancer specialist who resigned from UNRRA and is in London en route home. Vallarino told THE TRIBUNE today he quit when, after two months on the continent, it became apparent to him that the general inefficiency and incompetency of the UNRRA personnel made it impossible for him to be of any real help to the destitute in Europe. He is the son of Octavio Vallarino, minister of labor and public health in the republic of Panama.

16 Nationalities Listed

The plight of the 706 despairing Latin Americans was called to his attention by a friend, Armando Guevara, professor of physical culture at the University of Ecuador, Quito. Guevara went to Germany in 1939 to study physical culture, and when the war broke out he was not permitted to leave.

He and his fellow Latin Americans took to the highways to escape being run over by the allied armies advancing into Germany. They were rounded up and put into a camp at Hamburg, but a few weeks ago were moved to the Kevelaer camp, on the Dutch frontier.

When his compatriots were moved to the Kevelaer camp Guevara remained temporarily at Hamburg. He gave Vallarino a list of the nationalities of the distressed inmates of the camp. It follows:

Argentina, 100; Brazil, 340; Chile, 86; Mexico, 15; Venezuela, 20; Peru, 30; Honduras, 4; Paraguay, 4; Cuba, 5; Nicaragua, 6; El Salvador, 6; Ecuador, 10; Uruguay, 10; Colombia, 10; Bolivia, 20, and Guatemala, 40. In addition, Guevara said, 80 others from various South and Central American countries were en route to the camp.

UNRRA Inefficiency Told

Vallarino, who enrolled in UNRRA last June in Cuba, where he was with the Radium Institute of Havana, is flying home to Panama City to become head of the therapeutic department of the National Cancer Institute of Panama.

In Brussels, Belgium, on Aug. 2 he joined one of six flying squads, each equipped with six trucks. The squads planned to travel the highways to assist displaced persons.

"As we found out, however, there weren't any displaced persons on the road to help," Vallarino explained. "They'd all been put in camps. The officials in London who sent us apparently had no idea of the situation on the continent."

Vallarino later was sent as one of two medical officers on a displaced persons team to the Isle of Sylt, off Schleswig Holstein, where 3,000 Polish ex-prisoners of war were in three camps. This was in the British UNRRA zone.

"For six weeks, including three before I arrived, not an item of medical supplies was ever provided," Vallarino said. "Finally, in desperation, the team of seven men resigned. Four, however, returned to their jobs.

"You won't find many continentals who will quit, regardless of how bad conditions are. Most of them never before made so much money.

"If UNRRA is to survive, it is imperative that its whole key field personnel be cleaned out. There is no organization and no control of anything."

JAPS BUY 'YAMI' (BLACK MARKET) OR THEY STARVE

BY DONALD STARR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Oct. 8—Black market operations in Japan are widespread, with virtually everybody paying high illegal prices for food and clothing. It is impossible for people who depend on rice to obtain this staple without resorting to undercover practices.

Whereas black market operations in some other countries have utilized the customary channels of trade, shady dealers here have been unorganized, doing business at the peddler level. Prices range from 100 times the official quotation for rice to 350 times for sugar, which is now 90 yen a pound. [The yen was worth 23 cents American before the war. American soldiers are paid at the rate of 90 yen to the dollar.]

No Soap, No Shoes

Even the GIs are contributing to the black market thru the sale of cigarets at 20 yen per pack and buying kimonos at 1,000 yen, altho the pegged price is 150. The soldier peddlers, in the last few days, have disappeared from the streets on the heels of the army drive to halt the practice of selling cigarets, but now they are surreptitiously entering offices to make deals.

Everybody but the emperor buys on the black market—or starves. "Nobody can live unless he buys 'yami'," has become a common saying. Yami is the Japanese word for darkness.

Tho ration tickets have been issued, no soap, no shoes, clothing, or blankets have been available.

Plenty of Money

Prices have dropped somewhat since the war ended, but not noticeably. This is because the workers no longer draw exorbitant war wages, which ran as high as 900 yen per day, and altho millions are idle or face unemployment, there is still lots of money around. Most of the munitions companies paid dismissal allowances which ranged from 10 to 20 months in salaries to regular employes.

A cake of soap sells on the black market for 20 yen; a pair of shoes, 600; a box of matches, 10; a bottle of Japanese whisky, 450; a pound of butter, 65; an automobile, 100,000; a suit of woolen clothes, 1,500; a pound of meat, 200, and a first rate dinner, 500.

Black market restaurants operate exactly as the speakeasies did during the American prohibition era. Eggs and meat are to be had, but the patron must be known to the restaurateur. Some cafes have police protection but many resort to the simple expedient of moving from one location to another from time to time. When a black market dinner is contracted for a party, the restaurant hangs a "closed" sign on the door and serves nobody else that day.

Bombings Raise Prices

The biggest patrons of the black market have been laborers. They raised the prices of daily necessities sky high because money flowed easily into their pockets and they spent freely. Prices sky-rocketed after the B-29 bombings, which destroyed warehouses as well as supplies which the people had hidden in their homes. Laborers' wages have dropped abruptly and it is expected prices will follow.

During the first B-29 raids on Tokyo, a general's house was burned. In his warehouse were huge stores of black market goods, including textiles, sugar, and rice. Neighbors who went to his aid in fighting the fire let the supplies burn when they discovered his cache.

BRITISH EMPIRE PARLEY MAY BE HELD IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 8—On the heels of Canadian Prime Minister Mackenize King's arrival here yesterday diplomatic sources today reported an informal commonwealth conference may be held soon to discuss financial and economic questions. British relations with Russia, and the next move following the deadlock of the foreign minister conference, also are likely to come up for consideration.

Dr. Herbert Evatt, Australian minister of external affairs, is in London, where he has been keeping a close eye on the recent foreign ministers' talks. He is remaining temporarily as Australian high commissioner until a successor is appointed to S. M. Bruce.

Dr. J. H. Hofmeyr, deputy prime minister of South Africa, is expected here soon, and New Zealand's prime minister, Peter Fraser, also has been invited by Prime Minister Attlee. The latter's arrival would provide a quorum for a commonwealth conference, diplomatic observers pointed out.

SEEKS TO LINK FREE PRESS TO UNRRA FUNDS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—A world free press drive shaped up today around President Truman's request to congress for $550,000,000 for the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

It took the form of a proposed ban against use of UNRRA funds in foreign countries which do not accord free access to all news and do not permit freedom of the press as it is understood in the United States.

Spearheading the drive for the free press requirement is Rep. Brown [R., O.], a newspaper publisher. Brown told reporters he would offer an amendment to accomplish his objective when the legislation carrying the new funds reaches the house floor, probably in several weeks.

Chairman Cannon [D., Mo.] said the appropriations committee will begin hearings on the UNRRA bill within a few days.

3,400 Naples GIs Plead to Be Sent Home

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 8.— Rusty, shattered storm boats and landing craft still strew the Anzio and Salerno beachheads in memory of the bloody encounters during the Italian campaign. I flew over both areas today in a four and one-half hour flight from Paris in a plane jammed with GI's of Italian extraction en route to Rome and Naples to visit relatives.

Naples is jammed with disgruntled and homesick American soldiers roaring for repatriation and yesterday one outfit sent a round robin protest carrying 3,400 names, and costing more than $400 in assessments from the signers, demanding that the war department ship them back pronto.

The plane made Marseilles from Paris in just over two hours with a tail wind. We lunched in the brittle Mediterranean sunshine at the Marignane airport without entering the city.

Gets View of Colosseum

From Marseilles we flew over rugged Corsica, then the rocky islet of Elba, where Napoleon was exiled, to hit the Italian boot near Grosseto.

The pilot afforded us an excellent view of the Eternal City, circling low before settling down on the Rome airport. The Dome of St. Peter's glittered in the rays of the setting sun which lit up the ancient Colosseum where gladiators battled to the death 19 centuries ago.

Taking off at Rome we swooped low over murderous Anzio where the Yanks fought, ate, slept, and hospitalized their wounded under the direct fire of Nazi 88s and mortars. We swept over the Pontine marshes which Mussolini reclaimed into a vast farming area, then skirted along to loop over Salerno, the sand dunes of which mercifully muffled the terrific German shell fire during the fateful days of the assault. Then sat down at Naples' Campodichino airport in 35 minutes.

Few Scars Apparent

Teeming Naples bears few scars of conflict altho only the Hotel Terminus has been renovated for visitors.

Here, at the king's former palace, now army headquarters, I am getting clearance for Hungary and have been promised a place Tuesday in the diplomatic plane to Budapest.

The pilot, Maj. James Ready, 1414 College dr., Indianapolis, Ind., who flew us in, found an Italian girl he met two years ago when he was the first allied aviator to land on the Naples air field. They became engaged last night and will be married as soon as he gets the formalities cleared.

Scores Injured in Strike Brawl

[Acme Telephoto]

FILM PICKETS, POLICE BATTLE; 78 ARE INJURED

Fight with Bottles and Night Sticks

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 8 (AP)—Seventy-eight persons were injured today in a battle with bottles and night-sticks at the gates of Warner Brothers' studio.

Sixty-eight, one a man whose chest was crushed, were cared for in the studio infirmary and 10 were treated in Burbank Emergency hospital.

Sheriff's Inspector Jack Henry said seven strikers were arrested and that one, a woman picket, would be charged with carrying a blackjack.

Police Form Wedge

The studio obtained an injunction Saturday limiting the number of pickets at all gates to 18, but more than 200 were on hand today.

The union, the AFL Conference of Studio Unions, has an injunction against the studio, restraining Warners from using force in dispersing pickets, but 150 officers formed a wedge at the main gate this morning to admit 400 Warner employes.

One of the casualties was Leroy Prinz, a dance director, who was hit on the head by a bottle as he entered the studio. He later appeared on a set with his head bandaged. Herbert K. Sorrell, head of the Conference of Studio Unions, was struck above the eye during the clash, but remained on the scene.

Strikers Beat Painter

An unidentified painter, trying to slip out a side entrance, was seized and beaten by strikers.

Pickets fell back into groups and picketing was discontinued after the fight. Then a battle of loudspeakers began, with one inside the studio exhorting workers to report to their jobs and another outside, operated by the Conference of Studio Unions, urging them to stay outside.

Company officials announced that all nonstrikers inside the studio gates who did not wish to go home would be provided with meals and lodging tonight. Presumably workers who did not want to brave the possible gantlet of pickets would be bedded down on property department replicas of beds slept in by Washington, Queen Elizabeth, Disraeli, and other historical characters.

The walkout, involving between 3,000 and 7,000 persons, has been carried on since March 12. The dispute is between the Conference of Studio Unions and the AFL International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes regarding jurisdiction over 77 set decorators.

Charge Reds Behind Strike

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 8 [Special]—Asserting, after an investigation, that the Hollywood strike is communist inspired and controled, a subcommittee of the state committee on un-American activities today addressed a telegram to Gov. Warren asking him to make a personal inquiry into the strike as a preliminary to executive action. The telegram was signed by Sen. Jack B. Tenney, chairman; Sen. Hugh M. Burns, and Assemblyman Fred H. Kraft, and it was dispatched after Sen. Burns and R. E. Combs, chief investigator of the committee, had visited the Warner Brothers studio.

"The question we are concerned with is the communist inspiration and control," Sen. Burns said in a statement. "We found leaflets bearing the signature of the Hollywood Communist club, which urged strikers into forceful and revolutionary action. There were also leaflets from a number of communist front organizations.

"Telegrams from communist officials over the country were read over the loud speaker system. This is definitely an attempt by the Communists to control the motion picture industry."

RUSSIANS SEIZE FACTORY STRIP FROM THE POLES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, Oct. 8—The soviet army, over the week-end, started pulling out of the Stettin enclave, the small chunk of Baltic territory west of the Oder granted to Poland, but the Russians have arranged some substantial changes—supposedly temporary—in the Polish-Germany boundary arranged at Yalta and Potsdam.

The Russians are retaining occupation rights to a strip of land two miles wide and 12 miles long extending north of Stettin on the west bank of the Oder. This strip, including the townships of Politz, Jasenitz, and Wilhelmsdorf, contains some important electrical works and one of Poland's last remaining oil plants since the Russians' removal of the big oil plants at Auschwitz.

To Obtain Equipment

It is believed locally that the Russians' principal aim in retaining this strip is to obtain industrial equipment in their comprehensive reparations operations.

Rights to the strip for five months from Oct. 1 were obtained in a "lease" arranged last Friday. The lease is subject to renegotiation at its conclusion.

The Russians also, it was stated authoritatively, are now negotiating for a similar retention of Swinemunde, a city on the west side of the river mouth which was the site of one of the Germans' principal experimental stations in the development of the V-1 and V-2 flying bombs, and, also it is believed, in research on atomic bombs.

Cuts Off Peninsula

The Polish-German boundary, settled at Potsdam, runs north-south about 20 miles west of Stettin, which is on the estuary of the Oder 30 miles from the sea. This line cuts off the tip of the peninsula on which Swinemunde is situated, putting it east of the boundary in the territory granted to the Poles.

Retention of this city, which with the strip commands a shipping channel into Stettin, was, presumably, arranged likewise for a removal of equipment. No information was available on the progress of the negotiations about Swinemunde, but Polish observers were inclined to believe that the Russians would get it.

SOVIET REVIVAL OF CLASS WAR HINTED IN MOVE

Greek Reds Call for Return of Comintern

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8—Soviet revival of the comintern, which stood for solidification of the workers of the world under the communist red banner, was widely expected here on the heels of a plea of the Greek Communist party in Athens for the formation of a new communist international.

The call for a new world class war was sounded at the seventh congress of the Communist party of Greece. The Daily Worker, official organ of communism in America, reported that the Greek Communists unanimously adopted a resolution calling for an international organization to further the proletarian revolution.

The long arm of Josef Stalin, soviet dictator, was seen in the resolution, because such a resolution would not have been introduced and passed unanimously if the party congress had not been instructed to do so by the Kremlin.

Browder Case Recalled

It was recalled that the deposition of Earl Browder as boss of the American Communists and the re-creation of the American Communist party was heralded by an attack on Browder by Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist party, in an official French communist organ.

Following the French attack, which was attributed to the dictation of Moscow, American Communists reprimanded Browder for leading American Communists into an unholy alliance by straying from the teachings of Karl Marx, apostle of the proletarian revolution. He was also hit for dissolving the Communist party into the Communist Political association.

The American Communists, in replacing Browder with William Z. Foster, were seen as signaling the return of American Communists to the old political line with its revolutionary and subversive policies. The expected revival of the comintern is regarded as signaling world wide return of Communists to the old party line.

Conservative Voices Unheeded

In May, 1943, when the communist international recommended dissolution of the comintern, the action was widely hailed as a major step in allied unity in that Moscow was in effect serving notice it was resigning from the job of running the Communist party all over the world.

The resolution, adopted by the executive committee of the communist international, said that the forms, methods, and regulations of the comintern had become obsolete and in some cases actually hindered workers in their battle against Germany and her satellites. The resolution was regarded as calling on all Communists to get down to the job of beating Hitler.

Warnings in conservative quarters that the soviets were merely shelving the comintern for the duration of the war went unheeded in the wide acclaim for the soviets.

Greeks' Resolution

The resolution of the Greek Communists, which is regarded as heralding the revival of the comintern, said:

"Now when the peoples strive to redeem the blood they shed thru assuring that fascist forces and reactionary regimes will not revive, a world union of workers as the vanguard of social progress is indispensable.

"Therefore, the seventh congress of the Communist party of Greece, faithful to democracy and socialism, expresses the wish that all labor parties of the world believing in socialism, irrespective of shade, integrate into a new joint international political organization of the working class."

BEVIN TO PUT RUSSIAN ISSUE UP TO COMMONS

Other Problems, Too, May Test Labor

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Britain's new Labor parliament will meet tomorrow to tackle three challenging problems—the pursuit of a vast reconstruction program at home, the welding of a stable peace abroad, and the tightening of the empire's bonds.

Any of these problems is so complicated and full of pitfalls that it might offer a supreme test to the untried Labor government.

Temporarily, at least, the issues of foreign policy overshadow those of domestic rehabilitation. The new parliament will get its initiation in foreign affairs probably tomorrow or Wednesday, when Ernest Bevin, foreign secretary, will outline the reasons behind the breakdown of the recent five power foreign ministers' conference.

Also pressing for consideration are the domestic questions of providing homes for 4,000,000 bombed out persons, demobilization and reconversion, rationing, and the rebuilding of Britain's export trade, problems that will determine how the British must live in the next few years.

Clement R. Attlee, prime minister, called in his cabinet today to establish a priority list for legislative action, one in which the Labor party's program of nationalizing the country's major industries appeared sure of winning a high place.

Cabinet Shapes Program

Now that parliament is ready to get down to business, here are the problems, not necessarily in the order they will be considered, it will face:

The determination of Bevin to string along with the United States in standing pat against Russia's demand to limit peace treaty discussions to countries that were participants in armistice negotiations.

Consideration of President Truman's request for admission of 100,000 more Jews to Palestine, in the light of a possibility that such a step might produce a violent reaction from the Arabs.

India Problem Also Up

Methods of settling the Indian problem.

Continuance of war time controls over man power and materials, in the face of Conservative party demands for their removal.

The Labor party's program for nationalization of the Bank of England, coal mines, public utilities.

A decision on whether Britain should sacrifice empire trade preference and agree to break down the sterling bloc area in return for financial aid from the United States in the reconversion period.

HOOVER CALLS U. S. MEDDLING BAR TO PROGRESS

Potsdam, N. Y., Oct. 8 [Special]—Burocracy's stupid meddling and union labor's work stoppages could cripple the scientific expansion that offers this country recuperation from the war, former President Herbert Hoover warned today.

In an address delivered at the 50th anniversary convocation of Clarkson college of technology, Hoover recalled that some stimulant had increased productivity after each war.

The Napoleonic wars were followed by the application of the steam engine. After our Civil War expansion of railway transportation opened up the west. World War I was followed by a great advance in scientific knowledge and technical skills. The war just ended will likely be followed, he said, by a host of new expansions, of which the development of atomic power is only one of many potentials that has opened a new frontier of American life.

But whether we realize the great possibilities and all their train of social good depends upon the moral, social, and political climate with which these beneficent forces are surrounded, Hoover said. They can be crippled, he declared, by a host of destructive actions.

REDS UNVEIL 2 SEAT, 2 ROTOR HELICOPTER

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 [Reuters]—Details of a new Russian two seat, twin engined, twin rotor helicopter, the Omega, were published here today.

The machine will deliver passengers, mail and frate in areas such as the forests of northern Russia and Siberia where there are no airdromes. Passengers alight by climbing down a rope ladder while the machine hovers above.

'SCIENCE' MIGHT WIPE OUT U. S., SENATORS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—Senators were told today by a scientist that by 1965 or 1975 a man might press a button in Russia and kill everybody in the United States.

The testimony came from Dr. Irving Langmuir of the General Electric research laboratories, who appeared before a joint hearing of senate military and commerce subcommittees which are considering a program of federal aid for scientific advancement.

Dr. Langmuir was not trying to stir up fear of Russia. He merely was citing what he said could happen in the atomic era.

Man "Getting Too Smart"

In effect, he said that man is getting too smart — that he will have to control his machines of destruction in coöperation with his neighbors.

Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.] suggested, and Dr. Langmuir agreed, that the answer is to have international agreements for mutual inspection to prove that atomic bombs and their offspring are not being produced.

Langmuir said there is no defense against the atomic bomb—"once it is dropped the only defense is not to be in that place"—and that its secret cannot be held long. He said England, then Russia, could be producing it soon.

The scientist said there is "a rapidly ascending curve" of scientific activity in Russia.

Russia is taking over "the best features of our capitalist system while we are tending to put into our democracy some of the worst features of communism which are now discarded in Russia," he said.

Russian Strides Predicted

He mentioned "the 30 hour week" as one of the tendencies threatening to hold back scientific progress.

Noting that there are no strikes or unemployment in Russia, he said also, "I believe Russia is planning to embark on a program of scientific research and development greater than that contemplated by any other nation."

Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., urged that the proposed national research foundation be nonpolitical. He testified also that "the war is not over, only the military phase of it."

"The dream before us is that we shall have one world," Dr. Bowman said. "It is not one world yet. Thus two broad objects must go hand in hand — national preparedness and strength on the one hand and the coöperative spirit on the other."

Bomb Repair Workers in London Go on a Strike

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Thousands of building trade union laborers who were doing bomb repair work in London struck at noon today demanding higher wages. They started a protest march thru the West End. Union leaders said 60,000 participated in the parade.

Allied Council Approves Labor Code for Austria

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 8. [Reuters]—A labor code for the whole of Austria was agreed upon by today's meeting in Vienna of the four power allied council now administering the country. The meeting reached a five point decision permitting collective bargaining and organization of trade unions, recognition of Austrian labor offices as the source of labor for all military and civil employment, laying down of employment conditions for civilians employed by the military, and a basic policy in all labor matters to be uniformly applied thruout Austria.

SENATORS HEAR BYRNES EXPLAIN FOREIGN POLICY

Listen Almost 3 Hours to Defense of Conduct

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8—For 2 hours and 45 minutes today State Secretary Byrnes sat in a meeting of the senate foreign relations committee explaining and defending his conduct of the nation's foreign affairs in the last month.

He gave the committee the inside story of the fiasco of the attempt of the allied foreign ministers in their recent London meeting to frame peace treaties with Italy and the Balkan countries. He defended the concession he made to Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov's demand that the United States yield domination of the occupation and government of Japan to a four power control council, Byrnes agreeing to the creation of a commission that would decide the question.

Byrnes also defended the action of the United States in calling off the scheduled inter-American conference at Rio de Janeiro because of unwillingness to have any dealings with the tyrannical dictatorship in Argentina.

Meeting Is Secret

The members of the committee filed out after the session sworn to secrecy concerning the deliberations.

"There is nothing to report," said Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], "except that Mr. Byrnes discussed all aspects of the present foreign situation. That includes Europe, Japan, and Central and South America. He was frank and intimate in his discussion and the committee is under obligation to him for a full and complete report."

The explanation Byrnes gave the committee was an amplification in great detail of his radio report to the nation last Friday in which he blamed the Russian government for the stalemate. According to his account, the deadlock resulted from differences between Moscow and the western powers over the Balkan settlements, particularly those relating to Romania and Bulgaria.

Angled for Balkans

Molotov's maneuvers were directed to getting Anglo-American approval of a free Russian hand in the Balkans. Molotov wanted American and British recognition of the soviet dominated Romanian and Bulgarian governments. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Bevin refused such recognition until governments should be set up that are based on free elections in accord with the agreements at Yalta and Potsdam.

Molotov had consented on Sept. 11 to the participation of France and China in the discussions. On Sept. 21 the differences over Romania and Bulgaria came to a head in a day of heated, at times angry, argument. Molotov accused Britain and America of enmity to Russia. Brynes and Bevin denied the charge but did not conceal their feeling that Russia is intent upon staking out a soviet sphere of influence in eastern Europe that would tend to divide the world into rival blocs.

The next day Molotov took a sudden new tack. He said he had made a mistake in consenting on Sept. 11 to the participation of France and China in the treaty framing. He demanded their exclusion from the deliberations of the Big Three. Brynes and Bevin viewed this as a tactical move to test the strength of their determination to frame no treaties departing from the principles accepted at Yalta and Potsdam. They stood pat for their principles and the conference ended in deadlock.

Await Story on Japan

There is reason to believe that the senators found Brynes' story convincing so far as it related to Europe but as much cannot be said of his explanation regarding Japan. In his broadcast Brynes talked about everything except the commitment he made in response to Molotov's demand for the removal of Gen. MacArthur and the substitution of a four power control commission to rule Japan. On this he was absolutely silent and the inside story of this incident remains to be told.

Before Byrnes went to London, President Truman declared himself agreeable to the creation of an allied policy council for Japan of a purely advisory capacity. In case of disagreement on policies the United States policy would prevail. When Molotov made a vicious attack on MacArthur and demanded a control council, Mr. Truman said there was no need for one. Then the British and the British dominions swung to support of the Molotov demand and a few days later Byrnes agreed to the creation of an allied policy commission without stipulating a purely advisory character and agreed that this commission would decide the question of setting up a control commission from which MacArthur would take orders and by which he would be removable.

DAY by DAY on the FARM
by BEN MARKLAND

October 8, 1945

THE old adage that reads, "The frost is on the punkin'" should be amended to read that the frost, the groundhogs, and the squirrels are on the pumpkins, judging by current evidence in the Wheaton farm gardens.

A light frost covered the pumpkins, squash, and all other vegetation in the garden one morning last week, but this white coating was preceded by attacks by troublesome furbearers. Groundhogs were the first offenders, coming in from nearby woodlots to gnaw into the pumpkin shells. Gray squirrels and fox squirrels followed the example set by the groundhogs by eating the tender pulp from the inside of the pumpkins.

Squirrels Minor Culprits

The farm gardener doesn't have a very charitable attitude toward squirrels because of their forays against the sweet corn, but he doesn't believe they were major culprits in the melon patch. He thinks the squirrels might have overlooked the pumpkin desserts if the groundhogs had not first broken the shells.

The first flock of wild geese over the Wheaton farm this fall was noticed Oct. 4. There were 11 honkers in the V-formation used by Canada geese on their migration flights. The birds were going southwest, probably headed for the Horseshoe lake preserve near Cairo, Ill., by way of the Illinois river.

None of the geese in this migration showed any intention of stopping on the farm ponds, altho the story might have been different if the flight had been a few days earlier.

One Goose Pays Visit

A solitary Canada goose dropped down on the Half Moon pond early last week and stayed at least two days. The farm workers believe this single bird was a renegade stray, a deserter from the domestic flock of some near-by farm or estate.

If this single bird had been on the pond when the 11 migrants flew overhead, it might have served as a decoy to interest the flight leader in stopping for a few days.

The farm workers were excited about the flight of geese, but their enthusiasm didn't match that of the mallard ducks in the barnyard. These waddling barnyard birds were the first to hear the distant honking of the geese and they immediately started a quacking chorus of welcome.

From now on the farm workers will look skyward when the mallards start quacking, because it is evident their hearing apparatus is attuned to the honks and calls of migrant ducks and geese.

★ The GARDEN ★

GREAT LAKES variety of head lettuce was the outstanding type grown in the farm gardens this season. Seed planted in early April produced heads of good size and flavor in late June and July. The farm gardener recommends this variety as being almost "foolproof" even for novice gardeners. Best results were obtained from early spring plantings, even tho Great Lakes survives summer heat better than most varieties.

Bibb head lettuce, also planted in early April, provided smaller heads of outstanding flavor and deep green color. The farm residents like the flavor of this variety so well that one row will be grown each year for use as a spinach substitute. For this purpose, the seedlings are crowded in the row and not thinned. The leaves and semi-heads then are harvested and cooked as wilted lettuce.

Black Seeded Simpson and Grand Rapids varieties of leaf lettuce, planted in April and August, were acceptable in flavor and yield.

Wild West Plot of Nazis Upsets U. S. Officialdom

Tomah, Wis., Oct. 8 [Special]—The exposure of a fantastic plot to stir up an old time "wild west" Indian uprising in Wisconsin to free German prisoners at nearby Camp McCoy provides an amusing chapter of the war only now being revealed.

Equally gullible in the apparent hoax were nazi agents who supplied funds to finance the intended "massacre" and government authorities in Washington who prepared a voluminous report of the affair and sped an agent here to try to prevent the redmen from turning against their "great white father."

Unbeknown to army officers at McCoy, agents in Washington had assembled considerable data about the reported plot under way here a couple of years ago.

Special Agent Arrives

The first inkling the garrison had of how close they came to being scalped was when a special agent arrived from the capital, reportedly from the office of strategic services.

The agent carried a lengthy typewritten report outlining the anticipated bloodshed. It fearfully recounted that Tomah Indians could "muster a fighting strength of 1,200 men," called them "braves," and warned against the wily chieftain.

Eager to halt the outbreak before it got started, the federal agent asked army provost officers for help in uncovering the Indian members of the garrison reported to have been bought with Nazi funds.

Camp records showed only one Indian in the force, a private on guard duty. He was summoned and questioned at length. But all he could tell the Indian fighter from Washington was: "Ugh! Stand all day. Feet hurt plenty!"

Undaunted, the agent set out with an army captain in a command car searching the neighborhood for the Indian band of 1,200 and particularly the dangerous chief.

Chief Rests on Curbing

"It might be that somebody has sold us something," the agent admitted. He left soon afterward and no further word of "uprising" was heard at the camp.

A possible explanation for the genesis of the plot was that Nazi agents had been taken in by the mental aberrations of an elderly prisoner. An old man of German descent, brought to the camp from Chicago but later returned home when it was found he was not dangerous, was believed to have been "wool gathering" about a fanciful rescue by Indians.

Someone who heard his naive scheming was believed to have contrived to sell the idea to the Nazi with no expectation that federal agents would also be stampeded by the story.

Two Croatian Ministers Resign from Tito Cabinet

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Oct. 8 (AP)—A reliable source said tonight that Dr. Ivan Subasic, foreign minister, and Dr. Juraj Shutej, minister without portfolio, had resigned from the cabinet of Marshal Tito. Both were Croatian representatives.

GAVE UP HOMES TO FLEE REDS, KARELIANS SAY

to farm and forest lands, some of it national property, but most of it obtained by forcing Finn owners of large holdings to sell part of their land. We saw new, unpainted frame houses in a 250 mile drive over winding gravel roads, thru forests of pine, spruce, and birch, around lakes, over hills with granite boulders garmented with lichen and moss and across the flat meadows of former lake bottoms.

Land 66 Per Cent Forest

Attempting to absorb an additional 400,000 population is a country of 150,000 square miles, 66 per cent in forest, 9 per cent in fields and meadows, 9 per cent in lakes, and 16 per cent in wasteland, and with a normal population of 3½ millions. More than three-fourths of the farms are of less than 25 acres, and less than one third of one per cent are of more than 250 acres.

At Lahti, in a township expanded to a population of 40,000 by the addition of 10,000 Karelians, a local newspaper editor was asked how the newcomers could survive on their small plots of rocky hillsides and recently cleared stump lands. He said that they would be able to harvest a potato crop this year and added, "If the Finns eat this winter the Karelians will eat."

In plowed potato rows near the roadside were seen women and children, backs bent to a windy drizzle with traces of snow, fingering the soil for nubbins the size of marbles.

Invited to Steam Bath

At a low, spreading farmhouse with window boxes of flowers lending the only color to the walls and the shingle roof mellowed by time to blend with the landscape, we stopped for dinner. It was Saturday afternoon, so we were invited by the master of the house to a steam bath, the acme of Finnish hospitality.

In an outhouse designed for this purpose the old farmer and I got to know each other pretty well altho we could not speak five words of each other's language. There is something intimate and friendly about sharing an hour of suffocation in hot steam on a plank bench near the ceiling, beating and rubbing yourself with birch branches and then massaging one another's backs.

Later, back in his living room, sipping the red, unfermented juice of lingenberries, he unburdened himself with the problems of Finnish land owners.

"If the Russians do not ruin us the Karelians will," he commented with the grim humor that is a national characteristic. "The Karelians abandoned their homesteads to escape communism. Now they've got communism here. We've got communism plus Karelians."

This was a large estate, 87 arable acres and 250 acres in forest. It had taken in three Karelian families of 12 persons and another was to be placed on the farm. It also housed two women university students under the Finnish system of requiring a year and a half of classwork then a year of farm labor and then three years of classwork for an agricultural diploma.

"This is typical," said the land owner. "I was required to rent 7½ acres of a Karelian for 3,600 marks a year. In growing wheat on that same land, and selling it on the legal market for 10 marks a kilo [2 pounds] I could get 45,000 marks from the land each season. He is not happy and neither am I, but losing a war is not supposed to make people happy."

Continuing the drive thru scenery remindful of upper Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota after frost has colored the leaves, we stopped to talk with others working in the fields or felling trees.

While we enjoyed the fresh air, an escape from the fumes of a sedan equipped with a coal furnace and plumbing to feed the gas to the engine, Finns and Karelians alike said that the road ahead seems rough. But they did not cry or whimper or whine, like some the Europeans we have interviewed since V-E day.

"Destination Beyond Victory"

Hearts sang

. . . sang in the foxholes, the cockpits, the gun turrets, the torpedo rooms, the far-off prison camps

. . . sang in the factories, stores, offices; in the mines and shipyards and roundhouses

. . . sang on the farms, in the villages and cities, in the homes of all the land.

That was Victory.

In these weeks that have followed, the shift from war to peace is on, full swing.

Hands that made and used the tools of war reach now for the tools of peace. Jobs, not Japs, are the nation's No. 1 concern.

Hearts must keep on singing

. . . singing at productive jobs for real wages, turning out the things a goods-hungry people want. Thereby we will attain the goal that was set before us, shortly before the war's end, by the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion:

"We must look ahead to a destination beyond victory, to the kind of America in which the victorious members of the armed forces, together with all citizens, may enjoy the fruits of their bitterly-fought, hard-won victory."

As we drive ahead toward this destination beyond victory, what better time than now for a straight look at what makes jobs?

Jobs don't "just happen." Today, as always, they have to be planned for, tooled-up for . . . paid for . . . before they can be worked at.

For every existing job in major industry, there first had to be an investment of thousands of dollars in plant, equipment, raw materials. All the millionaires in America could not pay for more than a tiny fraction of this mighty total.

There is only one way, under freedom, by which the billions of dollars can be provided to make the millions of jobs. And that is through investment by the great mass of the people. America's miracle of mass production could never have been, without this twin miracle of mass investment.

In this vast machinery for mass investment, the New York Stock Exchange performs an essential function. It maintains, sound and efficient, an ever-present market at openly disclosed prices for the securities of American industry.

Without this Exchange, and the other organized financial markets of our country, millions would not have dared become security owners. For, added to the normal risk of loss that is ever present in any form of ownership for profit, there would then have been a prohibitive new risk—lack of a ready market. No one would buy what he could not be sure of selling.

This Exchange, the companies whose securities are listed on it, the investors who use its facilities—all share a high duty in this vital hour of our national life. That duty is to perform responsibly, so that mass investment may yield its utmost benefits in the mass production of goods, of jobs. Thus will we achieve our destination beyond victory.

Ask for information about securities. The facts can be found where you see this sign, "Member, New York Stock Exchange." Be informed . . . rely on facts, not hearsay . . . responsible ownership will make a vital contribution to America's progress.

SUPREME COURT DENIES REVIEW OF AP DECISION

Ruling Requires Revision of Agency By-Laws

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8—The Supreme court today refused to grant a rehearing on its decision that the Associated Press is violating federal anti-trust laws thru operation of its by-laws covering the admission of new members.

The court gave no reasons for rejecting the rehearing petitions of the Associated Press and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Altho the 1,200 newspaper members of the Associated Press were parties to the suit; THE TRIBUNE and its editor and publisher, Col. Robert R. McCormick, joined in the case in a separate action.

The rehearing was denied along with several others in a list of court orders. The only statement made by the court was: "The petitions for rehearing in these cases are denied."

Court to Transmit Order

The denial of the rehearing petitions means that the Associated Press must revise its by-laws under a lower court order, approved June 18 by the high court, unless some new legal move is taken.

The court's order will be transmitted within 20 days to the District court of the United States for the southern district of New York, where the case originated. Under the original decree the Associated Press will have 120 days to change its by-laws to prevent a morning or afternoon newspaper from presenting any bar to the election of a competitor in the same field.

No abridgment of the right of the greatest newsgathering and distributing agency in the world to pass upon the admission of applicants to membership was ordered by either the District court or the Supreme court. Both courts upheld this right of the Associated Press.

Held Restraint of Trade

The court held the by-laws are in restraint of trade under the Sherman act by a 5 to 3 decision upholding a special three judge federal District court decision of Oct. 6, 1943.

The Associated Press based its plea for a rehearing on the ground that provisions of the final judgment which ban considerations of competition from the minds of members "are unnecessary and inappropriate means to the end that the AP shall conform to the Sherman act."

The Tribune petition for a rehearing challenged the court decision as being in violation of basic constitutional rights of freedom of speech, of the press and of religion.

The Associated Press was not regarded as a lawbreaker until Marshall Field of New York and London sought unsuccessfully to get an AP franchise. The late President Roosevelt ordered the case instituted to aid in Field's quest. The AP refused to bow to intimidation and the case was brought into court.

AP to Comply, Says Head

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Robert McLean, president of the Associated Press, today issued the following statement:

"The Associated Press has been advised by counsel that, with the denial of the petition for rehearing, all efforts in the courts in the government's anti-trust action have been exhausted.

"Prompt action will be taken to comply with the decision so that the court injunction may be lifted, since it is inconceivable that the world's greatest news service shall operate permanently under restraint which threatens government supervision of the channels of news."

MILITARY CHIEFS DISCUSS SIZE OF BRITAIN'S ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 8—The size and makeup of Britain's peace time army, including the occupation forces, will be discussed by the top flight military leaders in a series of conferences which began today.

The generals of most of the overseas theaters and from commands in Britain have arrived in London. In considering the army's future, including Britain's part in the occupation of Japan and other enemy territories, the military leaders are expected to consult the chiefs of the other services.

Field Marshal Brooke, chief of the imperial staff, presided at the meeting which was attended by Field Marshal Montgomery, commander in chief of the British army of the Rhine.

Shortest Since 1917

Killing frosts were scheduled to settle over most of the midwest early today, ending the Chicago area's shortest growing season since 1917 and catching 25 per cent of the corn and soybean crop in the northern third of the state.

Heavy to killing frosts were predicted for Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Illinois, lower Michigan and northern Indiana. In Chicago the thermometer is expected to drop to 32 degrees, in the suburbs to 28 degrees, and in the surrounding countryside one or two degrees lower, said Forecaster I. W. Brunk.

Only 75 per cent of the corn and soybeans in the upper third of the state is safe from a temperature of 28 degrees, A. J. Surratt, state agricultural statistician in Springfield, said yesterday.

NAVY ASSERTS IT PLANS MORE PLANE CARRIERS

BY ROBERT YOUNG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8—Reputed efforts of "battleship minded" admirals to relegate aircraft carriers to a secondary position in the post-war fleet stirred opposition today on Capitol hill and brought forth a navy department statement that carrier supremacy will be maintained.

It was disclosed yesterday that some admirals are advocating plans which would subordinate carriers to battleships, despite the leading role naval aviation played during the war.

The proposals would reduce the number of large carriers to less than a third of the present total afloat or being built, while the number of battleships would be reduced only about half.

Mitscher Cites Carrier Role

The navy statement said that in comparison with the pre-war fleet, carriers will be increased and battleships will be decreased.

At the same time, Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, deputy chief of naval operations for air and a carrier task force leader in the Pacific war, declared, "We must not for a moment lose sight of the fact that our carrier supremacy defeated Japan and that carrier supremacy must be maintained."

Addressing midshipmen at the naval academy in Annapolis, Md., Mitscher said weapons to challenge the carrier undoubtedly will be developed, but that the efficacy of carrier air power has been proved. He said American carrier supremacy should not be neglected until other weapons are proved to be superior.

Favors More Carriers

On Capitol hill, Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.], a member of the senate naval affairs committee, said he favored more carriers and fewer battleships in the post-war fleet. He said in an interview that most of the Japanese fleet was destroyed by carrier based planes without the aid of battleships.

Robertson asserted one of the major handicaps of the naval academy is lack of air operation facilities. He proposed that the naval air base at Glenview, Ill., near Chicago, and the facilities at the Great Lakes naval training center be used in naval aviation training.

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] warned against weakening the American fleet by reducing carrier strength.

The navy's post-war fleet plans call for keeping 116 carriers and 11,680 planes. Carriers to be kept would include three new 45,000 ton super-carriers of the Midway class, 34 smaller first line carriers, and 79 escort carriers.

The navy proposes to keep five super-battleships of the 45,000 ton Iowa class and 13 others of smaller tonnage and to scrap six.

Norse Labor Party Gains in Early Vote Returns

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 8 (AP)—Norwegians took their first elections in nine years quietly today and early returns showed that the Social Democrat Labor party, which has been in power since the last elections in 1936, had gained in every borough counted. The party was expected to increase the 70 seats it has held in the 150 seat Norwegian parliament. The Communist party and the Christian Popular party also recorded gains at the expense of the Agrarians and Liberals.

CAMP IN DESERT OF INDIA STARTS GIs ON WAY HOME

Reach Karachi from Long Trail to China

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

KARACHI REPLACEMENT DEPOT NO. 1, MALIR, India, Oct. 8—

Replacement Depot (arrow).

Nineteen miles inland from Karachi, on the sun scorched Sind desert, is the most unusual mushrooming city of adobe huts and rock barracks. There the majority of the homeward bound American personnel of the China-Burma-India theater are being processed before boarding ship.

Like Wild West Roundup

Spread over the countryside of sand dunes and desert scrub the camp's perimeter is nearly 40 miles around. Its rock walls were crumbling and dusty only a few weeks ago. It now teems with nearly 20,000 men. The men arrive in groups of about 1,000 daily. One day 2,700 men came in a rush.

Under command of Lt. Col. Franklin Pruyn, air corps replacement depot No. 1 will handle upwards of 30,000 Americans monthly until this theater is cleared. Already Pruyn's men have loaded three ships, and dispatched thousands of men by air.

Capt. Bates Fertig, a New Yorker, does the initial processing. He has a couple of barns of lumber and tin. Fertig's corral looks like a wild west round up.

Unauthorized equipment, for instance guns, are taken away from them. Their orders are taken up and they are assigned to groups, according to where they will go.

Chicagoland Contingent

The Bliss, bound for New York, on Oct. 2, and expected to arrive there Oct. 24 or 25 carried these Chicagoland men for the separation center group at Fort Sheridan:

URGES U.S. FOOT TUITION BILL OF GI STUDENTS

Official Asks End of Lien on Bonuses

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—The veterans administration asked congress today for greater leeway in making federal payments to state educational institutions that enroll veterans as students under the so-called GI bill of rights.

Gen. Bradley, administrator, made the request to the senate finance committee after presenting this information on what veterans had received under the bill:

Twenty-two thousand and seven enrolled in educational institutions, 16,102, taking vocational training, 81,226 [as of Sept. 22] drawing unemployment compensation, which totaled $1,953,439 a week; 26,701 loans made for purchase of homes, 815 for purchase of farms and 1,904 for purchase of businesses, totaling $36,604,000, $585,000 and $1,824,000, respectively.

Gen. Bradley said 119,641 applications for enrollment in colleges and other educational institutions and 104,602 applications for vocational training had been filed.

Tuition Change Urged

E. E. Odom, veterans administration solicitor, asked that the administrator be authorized to pay a reasonable tuition for veterans with a provision that it should not be deducted from any future war bonuses. The GI bill authorizes federal payments up to $500 a year for tuition, but directs that any payment be deducted from any bonus.

Gen. Bradley said that, considering present living costs, a $10 increase might be considered in the $50 a month subsistence allowance for unmarried and $85 for married veterans who are enrolled in educational institutions.

14 Amendments Suggested

The senate group is considering 14 proposed amendments to the GI bill.

One by senators Murray [D., Mont.] and Wagner [D., N. Y.] would supplement the $20 weekly unemployment benefit to veterans by an allowance of $5 for one dependent, $10 for two, and $15 for three. Gen. Bradley said there had been dissatisfaction because a veteran who loses his job because of illness can not draw benefits since he is not considered available for work.

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] has an amendment to increase the maximum government-guaranteed loan to a veteran from $2,000 to $5,000. Gen. Bradley asked for some easing on restrictions on loans but delayed a detailed explanation.

14 SURVIVORS OF B-29 CRASH ARRIVE IN U. S.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 8 (AP)—Fourteen of the 20 airmen who parachuted from their B-29 into the ocean 300 miles off San Francisco Saturday are safe at Letterman hospital here today.

The 15th survivor, Capt. James M. Moore of Granite Falls, N. C., commanding officer of the plane, is expected to arrive on another ship here later. The bodies of three of the flyers who drowned in the heavy seas were recovered. Their names, and those of two missing men, have not been disclosed.

GIs LEAVE GUNS, PICK UP BOOKS IN CITY SCHOOLS

Veterans Are Serious in Their Studies

Thirty-five Chicago veterans of World War II., young in years but aged by war experiences, abandoned their guns yesterday to take up the weapon of knowledge at the opening of three vocational and high school classes for veterans.

Strange atmospheres prevailed in the classrooms where the veterans studied when they pleased, rested on lounges provided by the school when they were fatigued, and left the rooms at their discretion. The strict discipline of normal high school training was abandoned.

Realize Education's Value

"These are the lads who realize the importance of education. They have come here because they elected to do so and we'll do everything we can to help them," said Philip McNamee, director of the veterans educational training program.

Veteran's classrooms were opened in the Herzl branch of the Chicago Junior college, 2245 Jackson blvd.; Wilson Junior college, 6800 Stewart av., and Wright Junior college, 4261 Waveland av. Veterans enrolled are eligible under the GI bill of rights and the veterans vocational rehabilitation act.

Most of the enrollees are completing their high school education. In computing their credits toward graduation, school officials obtain a transcript of their former records, add four credits for army training, and other credits for technical training gained in the service.

Most Plan Careers

Officials said only a small group of the former soldiers was attending the classes "merely to get a diploma."

"Most of them have career plans and a definite point of view. They realize the importance of competency in their field," McNamee said.

Under present plans every 10 veterans in the course will be under the direction of one instructor, contrary to the normal school percentage basis of 35 students to a teacher.

Each of the instructors will be specialists in at least two fields. The veterans may use the facilities of any Chicago school for a particular study. McNamee pointed out the plan is certain to meet with success because of the individual teaching and the "intense motivation."

Under the accredited plan the veterans may be progressed in their courses as rapidly as the instructor deems possible after specific tests.

Sounds like a telephone number—and it's true that telephone traffic is heavy when a shipload of servicemen arrive from overseas. But, in this case, MAIN-3995 designates a railroad train.

All special troop trains which carry servicemen from Atlantic or Pacific ports to a redeployment (or separation) center are given a number by military authorities, and all numbers carry the MAIN prefix.

These trains, operating day and night, require a great deal of available railroad equipment. On top of that, it is the job of Union Pacific, and other railroads, to further transport servicemen from the redeployment centers to their homes.

There are still hundreds of thousands of men to be transported from East and West. Union Pacific, a transcontinental railroad, will be called upon to carry a large share of the load.

Civilian travel conditions are much improved and greater improvement is in sight. But if you still find it difficult to obtain transportation when required, you'll know there's a very important reason. We all want to get those boys home as quickly as possible.

ARMY TO FREE 12,000 DOCTORS BY CHRISTMAS

Two Year GIs to Be Released in March

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—The army acknowledged today that it has nearly as many doctors now as on V-E day, but said it is speeding up discharges.

At the same time, next March was set as the date when completion of two years service will begin to make soldiers eligible for release without need for other qualifications.

House military committee members got this report from Brig. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, acting surgeon general, during a hearing on demobilization progress:

1. The army had 45,500 doctors on V-E day [May 12]. It now has 43,000.

2. Releases are being increased beyond expectation so that the number of army physicians will be cut to 31,000 by Christmas [meaning discharge of 12,000] and to 15,000 by next July. The cut for the rest of this year is 1,000 more than had been planned previously.

The acting surgeon general told the committee there are many reasons why the doctors have not been discharged faster. Among the reasons he included:

1. Several thousand doctors are still required, for separation center work.

2. Several thousand are in transit, pending release.

3. Shipping was not immediately available for some physicians eligible for discharge.

4. The patient load in army hospitals in this country increased after V-E day.

Brig. Gen. Robert W. Berry, acting assistant chief of staff of personnel, told the committee that effective next March all army enlisted men with two years service will be eligible for discharge.

Meanwhile, the war department disclosed that a total of 1,350,000 members of the military forces have been demobilized from May 12 thru Oct. 5.

You can be happy about the railroads—after this war

In the first World War, the railroads were taken over by the U. S. Government. Some time after the ending of war, they were handed back to their owners in a condition from which they did not recover for years.

In World War II the railroads were let alone. They have done a magnificent job. Tens of millions of troops, untold quantities of war supplies were moved with speed and promptness. A war-swollen tide of civilian traffic was cared for.

Testimony to the wonderful war achievement of the railroads has come from many sources. None is more significant than the statement by General Brehon Somervell, Chief of the Army Service Forces, who has been responsible for delivering to camps and ports the vast quantities of supplies needed by the Army throughout the war period. He said: "The railroads have responded to every demand with promptness, often achieving what seemed well-nigh impossible."

Best of all, the railroads are in shape to provide an even higher standard of peacetime service. They have the resources to spend hundreds of millions for improvements, thus making jobs when jobs are needed. Their operating forces are experienced—and intact. They are able to buy new equipment. And the railroads have done this—on their own. They have financed their efforts—without Government subsidy. They have no huge plants to lie idle at taxpayer's expense. Their property is working property—in peace as in war.

Yes, you can be happy about the railroads. They have demonstrated anew that patriotism, coupled with enterprise and freedom of action, can work wonders.

And you, American citizen, are the beneficiary. You will soon be able to travel on splendid new trains, with new luxuries and conveniences. Your food and manufactured goods will be moved speedily and efficiently.

Railroads are the main arteries of our national economy. And never before have they been sounder.

CONTROLING THE ATOM

President Truman has made two proposals regarding atomic energy. The first calls for a national commission to control its development in this country for peace time uses. The second calls for international discussions which he says he will initiate. He will talk first to Great Britain and Canada, which have a valid equity in atomic energy because their scientists helped in the development. Thereafter he will call in the other nations.

Mr. Truman pledges that he will not negotiate on the disclosure by this country of information on the manufacturing processes which produced the atomic bomb itself, but will attempt to work out arrangements for international exchange of scientific information in the whole field of atomic energy.

Recently Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, vice president of the University of Chicago, spoke over station W-G-N on atomic energy. Some of his remarks furnished the best available thought on the subject of future controls.

"In terms of fundamental principles we have no secret," said Dr. Gustavson. "Our whole advantage is an industrial 'know how.' Scientists are agreed that any nation that has the industrial resources can make atomic bombs in two to five years."

Mr. Truman's pledge not to disclose manufacturing methods thus becomes important. Niels Bohr, the Danish physicist who played a part in the development of the bomb, told a scientific audience in Copenhagen Thursday that by his estimate the United States can make between six and seven pounds a day of atomic bomb material in the present plants. Those plants and the expensive research necessary to put them in operation cost a declared two billion dollars and probably much more. Any nation starting from scratch, without our assistance, but with all of the fundamental scientific knowledge which is in general possession, would take two to five years to get as far along as we are already. We thus have a breathing spell of moderate length.

Dr. Gustavson went on to sketch some of the peace time potentialities of atomic energy, not only in the field of power but in the field of medicine, including treatment of cancer.

"Are we going," he said, "to keep all research in the field of nuclear chemistry and nuclear physics covered under government secrecy, or are we going to give science freedom to work and freedom to publish its results in this important field? Science can only make progress when there is a free interchange of information. Science is a temple built by the scientists of all nations. The atomic bomb is a good example of the international character of science. Look at the names of the men connected with it.

"America has to learn another lesson. We can no longer lean on the fundamental research of other nations and put our efforts on the practical problem of applying the results of the fundamental research."

In Dr. Gustavson's remarks we can find two guideposts. The details of manufacture should be held secret, as President Truman pledges himself to do, not because we can keep the secret permanently but because it gives us and other nations temporary protection against atomic aggression. We should agree to free international exchange of fundamental scientific information on atomic energy. It is possible, altho not wholly probable, that in this exchange we may give more than we get back, but that is a risk which must be taken.

However desirable it might appear to be, it would hardly be feasible to exchange information only with those nations that exchange freely with us. We can be reasonably certain, from their conduct in the past, that the Russians will grasp anything we offer but will hide anything of significance that their own scientists may discover, particularly if it has military value. If there is to be any interchange of information at all, that kind of thing can hardly be avoided because scientific information cannot be exchanged advantageously under governmental supervision. If the exchange is to produce any benefits, the information has to be disseminated to the whole scientific community of the world, for no one can predict what scientist is going to take a given piece of information and use it as a stepping stone.

Mr. Truman also proposes a national commission to control development of atomic energy in this country for peace time purposes. That proposal deserves to be examined with a rather thoro skepticism. The military value of atomic energy does, it is true, give the nation a paramount interest, which might justify a government monopoly of uranium deposits, provided it isn't used to stifle investigation and development. Certainly there should be sharp limits to any government control at any point. If the government attempts to direct research, the odds are strong that the commission will have little of value to control, because the research won't get anywhere. Government subsidy of such research is another question, but if this plan is adopted, the control must be left to scientists, not to politicians or, even worse, if that were possible, to generals. The need for government subsidy may be doubted, for there is enormous interest in the subject.

And, assuming that the government or even an international organization does take control of the known existing raw materials from which atomic energy can be developed, congress is going to have to circumscribe in a very strict fashion the manner in which that material is to be released to peace time users. The only safe rule is that any one who wishes to use the material for purposes not dangerous to the nation shall have access to it upon equal terms with any other potential user.

One need only speculate on a highly improbable occurrence to see what, otherwise, would happen. Suppose some one found the way to utilize uranium in making butter which could be sold at 10 cents a pound. How long would it take the lobbyists for the dairy bloc to get into congressional cloakrooms and start demanding that no uranium be made available for butter making? Our guess is 15 minutes.

And how long would it take Bob Hannegan to raise the next Democratic campaign fund if a political body could say who might and who might not develop atomic energy?

THE WPA ALL OVER AGAIN

American employes of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration have disclosed the most scandalous mismanagement of UNRRA's affairs. Hundreds of employes who were signed in this country apparently have gone to Europe just for the ride. Some of them have been content simply to draw their pay and enjoy the sights of London; others, anxious to get to work, have been frustrated by the total disorganization of the so-called organization.

Altho the United States is putting up the major portion of the money for UNRRA, all of the "united nations" have been rushing to grab jobs in the organization. The result has been a polyglot mob whose members can't understand each other and can't get anything done. They can't even keep their pay roll records straight. Some of the Americans who joined under the impression that they were going to help relieve the distress of Europe are quitting in disgust.

Except that it is now on an international scale, UNRRA is nothing new to the people of this country. It's just the WPA all over again, with Uncle Sam putting out his money, not to relieve starving peoples, but to help support the political payrollers of Europe.

In the face of this record, UNRRA's request, transmitted by President Truman to congress, for 550 millions more is nothing short of effrontery. The organization has already had 800 millions from this country, besides smaller but substantial contributions from Britain, Canada, and a few other nations. UNRRA recently announced that it has landed about a quarter of a billion dollars worth of supplies and food in Europe. What became of the other three-quarters of a billion or more is apparently a secret. We know that $1,600 of it was used to throw a plush cocktail party for Director General Lehman in London and to sell the surplus liquor to others among UNRRA's bigwigs at cut rate prices, but that is, after all, a drop in the bucket. Most of the missing money has gone down the rat hole of confusion and inefficiency.

If congress has any regard for the suffering people of liberated Europe, it should not only refuse the request for additional funds but demand the immediate liquidation of UNRRA. The matter is desperately urgent. Even if we in America give to the limit and administer our gift wisely, there is bound to be tremendous suffering thruout Europe this winter. If UNRRA stays in the saddle, there will be not merely suffering, but a catastrophe.

We have already wasted the better part of a billion dollars without giving significant aid. The idea that America should foot the bills for other nations to play Lady Bountiful has been demonstrated to be a failure. The most that we can do in relief will be far too little. We have no money to waste on the incompetence of UNRRA.

We should without delay withdraw from that discredited outfit and turn American relief over to an American organization, either the Red Cross or one created for the task. The late President Roosevelt's primary mistake in setting up UNRRA was that he let his political jealousy of Mr. Hoover keep Hoover out of command of the relief efforts. He and the men whom he trained a quarter of a century ago have forgotten more about the technique of relieving international distress than the UNRRA dilettantes have learned in the course of wasting hundreds of millions of dollars.

THE POTSDAM FOLLY

The American economic advisers to our occupation authority in Germany have reported that the Potsdam blueprint for Germany's economic future "will be difficult if not impossible of achievement." The report was transmitted to the British, the Russian, and the French governments on Sept. 17, but has just been made public in summary in this country.

The conclusion is obviously correct, but it didn't require a commission on the spot to reach it. Anybody with a grain of economic sense must have recognized, the moment he read the Potsdam communique, that the program agreed upon was a compound of delusion, sadism, and folly.

This isn't a judgment from hindsight. Our readers may recall that on Aug. 4 we devoted three columns on this page to three analyses of the Potsdam accord, then just made public. In each of them the economic absurdity of the arrangement agreed upon was stressed. We said, among other things, that Mr. Truman in accepting these terms had shown himself wholly incapable of dealing with the problems that are confronting him. He now has the same verdict from the mouths of his own experts.

We hope he's learning. His speech on Sunday at Caruthersville, faintly echoing Gen. MacArthur's noble words at the surrender in Tokio bay and pleading for the application of the golden rule to international affairs, is a hopeful sign. Unfortunately, Potsdam is in the record, it already has been translated into action, and it will be infinitely harder to undo the damage now than it would have been to refuse to assent to it in the first place.

UNLUCKY NUMBER 296

The first alarm for the Chicago fire of Oct. 8-10, 1871, counted by bell notes the signal 342. This was incorrect, for the alarm box of that number was at Canalport av. and Halsted st., about one mile south of the blaze that had been started by Mrs. O'Leary's cow. This mistake happened because a watchman of the fire department, observing a considerable blaze to the southwest from the courthouse tower, estimated that it was close to call box 342, and sent that signal at 9:21 p. m. The fire had then been burning for 40 or 50 minutes.

The first signal should have rung 296 and should have gone out from 20 to 35 minutes after the cow kicked over the lamp. The lever to send it was pulled by Bruno Goll, druggist at the northwest corner of 12th and Canal sts. at 9:05 p. m. This call did not register at the central office. The reason for the failure is unknown. A neighbor of the O'Learys, breathless from a five blocks' run, asked Goll to give the alarm. At 9:22 another neighbor, who hadn't stopped to put on his shoes, asked Goll to ring the box again, and again it failed. At 9:31, however, box 296 came to life. Boxes 293 and 295 also sounded in headquarters at that time.

The first company to reach the fire was the Little Giant, number 6, in charge of Foreman William H. Musham [later fire chief]. This engine came from a station on Maxwell st., six blocks south of the burning area, which had been sighted from the tower. As the engine rolled out, the alarm bell began to signal 342, but Musham paid no attention to this misdirection. He headed his team toward the red glare in the north, arriving at 9:24. If the companies which had been misled by 342 had come to his support in the blazing alley between De Koven and Taylor sts., it is possible that there would have been no great Chicago fire.

The building from which Bruno Goll sent the signal that failed still stands and is in use as a restaurant, tavern, and lodging house.

TWO SISTERS

One listened for the things she could not see:
The wind took shape and color; thrush, and lark,
And rain were silver loops of melody,
And laughter scattered prisms in her dark.
The other watched the wind and knew it spoke
Because the leaning trees were listening,
Because it sang the poplars danced, and smoke
From chimneys leaped to brush a swallow's wing.
Yet blindness was no shadow on the heart,
And silence was no halter on the soul—
And each affliction served in counterpart
To make the eloquence of living whole.
While one traced beauty with her fingertips,
The other saw it singing on her lips.

How long the winter ought to last.

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

L. B. asks: "Is it compulsory for a veteran who is receiving compensation to undergo another physical examination after he is once rated by the veterans' administration? I received a rating when discharged a few months ago and if I have to submit to another examination now it will cause me to lose several days' pay."

Veterans receiving compensation from the veterans' administration must report for physical examination whenever ordered to do so. Otherwise the compensation will be cancelled until the examination is made and there is a new determination of physical incapacity.

He now has been ordered to a station where he will have to live in bachelor officers' quarters while I will remain in Chicago with our children. Will my husband lose his quarters allowance because government quarters are furnished?"

No. Where family quarters are not provided and the officer is housed in bachelor officers' quarters he still may draw the rental allowance. Even if quarters were available and there was sufficient reason why his family had to live elsewhere he still gets the quarters allowance.

ASSORTED GALL BLADDER DISORDERS

ON many occasions I have overheard women discussing their ailments and sooner or later the gall bladder becomes the center of attention. "Don't let them take it out; it didn't help me a bit," is the plea of one. "I haven't had any trouble since mine was removed," says another. Both are right but—to them—the structure is always afflicted with the same disease and variations are not thought possible.

What disorders plague the tiny sac? It can become inflamed just like the tonsils or the appendix. Bacteria enter, via the circulation, from foci in the mouth or throat; or directly, from the liver or alimentary canal. The wall becomes red and swollen and, in some cases, pus collects with resultant distention. This of course demands surgical drainage. During such episodes, the victim is aware of pain in the area along with nausea, vomiting, and soreness in the upper right abdomen.

Repeated attacks lead to impaired function and, as a rule, indigestion follows. Flatulence, a feeling of fullness after meals, and heartburn are common. Tenderness can be elicited on pressure. Slight degrees of yellow jaundice may appear.

X-rays usually show an enlarged organ which works inefficiently. Diet and anti-spasmodics are helpful, but surgery will afford relief in only half the patients. We have no way of knowing who will be benefited but the chances are greatest in those exhibiting repeated bouts, particularly if severe in nature.

When penicillin is injected hypodermically, enough is excreted by the liver into the bile passages to kill certain organisms. Thus it is conceivable that this drug will prove useful in some cases. Unfortunately, those germs reaching the pouch from the intestine are not influenced.

Should stones form, the situation may be different. Rocks are prone to develop in a sluggish, diseased gall bladder. Little ones may slip into the duct or passageway leading to the small bowel, producing obstruction and cramps. In general, most of the clinkers remain stationary and the symptoms are not unlike those of chronic inflammation. Ultimately, removal is in order and majority are completely cured. But the mere presence of stones does not necessarily mean that the individual will suffer. Many have harbored them without distress. Others have coincidental digestive upsets, such as irritable or spastic bowel, not related to gall bladder pathology. Operation in these circumstances will not alleviate discomfort.

An indefinite condition — biliary dyskinesia—produces vague abdominal complaints. In the past, physicians probably referred to this state as "a sluggish liver." X-rays reveal that the gall bladder fills and empties poorly but there is no history of colic or acute inflammation.

The exact cause of this abnormality is not known, but it is probably concerned with spasm near the opening of the duct where it joins the intestine. This is often associated with colon irritability and it is possible that the two are linked. Surgery is of questionable value and most victims respond to a bland diet, belladonna, or bile salts.

We can see that "gall bladder trouble" comes in different packages. Treatments vary and what is applicable to one disturbance may have no effect on another.

BOY'S PUP

T. R. writes: I like to have my pup sleep on my feet at night but mother tells me I should not allow him on the bed. Is she right?

REPLY

This depends upon the state of the animal's health and your ability to keep him clean. If he is one of the larger breeds you might be sorry, after he grows up, that you started the habit.

POUNDING HEART

G. F. writes: Will palpitation, which came with the menopause, clear up when the change is over?

REPLY

It probably will. But it may be wise to have the heart examined, to eliminate the possibility of disease. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on "Common Heart Disorders."

WHITE CELL RISE

W. B. writes: Does anesthesia affect the blood count?

REPLY

Temporary changes may occur, especially in the white blood count, which may be elevated for several hours.

PAINFUL FAT

REPLY

Jokes a la Carte

This column has just received, with horror, a book entitled "Esar's Joke Dictionary" [Harvest House], and we think there ought to be a law against it, forbidding public speakers to buy it, borrow it, or steal it. For by merely flipping its hideous pages he will find—for every conceivable subject—from one to a dozen made-to-order jokes ready to be inserted in his discourse wherever he decides to evoke ["loud laughter"].

Just name a subject—say baseball, since quite a number of people are interested at the moment. Turn to the B's . . . bar . . . barber . . . bartender . . . baseball! And you come to the one about the girl who, arriving in the fourth inning when the score was nothing to nothing, cried, "Goody—we haven't missed a thing."

Same way all thru the alphabet. Find your word and there's your joke. Take the letter C. You find jokes on caddies, cakes, California, callers, candidates, candy, cannibals, cars, card playing, cashiers, catty women, cemeteries, charity, chauffeurs, cheating, cheese, chewing, chickens, childbirth, chorus girls, christenings, Christians, churches, cigars, circuses, civilization, classrooms, clergy, clocks, clothes, clubs, cocktails, coincidences, collectors, colleges, commuters, concerts, conductors, congress, contributions, convalescence, cooks, corpses, cosmetics, corsets, courtship, cows, cowards, creditors, critics, cross-eyed people, curfews, and customers—and we are leaving out as many as we have mentioned.

With a book like that in unrestricted circulation among the unaccustomed-as-I-am fraternity, would anybody dare go to a public dinner?

CYANIDE SALLY

The Jinks Mystery—Solved?

Ever since last summer we have been trying to identify Jinks, the poet and scholar who announced his own death and then sent us a series of messages from the Elysian Fields and adjacent slums. At last we think we are getting somewhere.

It was in A Line o' Type or Two, while the master of that tower of erudition was on vacation, that Jinks died his first death, tho he afterward died again in Front Views and Profiles. We appointed him special correspondent from Beyond-the-Styx, and he sent us interviews with the late Geoffrey Chaucer and other immortals. His final assignment was to explore Hades, find [if possible] a certain long-dead French poet and greet him with, "Dr. Villon, I presume." The mission was obviously hazardous, and when months passed without a message, we were saddened by the thought that Jinks was probably deader than usual.

But we now have two bulletins.

The first is a note from Jinks himself, saying: "Assignment completed, but learned Villon's views on life and manners not well regarded by present associates. Knows too much of life and nothing of manners. Heard foregoing in interview with Emperor Nero, himself recognized versifier and instrumentalist, and therefore possibly biased; confirmed, however, by King Herod, Nero's shovelmate, who dislikes Villon as being uppity youngster. . . ."

Our second document is from somewhere in—of all places—Wisconsin, and is initialed C. R. C. It plainly intimates that Jinks exists again in the flesh, somewhere on the near north side of Chicago. It makes the unqualified statement that Jinks is "a graduate of Christ college, Oxford, who eats 25 cent luncheons and tips the waiter 50 cents."

Additional revelations are promised.

NAVY POINT BARRICADES

Great Lakes, Ill., Sept. 30—The navy demobilization plan should be investigated. Sufficient pressure was brought to bear upon the war department authorities to effect a release of all personnel in the army for two years or over. The purpose of this note is to call for senate and congressional action to effect the same for the navy. May I call your attention to a few facts. The enlisted man's critical score is 44. In order for him to reach that total, he must be at least 24 years of age, have had 36 months of active duty, of which 20 months will have had to be overseas, and be married. The faults with the above components are that the average enlisted man in the navy is about 21, average active duty about 30 months, average overseas duty about 18 months, and only about 20 to 25 per cent married.

Officers, whose critical score is 49, have an average age of 28 to 30, their average duty ranges from 28 to 30 months, about 18 months of which has been overseas, and about 40 to 50 per cent are married.

In the case of medical officers, an almost impossible critical score of 60 has been set up. In order for a medical officer to reach that score, he is either a commander or captain, has to be 48 years of age, on active duty 40 months, have had 24 months overseas duty, and be married.

The separation center at Great Lakes is working mightily to release men. Perhaps now about 1,000 men daily are being released. By the first of October it may go to 1,500 daily, and by the 15th, perhaps 2,800 a day. If the other separation centers reach their quotas, maybe the navy will get to release 10,000 men a day by Nov. 1 or 15. It will take the navy until May next year to release 1,800,000 men. The fault with those figures lies in the inescapable fact that the men will not be available for release because of the critical scores.

A NATION OF HARTFORDS

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 4—Why blame our state department for failures in conference with our peace loving friends? If a manufacturer ships his products to other nations without arranging prices or terms, he won't collect much if anything, and it serves him right. Our state department is in that situation. If terms and price of aid had been arrived at in good time and there was no hurry at all, then conferences at Yalta, Teheran, Potsdam, etc., would never have been needed. Now, this nation will be paid the Roosevelt way, and Truman can't change it. We are a nation of Hartfords.

GEORGE STRELITZ

CHEATING ON JOB COMPENSATION

Chicago, Oct. 3—Here is a sample of how the "unemployment compensation" law is turned into a racket. We had a girl working in our office who quit her job when she got married. Now she has applied for unemployment compensation and her employer helps her cheat by informing the board that he discharged her for lack of work. Needless to say, both of these people are 100 per cent New Dealers. A. J. G.

WORSE THAN THAT?

Chicago, Sept. 12—Franklin Delano Roosevelt is the worst calamity that ever happened to this country, not even excepting Eleanor's "My Day."

GURLEY SANDERS

THE TASTY NORTHERN

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 4—Your editorial on the "northern" indicates that the writer knows his fish. We fish for northerns in the Arrowhead of Minnesota where the waters are cold practically thruout the summer. Consequently the meat is firm and tasty.

Baking, we agree, is the best way of preparing this fish, but almost as good is boiling it with potatoes and other vegetables in a pot called "booya" by the Paul Bunyans up there. Likewise we enjoy it boiled, chilled and jellied and eaten with a bit of vinegar. Old time fish epicures, however, prefer the head only, boiled, and we are one of these.

C. M. MATTSON

THE NOT-SO-TASTY NORTHERN

Chicago, Oct. 3—I have spent the best part of seven summers in the region north of Lake Superior—as far north as the Albany river. Among sportsmen who go there after trout the pike [esox lucius] is considered a nuisance. He stinks. After taking him off the hook the guide has to wash his hands and curse some.

The men at the Hudson's Bay posts have no time for fancy bait casting as they need fish to eat so they set out gill nets for white fish or lake trout. They display much anger when they find that the voracious jack fish has been trapped and broken their net.

In the Nipigon, most famous of all Canadian trout waters, there is a sign to the effect that when a northern pike is caught, please do not return him to the water, but destroy him.

LONSDALE GREEN

GIVING AWAY THE BOMB

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4—While we are still trapped in the army like rats and treated about as such, there has popped up a class of citizens clamoring to congress to give the atomic bomb to the rest of the world.

If we do just hand it to them and it is used against us some day, can you imagine our bitterness toward our own President and congress. If they find it themselves, we can pin the responsibility on them and not on ourselves, as in the case of scrap iron to the Japs.

Give us a chance to get home and tell our people what we think of trusting others and of war, and what we think of the way the brass hats have talked our government into just dribbling us out of the army "by the end of next year."

THE VETS HADN'T HEARD

Chicago, Oct. 5—Last night while shopping in a men's clothing and shoe store, for the first time since the war started, I received such kind and considerate attention from the clerks that I was stunned. You guessed it. The clerks were wearing the discharged service emblem in their lapels. After taking impertinence and "Don't you know there's a war on" for four years, it was a most pleasant experience to be treated courteously again.

SUPREME COURT GETS JOHNSON'S CASE 3D TIME

Ex-Gaming Boss Was Convicted 5 Years Ago

The conviction of William R. Johnson, former Chicago gambling boss, on charges of income tax evasion, which has been in the courts since 1940, is to have a new airing—its third—in the United States Supreme court.

William R. Johnson

The high court yesterday granted the government's petition to review a ruling last May by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, granting Johnson a new trial on the ground that his conviction was obtained by perjured testimony.

Sentenced to Five Years

Johnson was convicted of income tax evasion Oct. 11, 1940, on the ground that he owned gambling houses in and around Chicago from which he derived unreported income. He was sentenced by Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court to five years in prison and was fined $10,000.

The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the conviction of Johnson and four co-defendants on the ground that the grand jury which indicted them had been held illegally for too long a term. The government appealed to the Supreme court which upheld the conviction, but said the appeals court should hear the defendant's claim that William Goldstein, an attorney, had given perjured testimony in the original trial.

Moves and Counter-Moves

That put the case back in the appeals court, which sent it back to Judge Barnes for a motion for a new trial. He was upheld by the appeals court.

Johnson asked the Supreme court to review the appeals court's decision. The Supreme court delayed consideration of the appeal, but but permitted Johnson to petition the appeals court to reopen the case.

Johnson then went before the appeals court, which again ordered Judge Barnes to consider his motion for new trial in the light of the new evidence. Last December, Judge Barnes again denied a new trial. His ruling was appealed to Appeals court.

Last May, the appeals court granted Johnson a new trial and the government asked the Supreme court to review the decision of the appeals court.

DEATH OF BOY, 7, PUTS POLIO TOLL FOR YEAR AT 16

One new case of infantile paralysis and one death were reported in Chicago yesterday by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The total for the year is now 197 cases and 16 deaths, compared with 131 cases and six deaths during the same period last year. The death, that of a 7 year old boy, occurred on the near north side.

No deaths and one new case were reported in Cook county outside Chicago, bringing the total to 73 cases and three deaths, compared with 71 cases and five deaths at this time last year.

In Michigan City, Ind., where no new cases have been reported for five days, physical education activities and team athletics were resumed in the public senior and junior high schools after a two week suspension.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Oct. 9—First Norwegians Arrive

On Oct. 9, 1825, the little sloop Restaurationen landed at New York with 53 immigrants who had started their voyage on July 4 or 5 at Stavanger, Norway.

This marked the beginning of a movement that brought to the United States more than 750,000 Norwegians, who contributed enormously to the building of America. No European country except Ireland sent so large a proportion of its population to America as Norway.

The pioneers settled in western New York, near Rochester, and in 1834 some of them came to the Fox river valley of Illinois. From there, Norwegian settlers moved north and west into Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and many other states.

They broke the sod of the great plains, cut timber, sailed the ships of the Great Lakes, founded churches, newspapers, colleges, and soon were assimilated into the American stream.

In 1852 the great Norwegian violinist, Ole Bull, bought 120,000 acres of land in Potter county, Pennsylvania, and planned to establish a "New Norway" there. Immigrants arrived in September, founding the village of Oleana. This venture soon collapsed, largely because of poor management, unfavorable land and market conditions, and frauds practiced by land sharpers.

The largest single year's immigration from Norway was 28,788 in 1882. In recent years the number of immigrants from that country has been below its annual quota of 2,377.

WARNS TEXTILE STRIKE IS LIKELY TO MOVE NORTH

A strike of textile workers in four southern mills may spread to mills in northern states "if employers continue their union-busting attitude," George Baldanzi, vice president of the Textile Workers' union (CIO), told delegates to a regional conference of the union in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Baldanzi told the 150 delegates, who represent 40,000 members of the CIO union in 11 midwestern states, that 2,500 workers were striking in four southern mills and that the strike might spread to 12 other textile mills in the south.

The conference will continue today and is one of a series being held by the CIO union thruout the nation in lieu of a biennial convention, which was called off because of war time travel restrictions.

HANDS OFF

Lt. French's coupe was parked in Mr. Izenga's drive when his own car drove in. French came to meet him.

SYNOPSIS: Erica Pomeroy, whose parents died and left her a fortune, returns to Boston with a fiance, Toby Newcomb. It was expected she would marry Huntley Price, but Izenga had been in love with Erica's mother and had shared with her grandmother, Mrs. Letitia Pomeroy, the upbringing of the girl. Ridge Dawson, Mrs. Pomeroy's brother, is charming, unreliable, has had several wives, and always is in debt. At Letitia's birthday dinner are her daughter, Hester, and her husband, Harry Duke; Erica, Toby, Huntley, Ridge, and Mr. Izenga. Her son, Bennet, arrives after dinner with Lucianna Dupres, whom he refuses to marry. Mrs. Pomeroy's threat to cut off Erica without a cent is ineffective. Late that night Mrs Pomeroy is strangled. She insists Toby tried to kill her. A second attempt is successful. Bennet has been drugged. Mr. Izenga will represent the family. A ring similar to Toby's is found beside Mrs. Pomeroy's bed. Hester tells Mr. Izenga that shortly after 3 a. m. Harry went out, met, and quarreled with a woman. French asks headquarters to check on Mrs. Duke's temper and any previous trouble it had caused. Lucianna didn't get in until 3 a. m. Mrs. Pomeroy's necklace is missing. Mr. Izenga questions Harry Duke about it. Ridge denies giving it to Lucianna. Leaving Ridge's apartment house, Mr. Izenga is attacked. A drug clerk knows who bought the chloral hydrate found in Bennet's liquor but wants to sell the information. As Mr. Izenga attempts to call the police the clerk escapes. Erica makes a will leaving everything to Toby.

"Your housemaid said you intended to come right back from the funeral, Mr. Izenga."

"I did but . . ." he hesitated. They were in the front hall now.

"What's on your mind, Mr. Izenga?" French asked.

"I'm responsible for Newcomb."

"Responsible or not, how can you bring Miss Pomeroy back to life if he murders her?"

French said quietly, "Are you thinking of Miss Pomeroy's new will?"

He blinked, dumfounded. "Who told you?"

"We have our methods. I assure you I'm well aware of every move Newcomb makes. You needn't worry about him, believe me. And now, I'd like a detailed account of that attack on you, last night. We've had a dozen contradictory stories."

Mr. Izenga gave a brief account of the entire evening. Then French asked for a description of the caller Mr. Izenga had. Harrison had described the fellow over the phone but the police had been unable to locate the youth in any of the Oak City drug stores.

Mr. Izenga again obliged. While they were talking the doorbell rang. Harrison answered it but did not bother Mr. Izenga. Not until the lieutenant had gone did Harrison report that Huntley Price had called.

Mr. Izenga stood on his front porch, Saturday morning, waiting for Erica to pick him up. A yellow Cadillac convertible coupe rolled up his drive and Erica slid out.

"Sorry to be a little late but I had to stop and buy a car. Loud, isn't it."

"You didn't buy that thing!"

"Certainly. It's all right under the paint. I gave Toby my other one and I had to have one in a hurry. I called up and they said they had this. It was a special order for some one."

Mr. Izenga made a little exclamation. She said quickly:

"O, it wasn't grandmother, poor darling. She'd never have thought it necessary to call attention to a Pomeroy with such a display."

"I wasn't thinking of her at all. Is there anything you'd like to discuss before we start?"

"Not a thing!" she smiled.

So he wasn't to be told about her will!

She said, "Shall we start? I suppose you know if she's in?"

"Yes. I called Miss Frobisher. She says Lucianna never gets up—permanently up—till 11. But she has heard her walking about overhead. I thought it best not to call Lucianna herself. I don't want her to be prepared."

"Whatever you say." She hooked her arm in his and they went gaily down the steps.

The gaudy car rolled down the drive.

"I'll have it painted as soon as I can. Perhaps black would be best. I'll see what Toby says."

Toby, Toby, Toby! Were they never to be rid of him even for a minute? Mr. Izenga said no more until they reached the apartment house. As they entered the small tiled lobby, he whispered:

"I've arranged with Miss Frobisher to let us into the building." He rang three short and one long peal of her bell. The locked doors clicked at once. The elevator was empty.

"Good heavens! Aunt Hester!" Erica whispered.

". . . and if you don't let him alone, you'll be sorry," Mrs. Duke was exclaiming.

Lucianna's drawl was lower. "My dear Hester, your methods are all wrong. It's no wonder you can't hang onto even such a specimen as Harry Duke."

"I'm sorry he can't hear your real opinion of him."

"Poor Hester. You're so absurd. I don't want your fat, dependent husband. He's a screaming bore. If I wanted him, I'd take him. But why should I?"

"Why not? You're the type that always has to have a man and you surely aren't kidding yourself you have Bennet any longer, are you?"

"Poor old Bennet," Lucianna purred. "He and I understand each other very well. I'll take care of him when the time comes."

"That's what you think. But stop stalling. I'm still waiting to hear what Harry's glasses' case is doing in the crack of your sofa."

"And I've told you six times I haven't the faintest idea. In fact, I've been too patient. Run along now. I'm going to be busy."

The last softly insolent words seemed to hang on the air like pungent smoke. Then Hester spoke deliberately.

"You will regret talking to me like this, Lucianna."

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"Really, Hester! We might ask the same thing of you. He motioned Erica into the flat and followed her.

Mrs. Duke stepped into the public hall. Her eyes glittered. "O, I don't mind telling the world my business with this woman." Two doors down the hall quietly opened. Mr. Izenga pointed to them. "She's after my husband, but she's out of luck. He likes them well heeled."

Lucianna came into her small hall from the living room in one swift gliding movement like a supple cat.

Seizing the doorknob in a strong white hand, she pulled it shut. Then in her poisonously sweet voice she drawled:

"Dear me. What an honor Mr. Izenga, himself!"

He slowly removed his eyes from a lovely little etching which had mysteriously disappeared two years ago from Mrs. Pomeroy's sitting room. Lucianna laughed.

"Charming, isn't it! I've such good taste and such a wee income. She practically forced it on me." She looked at Erica's expressive young face and laughed again. "I hope you didn't come to intercede for dear old Hester. She's under the delusion that her poor, futile spouse is interested in me. So silly."

"We have other things to discuss." Mr. Izenga held himself in tight rein. "And, considering the acoustics of this building, don't you think it might be wise to invite us into your living room?"

"O, of course, by all means. Make yourself at home." She strolled ahead of them, insolently swinging her sleek hips.

3 DOCTORS OPEN INVESTIGATION AT SANITARIUM

Mayor to Get Findings in Preliminary Survey

A committee of three physicians, leaders in hospital administration and treatment of tuberculosis, began an investigation of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium yesterday. After meeting with trustees of the institution in the Edgewater Beach hotel they visited the sanitarium and talked with staff members.

How extensive the investigation should be will be determined by the committee after a preliminary survey. In addition to investigating the medical and nutritional care given patients, the committee will decide whether the political system of hiring employes and attendants should be gone into, as well as the qualifications and experience of the employes for handling their individual jobs.

Members of Committee

The members of the committee are Dr. Harold Coon, superintendent of the Wisconsin General hospital, Madison, Wis.; Dr. Ernest O. Mariette, medical superintendent of the Glen Lake, Minn., sanatorium, and Dr. Henry S. Willis, medical superintendent of the William H. Maybury sanatorium, Northville, Mich.

They were recommended by Dr. John W. Towey of Powers, Mich., president of the Mississippi Valley Conference on Tuberculosis, who had been asked by Mayor Kelly to head the investigating committee.

The committee spent only a short time at the sanitarium in the afternoon because of the program requirements at the Valley conference, which opened a three day session at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The members visited the office and talked to Dr. Karl J. Henrichsen, medical director, and other members of the staff and attendants. They visited the wards, inspected other facilities, and then made plans for more extensive visits to the institution today and tomorrow.

Will Report to Mayor

Dr. Coon said that the committee expected to complete a preliminary survey and report to Mayor Kelly this week. "Our report will outline how broad the scope of inquiry should be," he said.

An investigation of the conditions at the sanitarium was demanded in many letters received by THE TRIBUNE from patients and their relatives. A committee of restaurant operators was appointed by the mayor and reported that the food served patients often was inedible. A more extensive recommendation was suggested.

SEA SICK ONLY ON TRAIN, SAYS SAILOR AT 84

Albian Pates Miles

Albian Pates Miles, 84, of Portland, Ore., one of the oldest members of the merchant marine still in active service, said yesterday that he's never been sea sick on the ocean, but he can't say the same about riding on trains.

Miles, a first mate, with picturesque white hair, is visiting his cousin, Miss Anna Pates, 209 Forest av., Oak Park. He was born in La Porte, Ind., grew up on a farm in Kansas, worked for the Sante Fe railroad in Arizona, then joined the Klondike gold rush. He said yesterday that he lost $35,000, which he had mined, in an Alaskan bank, and became so disgusted that he joined the merchant marine. That was in 1900.

Since then, Miles related, he has sailed on every ocean and every sea. He participated in the invasion of Saipan and other Pacific islands, he said.

OPA GRANTS 10% RISE IN BUILDER HARDWARE PRICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—A 10 per cent increase in ceiling prices for low and medium priced builders' hardware items essential to low cost housing construction was announced today by the OPA.

The OPA said the action was taken to encourage greater production of such items as hinges, sash, screen door, and storm door hardware to help meet an expected boom in home building when construction bans go off Oct. 15.

The OPA said that without the increased prices builders would be forced to buy higher price wrought brass or cast brass hardware. The increase is effective tomorrow.

BRITISH WAR BRIDES LEFT BEHIND BY GI'S PLAN PROTEST RALLY

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Thousands of war brides, left behind in the British Isles when their GI husbands were shipped home, are planning a demonstration aimed at stirring shipping authorities to action in getting them to the United States.

A parade of protest—planned by the brides for Thursday—was called off today by police. So, the girls are now looking for a large hall, since 10,000 women are expected to attend. They will represent the wives of 54,000 Americans, 34,000 Canadians and enough others from British dominions to bring the total to about 100,000.

At Edinburgh more than 100 banded into a "league of angry wives."

HITLER CAUGHT AT WEDDING BY ALLIED INVASION

None of Guests Dared Mention Blow

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HERFORD, Germany, Oct. 8—When the news of the allied invasion reached Hitler's headquarters in his Berghof [mountain home at Berchtesgaden], none of his many guests dared mention it in his presence, Frau Maria Dreesen said today. Mrs. Dreesen is the widow of a Godesberg hotel keeper who had helped finance the Nazi party in 1925 after Hitler emerged from detention in Fortress Landsberg.

On D day, Frau Dreesen recalled, guests were assembled at the Berghof following the wedding of a sister of Eva Braun, Hitler's paramour. When Hitler's car, which was to take him to a conference with his generals, was kept waiting for half an hour, Mrs. Dreesen mentioned it to Hitler's housekeeper, Frau Mittelstrasser. She explained that the invasion had just started.

"I could detect no sign of nervousness in Hitler and I thought things could not be as bad as I had feared," Mrs. Dreesen said, "but everybody avoided the subject."

Hitler Gave Wedding Luncheon

The wedding, which had taken place two days earlier at the Berghof, was that of Eva Braun's sister, Grete, to Schutzstaffel Leader Hermann Fegelin. Hitler gave the wedding luncheon and "even drank some champagne," Frau Dreesen said. Later the party was transferred to the estate of Martin Bormann, Hitler's right hand man, "because the fuehrer had work to do."

Mrs. Dreesen was questioned by British authorities for what knowledge she might have about Hitler inasmuch as he was a frequent visitor at her Rhineland hotel.

She said the last time Hitler was in Godesberg was in 1940, when he met a number of Italian leaders in the hotel on the eve of Italy's entry into the war.

Regarding meetings in her hotel of Winifred Wagner, widow of Siegfried Wagner, and Hitler shortly before and after he rose to power, Mrs. Dreesen said, "As far as I know, she only had tea with the fuehrer, and did not really stay in the hotel."

"Just Family Affairs"

As to visits of Eva Braun: "They were just family affairs, with Mother Braun and her two daughters spending some time in the hotel, just like other guests from Bavaria who wanted to see the Rhineland." This was during 1937, Frau Dreesen said.

Eva attracted considerable attention by talking a great deal about the chancellory and Berghof and the Nazi party, Mrs. Dreesen recalled.

She said the relationship of Eva and Hitler was "close, but on the whole their behavior was such that their relationship was not too obvious—tho everybody in Munich knew and talked about the affair."

Hitler and Eva Braun committed suicide, Mrs. Dreesen said, for "he could not risk being taken prisoner, and she would have nothing left to live for after having been the wife—or mistress—of the main leader of Germany."

Frau Dreesen said she does not think Hitler legalized his relationship with the girl, with whom he had associated since 1929, before taking his life.

NEW MUSSOLINI LOVE STORY BY A MILAN LAWYER!

Charges Duce Tried to Kill Woman

BY P. E. BRIQUET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Oct. 8—A recent report that Mussolini was a bigamist was denied today in a letter published in the Corriere Informazione. The letter, written by a leading Milan lawyer, named Cettuzzi, says:

"Mussolini knew a certain woman named Dalzer, not Desser, and she was from Trento, not Trieste, as previously printed. She had a child by him in 1915, not 1918. The boy's name was Benito Mussolini, like his father.

Visits Milan Lawyer

"In those early years of the first world war Mussolini directed the Popolo d'Italia campaign to hasten Italy into the war. Several Milan lawyers remember the Dalzer woman went to their offices with the baby, imploring legal help to get alimony.

"The latter was unable to stand the public's criticism, and called the Dalzer woman, thru a mutual friend, to a Milan lawyer's office, in January, 1916. She came with the baby. While the lawyer was trying to arrange a settlement and persuade Mussolini to provide a small income, the two began to quarrel and exchange insults.

"The lawyer then threw the pair out of his office, and the quarrel continued on the stairway outside. The same lawyer heard about the mother and Benito Jr. 12 years later.

"Cettuzzi, the writer of this letter, was then informed by Trento college that the 12 year old Benito Mussolini, using the power of his alleged relationship with the dictator, was kicking and thrashing his schoolmates under the eyes of the teachers,

"Cettuzzi refused to meddle in the matter, and heard a few months later, thru Senator Gavazzi, that Benito Jr. had changed his name and had been sent to a military school at Moncalieri. His mother was in an insane asylum."

Accurate Dialing
will save you time and trouble

Telephone dial equipment is amazingly accurate, as most people have found. If you occasionally get a wrong number, follow these simple rules more carefully and you'll save time and trouble.

1. Be sure you have the right number in mind. If in doubt, look in the directory first.

2. Listen for the dial tone—a steady hum—before you begin to dial.

3. Dial the first three letters of the exchange name, then the four numbers. Remember that letters are black; numbers are red.

4. Pull the dial all the way around to the finger stop. Dial each letter and number completely and carefully.

5. Lift your finger and let the dial swing back at its own speed. Don't try to hurry the dial by forcing it back.

6. If you get a busy signal or no one answers, hang up. You will not be charged for such incompleted calls.

Please do not dial the operator unless you are calling a suburban point or are really in need of her assistance. SAVE TIME AND TROUBLE—DIAL WITH CARE!

BY ELEANOR PAGE

Chicagoans turned out in a gala mood for the first post-war opera opening. More furs, laces, satins, and—yes, top hats—came thru the windswept doors of the Civic Opera house last night than have been seen since the glittering, spectacular first nights of the immediate pre-war seasons.

That drama set to music which is opera, with its preludes and interludes, together with appropriate costumes, scenery, and action, came to life off-stage as well as on. The crowds which gathered during the "prelude," when handsomely gowned women and carefully groomed men entered the building, were so great that a city fireman was kept busy clearing aisles for them to walk thru the lobby. In the "interludes" the galleries were packed with promenaders, and the smart little second floor Opera bar did a rushing business.

The most "appropriate" costume was worn by Mrs. John R. Orndorff, who each year comes dressed in the manner of the heroine of the opera that is being sung. Last night she was a "Manon," in a pink satin off-the-shoulder bodice and full tiered skirt of pink net ruffles over hoops.

Her wrap was a full skirted orchid-pink one, trimmed lavishly in white fox and made with a train. Pinned to her head was a headdress of pink feathers and roses and long artificial curls, and in her hand she carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds frilled in pink net.

The rich colors and particularly the gold tones of the Renaissance, when modern opera had its beginnings, were predominant last night. Combining several luscious colors was Mrs. Robert H. Morse Jr.'s gown of violet silk crepe with a bodice of apple green and turquoise silk jersey embroidered in fuchsia and gold sequins. With it she wore an antique diamond necklace, diamond and emerald bracelets, and a mink coat.

Mrs. Tracy L. Turner Jr. wore about her neck a 250 year old gold chain necklace with a pendant of diamonds and amethysts, and a crown of diamonds for a clasp. Her gown was of lipstick red crepe with a belt studded in gold nailheads and gold beads. Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell's gown was another colorful one, combining a red and chartreuse chiffon sash with an electric blue crepe gown. She pinned a corsage of fresh red cabbage roses to the low V neckline.

Absent on opening night on one of the rare occasions since their marriage more than 50 years ago were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde. Occupying their main floor seats were Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis and Miss Emily Larned, the latter in red crepe beaded in silver, and a silver fox trimmed coat. Three generations who came to the opening together were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller, their son-in-law, Bruce Strong, just out of his army major's uniform; Mrs. Strong, and their young daughter, Cara, who was attending her first opera performance.

Seated in the box, number 1, which has been his on Monday nights for many, many seasons, was Robert Hall McCormick, with Mrs. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill C. Meigs, British Consul-General and Mrs. Wilfred H. Gallienne, and Mrs. Jacob Baur. A stunning sequin and net butterfly was secured to Mrs. Baur's braids, and her gown was of black velvet.

A barrage of photographers' bulbs greeted the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, whose presence was of more than particular interest as he is to make his opera debut here Oct. 26. Another was leveled at pretty, blonde Mrs. Trevor Stamp, who arrived with the Edgerton Harts, the Millard B. Kennedys, the Kenneth Wilsons, and John Brooks McCormack, who will be heard for the first time in opera in Chicago tomorrow night as the duke in "Rigoletto."

The bearers of two names which long have been news in Chicago's opera circles arrived together, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, the latter in a sleek, black, slit-skirt frock edged all around in silver sequins. Also in a svelte black gown was Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who heard Massenet's work with Arthur Heun.

Gold jewelry flashed from the decorative and effective setting of a high necked black gown Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell, wife of the president of the opera company, wore. The stunning corsage Mrs. James G. Shakman pinned to her gleaming ermine coat had every one guessing, for the blossoms were of a beautiful deep pink, with the texture of velvet. "They're gladiolas," she told an admirer.

Arriving late and breathless were the Grier D. Pattersons, who had escaped a charge of speeding when Mr. Patterson pleaded that his wife had browbeaten him into going to an opera performance. "You have suffered enough for one night" was the officer's comment as he dismissed them.

Five young men in uniform who sat in the George I. Haights' and Dr. and Mrs. Melford Zinser's boxes were present as guests of the lest we forget committee, and all are from Vaughan General hospital. One of them, Pvt. Elmer Davis of Springfield, Ill., who was wounded

Chicago Opera Loads Lukewarm Opening on Frail Shoulders of Sayao's "Manon"

The Chicago Opera got off to a lukewarm start last night by loading the full weight of Massenet's "Manon" on the charming but frail shoulders of the tiny Brazilian soprano, Bidu Sayao, under the possible delusion that she is Mrs. Operatic Samson. She did her best to live up to the billing. She wore some enchanting costumes, spun her lovely little lyric soprano into intricate and exquisite designs, and was an adorable Manon in her own cuddly ways of coquetry, all pouts and puckers, with little hint of the great courtesan whose tragic prescience was so hauntingly mirrowed by Lucrezia Bori.

But in its own incomplete way Miss Sayao's performance was delightful. The trouble was that she had so little help and that Fausto Cleva had reverted to the uncut opera, which is not quite as good as the uncut "Hamlet." The first revived scene of revelry with the feast passing in parade is effective only if staged with more skill than it received last night, and tho the fete day usually skipped in production does make the story a little clearer, besides giving Richard Bonelli a commonplace aria to pad Lescaut, it is on the whole pretty dull going. The gavotte fits nimbly into the gambling scene and lets the audience go home earlier.

At least in the orchestra pit, Mr. Cleva was Miss Sayao's major ally, for the musical texture was scaled to the star and no one could complain that she was drowned out, tho the net result was a jewel box effect more suitable to the little theater next door than to the vast reaches of the Civic Opera house. This, too, was often quite lovely in its fashion, if you could hear it. Mr. Cleva knows his scores, he is a fastidious and able conductor, and he makes Massenet's orchestra sound as if he loved it. He also made "Manon" sound as if he thought an orchestra and one star could make a show.

They can't, as the performance proved. Miscasting was rampant. Armand Tokatyan, a reliable tenor when properly cast in roles leaning toward the dramatic, had not much more than a fine set of wigs to recommend him as the lyric Chevalier of the melting "Dream." Mr. Bonelli must have been singing Lescaut by courtesy, for his lyric baritone has little acquaintance with the rascally comedy of this cynical opportunist. Nicola Moscona seemed new in the role of the elder des Grieux, and lacked his customary authority. Most of the minor roles were just so much waste motion, and you were asked to believe that the cocotte played by Inge Manski doubled as a maid, tho perhaps she lost the latter job because she left a hideous velvet table cover hanging on Manon's chair.

Perhaps Lothar Wallerstein had so little material to work with he was frustrated from the start in the matter of suave staging, but surely it was possible to emerge from the enormous warehouse with a more attractive nest for the tinderbox pair who fell in love and fled to Paris. True, this was a love affair on paper only, that struck no chemical reaction to convince the audience, but that house was enough to discourage the most amorous.

Mrs. Windsor Finds Paris Fashions a Bit Beyond Her Budget

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 8 — Chatting vivaciously, Mrs. Edward Windsor admitted at a showing of high fashion hairdos presented by Guillaume today that everything in Paris is so expensive that she could not afford a single chapeau at 6,500 francs [$130] or a dress at 50,000 francs to wear in London.

"The presentations are lovely," she sighed, then smiled and added, "but even the simplest gowns are frightfully dear, so I sha'n't buy a thing."

Guillaume introduced a new triangular coiffure called Renaissance, consisting of sleek hair combed back straight from the forehead, with two wide semi-curls extending three inches from the head at the sides and descending to a V behind.

There were modifications of this coiffure, with braids replacing the curls, platinum locks on raven hair, or tight bob curls, to harmonize with the latest millinery by J. Suzanne Talbot, Agnes Maud, and Mano, as well as date dresses and formals by Lucien Lelong, Jacques Fath, Maggy Rouff, Jean Patou, and Paquin.

Music Notes

Two special concerts have been added to the Chicago Symphony orchestra scheduled at Orchestra hall. Next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 Désiré Defauw will direct a performance to aid the Community and War Fund drive, featuring Rossini's Overture to "William Tell," Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuonela," Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" and Dvorák's "New World" Symphony. Mayor Kelly will speak for the fund at intermission. The second concert, to be played Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4, benefits the orchestra's pension fund and marks Bruno Walter's first appearance as its guest conductor.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 8—Well, you fans who've been begging for another look at "The Wizard of Oz" may get your wish around Christmas time. I had a look at it the other night—it's really delightful; fresher than when it was first made. The difference in Judy Garland rather astonished me. She was so young, so round, so fully packed. After seeing Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, and Jack Haley, I wonder why they haven't been teamed again. Wouldn't this picture be a wonderful Christmas present to our lonely boys who have to remain in Europe, the Aleutians, and the South Pacific. It would cost nothing except a few prints, and, unless I miss my guess, the boys would like to have it run not once but several times. Maybe it would lift their spirits "over the rainbow," too.

Want Pictures—Not Patter

Angela Lansbury's marriage to Richard Cromwell has thrown her studio into a slight panic. Metro has six stories lined up for her—among them "Anna Christie" and "Night in Bombay." They're fearful Angela will follow in the footsteps of Judy Garland and Gloria De Haven and decide to have a baby instead of making more films. In the old days when our stars married, they promised not to have babies the first year. . . . Mary Brian's back from another overseas trip entertaining our boys. Let's get together now and give her a good job, or will we keep on punishing her for doing more than we did. . . . Jane Froman has returned from a European USO tour and will have another operation on her leg. When that heals, she'll head out for the South Pacific. . . . Wonder why the "Maisie" show can't keep good writers? Now it's Mary McCall Jr. who gave up after three scripts. . . . Fritz Kohner got $75,000 for his yarn "The Birds and the Bees" from Metro. . . . "Shotgun" Britton's working overtime since he's out of uniform. He and Wales Hobson have an outline for a picture called "Honorable Discharge." They've already got a nibble.

Henry Gets a Lift

Edward Everett Horton did a grand job on the radio this summer and lingers on in the east to do a week of "Springtime for Henry" in Montclair, N. J. He wrote me, "I just couldn't resist, 'cause when I play 'Henry,' it's always springtime for me." . . . Donald Meek and Charles Laughton are the hottest comedy team in town. It never would have occurred to me to put these two in the same blending bowl. . . . Lloyd Pantages could be out of uniform now, but the need for entertainment at the Santa Barbara rehabilitation station is so great he's staying in. He got Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby—along with several other top stars—to go up there and give cheer to our returned prisoners of war. . . . Mickey Rooney's writing a gossip column for "Stars and Stripes." Is he stepping into Orson Welles' boots? . . . Palmer Beaudette, Cobina Wright's husband, is still trying to buy that west coast magazine. . . . Cary Grant's trying to talk Jack Warner out of that Bermuda bungalow on the lot. He wants to move it on a vacant lot and have a "small" place to live in for a change.

North and South vulnerable, East deals.

East	South	West	North
1 heart	2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	3 spades	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead, 10 of hearts.

It is an interesting paradox, that a lie is sometimes the most effective way to tell the truth. There are countless billions of combinations in which the 52 cards may be distributed and there are only a handful of bids available to describe these holdings. It is not surprising, therefore, that so many hands do not fall distinctly in one category or another and must consequently be grouped as miscellaneous. In many cases there will be no satisfactory bid and an effort must be made to select that call which will most nearly describe the outstanding features of your hand. First you must make up your mind what is the most important characteristic of your hand and then you should decide how best to convey this information to your partner. Sometimes, ingenuity will be required and a little white lie may be the best way to paint a picture for your partner.

In today's hand East opened with one heart. Despite the fact that the hand lacks the necessary high cards, few modern players would hesitate to make the bid. South was presented with an immediate problem. Had he been dealer he would have opened with a very substantial two spade bid. This holding surely looks like a game in hand. South must therefore make a bid which will insure reaching a game contract and yet allow for the possibility that the hand might have to play in a minor suit if partner happens to be very short in spades and long in either clubs or diamonds. If South should double first and jump the bid later, North might pass if his hand were completely trickless. The only way to make a 100 per cent game forcing bid is to "cue" the opponents' suit. Such a bid announces the ability to win the first trick, but South decided to tell this little white lie, as the best means of describing a hand that was a game in itself. North had no choice but to keep bidding, which at the time he found anything but pleasant.

A slip in the defense permitted South to make the hand against the very bad trump break. The 10 of hearts was opened and the suit continued, South ruffing. The ace of spades revealed the bad news in trumps and South led the king of clubs. West won and had he retained the heart for a future exit card, the contract would have been set, but he continued to force declarer, who was now reduced to three trumps. All the high diamonds and clubs were now cashed and West was given the lead with a small trump. His last two cards were the queen and 10 of spades from which he was obliged to lead into declarer's tenace. The possession of that little heart at this time would have been a great comfort.

Thru the Looking Glass

Do you delight in luxuriating in a tubful of water that's all softened and prettied up with sweet-smelling trimmings? There's nothing quite like it for restoring shattered nerves and taking the ache out of a tired body at the end of a hard day. It's the right antidote for that all-in feeling, and when you finally step out of the tub after soaking for five or ten minutes you have a new outlook on life.

We've been experimenting with a new tub trimming—a bath meal in the delicate, sweet scent of lily-of-the-valley. It proved a real treat and is made to order for the woman who likes a light floral fragrance. This is a fine, powdery substance tinted a pale green. A handful tossed under a roaring faucet scents the water thru and thru and sends up a cloud of fragrance that makes the room seem like a flower patch.

Besides, the bathmeal softens the water until it feels like silk. You'll slip into it and practically never want to get out. That softening quality is something to reckon with now that the dry skin season is here. It will help cut down on the discomfort attendant to cold weather bathing.

Airy and light as the fragrance is, it clings nicely to the skin and when you emerge from the tub you carry the sweet scent with you. To top it off there's a matching dusting powder, cloud light and permeated with the same flower fragrance. Pat yourself all over with this and top it off with a dash of toilet essence in matching scent. You'll feel rejuvenated from head to toe.

All three items are nicely packaged in green containers decorated with sprays of the tiny lily-of-the-valleys. They make attractive as well as useful bathroom accessories.

Use Fur More Graciously on Winter's Suits

BY REA SEEGER

Fur trimmed winter suits, surest sign of the approaching colder season, come in a fascinating parade of fabrics, color contrasts, and fur trim. More than ever before, fur trim has been used with artistry, for it is applied with gracious flattery, not in wacky blobs thrown on to make an opulent impression of luxury. Clever designers have used fur like decorative braid, not too much, not too skimpily. The results are suits of great distinction.

Black fabric with black Persian lamb makes costumes of great elegance when combined with interesting blouses of taffeta or stiff brocade that will peep out from between the lapels of a jacket or when worn like a waistcoat. Black suits trimmed with dazzling white ermine are different, because the ermine is not so blatantly applied as in former years. This time, the ermine faces back the front sections and appears in a tiny rolled edge when the jacket is buttoned. This soft narrow edge appears at the cuffs of the sleeves and is repeated in the demure little roll over collar. More and more fur lined suit jackets are offered, the fur always the short silky stuff that assures comfort without distressing bluk. Kolinsky, dyed squirrel, the caraculs in black, gray, beige and a few dyed pelts, beaver, nutria, black and brown sealskin, and, of course, the luxury minkskins are used for linings and the narrow trim.

This doesn't mean fluffy furs have been overlooked. But fox, lynx, and the others are used for collars and dramatic big cuffs.

Hash may be merely last night's left-overs, or it may be a meal which can stand on its own merits, depending upon the attitude of the cook. Fundamentally hash is a combination of left-over meat and potatoes, but the method of handling these surplus dinner items determines whether a family is bored or pleased.

Individual meat loaves are interesting. Combine the ground left-over meat and potatoes with bread crumbs and seasonings, bake in muffin pans, and serve with a hot sauce, such as extended left-over gravy, canned tomato or mushroom soup, or a cheese white sauce flavored with mustard.

Ham and sweet potato hash is good, especially if dished up with orange or pineapple or raisin sauce, or with freshly made applesauce.

If there isn't enough hash for a dish by itself, spread the well seasoned meat and potato mixture on baking powder biscuit dough, roll up like a jelly roll, and bake. Serve the roll with brown gravy, if possible. A small amount of left-over gravy may be extended with a gravy made on a white sauce base, colored and flavored with one of the meat extracts available.

Hash stuffed green peppers, eggplant, or summer squash, served with creole sauce; hash baked between tomato slices or halves; hash made by whipping ground meat and an egg into fluffy fresh or left-over mashed potatoes, then baking the puffy mixture in a casserole until brown—these are only a few of the delightful possibilities for the prosaic meat left-overs.

Add a little milk and an egg yolk to left-over mashed potatoes, beat out all the lumps, and fine muffin pans with the mixture. Then fill the potato cases with well seasoned, ground left-over meat and bake until brown. That's a good dish, too.

Just plain hash may be browned in the oven or atop the range, but it should have a nice brown crust for appetite appeal. A favorite way of serving corned beef hash is with poached eggs. Why not bake the eggs in individual hash nests and serve with hollandaise or another rather sharp flavored sauce?

Barbecued hashburgers will appeal to youngsters. Brown hash patties, sandwich them in buns, and dress with barbecue sauce and thinly sliced pickle.

Ham or lamb hash baked on pineapple rings and served with a spiced pineapple juice sauce is interesting.

Onion and green pepper go far to make left-over meat tasty when it appears as hash. Other choice flavorers are tomatoes, catsup or chili sauce, piccalilli, mustard, horseradish, and chili powder.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Legation Secretary

She was christened Maria Catalina Urquidi. Now she is known as Mary Chauvet—the Maria changed to Mary to go with her French married name.

This last week she has been in Chicago as secretary to the Mexican legation attending an industrial conference sponsored by Illinois Tech.

From the moment she stepped off the plane, the slight, vivid Mary found herself the most "in demand" secretary in Chicago—at the beck and call of 36 bosses! It was her first visit, so between conference meetings she managed to see something of our city—went to the ballet, to the Art institute, to a number of festive dinners and to the theater, especially enjoying "The Tempest" because her father, a Shakespearean scholar, once translated "The Tempest" into Spanish.

The Young Mary

Her father was a Mexican diplomat, Juan Urquidi. As a result of his various appointments, the family traveled to many countries. Mary was born in London, her brother in Paris, her sister in Bogota, Colombia. For years the children fitted their education into whatever country they were living. All of them were in Spain at the outbreak of the revolution and all left Madrid except the mother, a registered nurse, who remained there to organize a hospital for the wounded.

From the time she was 16 until the present, Mary has lived in Mexico and there was married to a French architect and decorator. But it was shortly after her return that she decided to study stenography. "Mexican girls," she tells me, "make excellent stenographers. They seem to save some special facility."

After her stenographic course she held a number of jobs—in banking, merchandising, a job with the airlines and one as secretary to a popular night club owner. And then one day her brother urged her to apply for the position of secretary to the assistant director [and resident director in Mexico] of the Armour Research foundation, the position which she now holds.

South of the Border

South of the border, life for the "two-job woman" isn't as strenuous as it is here. Servants are not hard to obtain. Mary does no housework except the household accounts, dutifully kept by most Mexican wives.

The days there follow a less hurried pace. More than anything else, the extraordinary haste of everyone in Chicago impressed this attractive Mexican visitor. "We hurry when necessary, but not all the time as you do here," Mary remarks; "ours is the land of manana—of tomorrow—and we do not try to do everything today."

Mexican women, she says, are domestic—"few people dine in restaurants—the home is the center of things." Mexican girls play golf and tennis . . . seldom go stockingless to the office . . . wear flowers in their hair, and in some ultra conservative circles the white collar girls are chaperoned to and from their jobs by their families!

"There are no career women as a group in Mexico," says Mary. "Girls work if necessary. But they have the faculty [like the European women] of working with men while retaining softness and femininity.' Can this be possible? Look at Mary Chauvet.

Nylons on Way but Only Pair by Single Pair

BY EDITH WEIGLE

"How about my nylons? When can I get six or seven pairs?"

"Will they be just like the pre-war stockings?"

"Can I get varied leg lengths? I'm tall, and my sister is just a little half pint."

To answer these and other questions that are coming from women the country over we went to the source—the hosiery mill. We saw some of the first of this mill's particular brand of nylons being made, and if man's inventive genius has ever created more delicate or slightly complicated contrivances than those that were in operation we'd like to know where they are!

Just one giant machine was slowly, delicately, and with the utmost precision knitting 30 nylon stockings [15 pairs] at once. It requires about 45 minutes to complete the job, with one man watching the process all the time. If one tiny thing goes wrong the machine has to be stopped, and that means all 30 stockings are held up. So it's important to keep that mechanism in a good humor!

When we examined a single nylon thread and saw how close to cobweb delicacy it was we were amazed at the actual strength and enduring qualities of this man-made miracle substance. It looks ethereal, yet it's so much tougher than silk.

In the Milwaukee plant we visited we noted that this gossamer thread was white. We saw some pale pink, too, the colors simply designating the difference in weight. After the knitting process is completed and after the leg seam has been stitched and the stocking has been shaped, the dyeing takes place. It is only then that the hosiery takes on the well known beige shade.

In pre-war times this mill produced an average of 100,000 dozen pairs a month and hopes it will achieve this production figure again when it can obtain all the help needed at the machines. Of course, like other large manufacturing companies we've visited in the middle west in the last few weeks, this plant at present is greatly understaffed.

This name brand nylon hosiery will be shipped to stores thruout the country in such a way that it can appear simultaneously on the counters. It's impossible to give a definite date, but the firm hopes to have its nylons in dealers' stocks about the middle of December.

Because the well of women's demands apparently is bottomless, due to the complete lack of nylons in the war years, manufacturers are united in trying to get as many stockings to them as quickly as possible. The idea is to produce nylons—just nylons. Not fancy colors, not varied leg lengths [except in the instances of one or two firms]—at least, not first. That will come later.

After the consumer has been supplied, then as the months go by hosiery mills will be able to turn attention to such things as hues and lengths. Probably more seamless hosiery also will be made then than at first. But don't expect this all at once, for it all takes time. Just be glad if you're able to get a pair [and we mean A pair] at the very first. Don't expect to grab off a half dozen pairs at once.

We visited a Kenosha mill that turned out 34,000 dozen pairs of hosiery a month in ordinary times. During the war, due to dearth of nylon and silk, its production was cut 50 per cent, and of course it made rayon stockings. Now it is resuming the manufacture of nylons and plans to make its first shipments to jobbers about the middle of November, which means that the woman customer will be able to get them at her dealer's in December.

The president of this firm predicted that there will be very little nylon hosiery in retail stores before December and that then it will be in limited quantities. His mill is coming out with one color only, as is the largest mill in Milwaukee, an ash with the standard leg length [30 to 31 inches]. The color will be a medium beige that can be worn with anything.

Silk stockings? There will be a scarcity due to the currently very low supply of silk in the country. Silk importations from South America for making hosiery so far have not been feasible from the price viewpoint. In the future, if shipments are made from Japan and China again, the situation will be altered.

Prices for the new nylons have not been determined, as yet; but they probably will be somewhere around the last pre-war price, or perhaps lower. And only two weights will be manufactured at first: 30 and 40 denier.

Book Club to Discuss Mystery at 1st Meeting

The Cathedral Book club, gathering at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Holy Name auditorium at 19 E. Chicago av., will open its tenth season with a program on the old mystery classic, "The Moonstone," written by Wilkie Collins in 1868. A half hour talk on the author's life and background of the story by the club's director, the Rev. Emmett Regan, will be followed by a motion picture based on the plot.

Tending Baby's Minor Injuries Is Just Part of the Day's Work

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Writing inspiration started to bubble pretty well, but the article which was in the making for this day has vanished into thin air. For just as I began to "get going," the baby's mother came running upstairs with all 26 pounds of him in her arms.

"Please look at this finger," she said. "I turned my back for an instant and he tipped over his stroller. I caught it so he didn't fall hard, but he slid on the concrete of a driveway. Will you help me clean it and bandage it, or do you think we should call the doctor?"

I glanced at the wide-eyed baby who wasn't shedding a tear, and then at the bleeding finger.

"It doesn't look too bad," I said. "Let me clean it off first."

Well, it takes longer to minister to a year old baby who can't have things explained than to an older child. But I finally got the chubby finger bathed and bandaged, tho at first the baby drew back and whimpered, and looked at me altogether too reproachfully for my comfort, until I began to divert him by making duck, kitty, and bird sounds, which he loves.

"Now," said his mother, "I'll have to keep him off the floor so he won't infect that bandage. That means I won't get his wash done, and even if I did I couldn't put it out because it's raining, and it's rained for two days so he'll be completely out of clothes. As far as chores goes, this is going to be a wasted day." The baby's mother sighed, and then he began to tug at the bandage.

"We must keep that on, at least until he goes to bed," I said. "Give him to me. I'll sit here with him by the window. Just get the second drawer out of my sewing cabinet for him, the one with all sorts of buttons in it. He had a beautiful time with that last week. You go on and do your chores."

It's all right to have a work schedule, but when you have a baby he doesn't seem to know about that! Days come when everything goes wrong and a young mother feels herself so inefficient she could weep.

When these low moments come, don't let them get you down; they come to everyone. Just remember the other days when the baby fell into his perfect routine, and your work went thru with a bang!

Mrs. William M. Spencer and Mrs. Russell D. Hobbs wore street length frocks to the opening, but appeared elegantly gowned just the same. Mrs. Spencer's dress of chocolate brown was embroidered in gold sequins, Mrs. Hobbs' was of honey colored satin made with a draped skirt. Gleaming plastic flowers were in her hair and gold sandals on her feet.

A few of the other costumes noted last night: The striking empire green long sleeved velvet gown and flashing, sequin studded scarf worn by tall, Grecian Mrs. Hamill McEwen, whose escort was Berrien Tarrant; Mrs. John W. Clark's black taffeta gown with horizontal bands of white lace under a white fox jacket; Mrs. William D. Saltiel's tubular black gown with paneling of dusty pink faille which swirled around the skirt; the royal purple crepe sheath and mink jacket worn by Mrs. John D. Allen, wife of the chairman of the opera's board of governors; Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins' coral chiffon gown with jacket of silver fox; the nile green flowing crepe gown, ermine coat and jewelled combs worn by Mrs. Frank Hiter, and the long sleeved aquamarine satin gown, ermine cape collared in white fox, and pink feather crest headdress worn by Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

Some of the others in the audience were the Arthur W. Wakeleys, their son-in-law and daughter, the Edward Wheelers; Mrs. Frank Howes, the Phil Barbers, the Stewart Boals, Mrs. Frank M. Gordon and her sister, Miss Cecile Corboy, who just had welcomed the Gordons' son-in-law, Harmar D. Soap, Water Routine Pays Off in Beauty

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

It takes a bright, clean face to start off each high school day with the assurance any young gal needs to face friends and classes. That well-scrubbed, all-American look is a bolster both to confidence and personality. If you look well, you feel well, and if you feel well, you can keep your mind on cracking the books and listening to classroom lectures without wishing you could creep off home and start the day all over again with a different face and clean powder puff.

Most high school characters are bothered at one time or another with a bad complexion. It isn't always possible to achieve that Joan Leslie look, no matter how hard you try, but since cleanliness is the basis of all loveliness, why not try the soap-and-water approach to your complexion?

Wash your face thoroly at least twice a day—before you leave for school in the morning and just before you hop into bed at night. First wipe off the surface dirt with a washcloth moistened with warm water. Then use a mild soap and lather the face, massaging with your hands. The secret of a satisfactory washing is thoro rinsing. Rinse first with warm water and when both the washcloth and face are free from soap, finish the rinsing with cold water.

As added precautions toward keeping your skin pink, white, and perfect, drink at least seven glasses of water a day and don't skip a hearty breakfast, since that first meal is what starts your body working for the day. Skip the extra candy, pastry, and fried foods that taste good but give you skin trouble. A smart gal will give her complexion an extra chance by keeping her skin clean all day, not clogged with drying or heavy powder bases, and will use a bit of clean cotton, fresh each day, to replace a beat-up, soiled powder puff.

Let's face it. It's your face and its first impression can make or lose a lot of friends. So put it on a regular cleansing schedule. Even Sleeping Beauty took time out to make with the soap and water before she dozed off to wait for the Prince!

Merits of Douglas and Clearing Debated

Confusion marked the meeting yesterday of the committee to select a site for Chicago's new main airport.

Air lines engineers disagreed as to the relative merits of the Douglas field near Park Ridge and the Clearing site a mile south of the present airport at 63d st. and Cicero av. The majority shifted to a finding for Clearing on the supposition that the present airport would be abandoned. Two air lines dissented, and a third was silent.

Basis for the shift toward Clearing was a question put to the air lines at the behest of Oscar Hewitt, city commissioner of public works: "If the present airport is abandoned by the city, will the air lines still prefer the Douglas site, and why?" This "if" was emphasized in the air lines engineers' new report.

Disagree on Two Basic Points

Aviation spokesmen also disagreed on two basic points affecting selection of a site: How many planes in a peak hour can safely use the space above a single airport? Which are best: Tangential runways in a "flying wheel" pattern, with buildings as the hub, or parallel runways?

E. P. Lott, chairman of the air lines technical committee, said that if the main airport is to be at Clearing the Douglas site should be obtained for miscellaneous activities because the present 15 million dollar airport would be abandoned. Douglas then would handle air cargo service to southern industrial areas, chartered and sight-seeing flights, national guard units, and transient army aircraft, he said.

Explaining the trend away from Douglas for the No. 1 port, Lott said his committee now favors a tangential runway layout which requires more space. For 240 plane movements an hour at least 3,060 acres would be needed.

Favor Clearing Because of Space

But he went on to say it would be better to look ahead to peak loads of 360 planes an hour. This would call for 12 tangential runways, at least 6,150 feet in length, and a tract ranging between 4,000 and 4,600 acres.

The Clearing site offers sufficient land for this plan without moving railroad tracks, Lott declared. He minimized the disadvantages of high industrial structures in the vicinity and the smoke pall. Obstructions can be removed or lowered, he said, and the impediment to visibility is offset by the fact that Clearing is several miles nearer downtown Chicago.

"But we're definitely against tangential runways," he said. "They don't afford a clean cut approach or getaway. They converge at the ends. Idlewild airport in New York is making a bad mistake in choosing them."

Two Lines Favor Douglas

Behnke challenged the air lines' committee plan to accommodate 360 plane movements an hour at a single airport. He doesn't believe it can be done safely.

Braniff Airways, Inc., thru R. M. Lewis, went on record as preferring Douglas over Clearing in any event.

"It is our understanding," he said in a telegram, "that fog and smoke are less prevalent at Douglas, property costs are less, few obstructions exist, expansion possibilities in the final analysis are just as good, the area is not now designated as industrial, and safe operations are more likely."

Northwest airlines sent a letter detailing reasons for favoring Douglas. Choice of Douglas will not impair the investment in the present airport, Engineer F. R. Meisch stated. Poor visibility at Clearing will slow down operations regardless of improved instruments, he added, whereas Douglas has the advantage of being off the main east-west airways, thus allowing approach patterns clear of air traffic.

"We'll have to keep the door closed, Ed—those nest building sparrows are at it again."

Smoke Signals for You

Not so long ago, smokers asked pathetically, "Got any cigarettes?"

Now the clerks are beginning to say, "Perhaps you'd like a carton, sir?"

And therein lies a moral.

Other consumer lines may not be able to recover from war-created shortages as quickly as did cigarettes. But recover they will . . . and sales, rather than production, will become the paramount issue.

Columbus KNEW from his reading that the world was round . . . that by sailing west you could eventually reach the east . . . and this knowledge gave him courage to carry on even in the face of mutiny 4000 miles at sea

Through READING he found a GREAT NEW WORLD

MUTINY! . . .

In the narrow waist of the flagship Santa Maria is gathered a group of hot-eyed, angry men. Tense but calm above them stands the Captain General. The date is October 10, 1492. The position is 4000 miles W.S.W. of Portugal.

The ringleaders speak. For thirty days they have sailed into the unknown. Already they are long past the spot where he predicted land. To go farther would be madness. They must turn back.

The Captain General replies. Serenely, confidently, he allays their fears. For the faith that is in Christopher Columbus is a deep faith born of tireless reading . . . reading about navigation, geography, exploration, about seamanship, about the size and shape of the earth.

"Two books in particular," says Samuel Eliot Morison in his great work, Admiral of the Ocean Sea, "the Imago Mundi and the Historia Rerum, show by their multitude of marginal notes that Christopher read them over and over again. . . ."

So, once again, Columbus rises magnificently to the challenge of a world that doubts . . . holds unflinchingly to the promise of a life-long dream. Muttering, the men withdraw. And on again over the glassy swells the little fleet creeps westward . . . westward toward the greatest landfall in history . . . toward the vast new continents of the Americas!

Reading a Spur to Progress

The great figures of history who, like Columbus, have revealed new worlds of geography, art, science, almost without exception have been helped and inspired by reading.

For it is the impression value of what one sees that registers indelibly and is never forgotten. . . . And reading alone covers the whole field of man's knowledge . . . includes all of life in its limitless scope.

Such reading, at its varied best, is found in abundance in the pages of The American Weekly. Here are life's loves, hopes and fears . . . the wonders of science and history . . . the beauty of art and literature . . . the inspiration of religion. Two articles from recent issues suggest its wide range of interest—"Penicillin's New Ally," an article on the latest advances in medicine; and "End of Dictation for the Cinderella Stenog," which tells the romantic true story of a lovely American girl and her modern Prince Charming.

The American Weekly is the magazine distributed through a group of great Sunday newspapers and is read by the men, women and young people in more than 8,000,000 homes from coast to coast.

The manufacturer who associates his product and company name with this influence is tying in with the greatest known force in advertising.

us agreed that he had been at fault, that if he had played the ball safely he would have captured the ball, the freakish bounce notwithstanding. Hack was credited with his fourth single, more singles than any player ever made in a world series game. Greenberg was charged with an error. Schuster's run thus became technically unearned and Hack was not scored with a run batted in.

The Arguments Begin

Persons closer to the play than the official scorers were interviewed and said the ball unquestionably had hit some object—that Greenberg did not have a chance to stop it.

There were arguments that the scorers should not violate a precedent by changing their rulings. Scorers, like umpires, usually stand on their rulings, even tho they may be convinced by a preponderance of evidence they have erred. In regular seasons, the official score often changed after talks with players involved. But this was different.

The scorers agreed, after the evidence was in that Greenberg had been improperly cast in the goat's role. They ruled that Hack had hit a double and that Greenberg, the great Greenberg, had not erred.

As one of the three official scorers, who joined with his two colleagues, in unanimously charging Greenberg with an error, this observer, never suspecting that whether or not a ball bounced as the science of physics says it should bounce, could mean so much, got some relief by joining in another unanimous vote changing the ruling.

The narrative of this memorable baseball game, longest in history in point of time—3 hours and 28 minutes—in which more players participated than in any other world series game—38 as compared with the former tops of 29—starts with the first run of the game being forced home on a base on balls. On from there the tale is of a four run rally by the Cubs in the fifth inning to become a 5 to 1 Chicago lead with a run added in the sixth inning.

Injury Stops Passeau

For a time it appeared the game would proceed to a more or less routine finish—an easy Cub victory for Claude Passeau and the Cubs. This reckoning began to crumble when it became apparent that Passeau continued to suffer from an injured pitching hand, hurt in the sixth inning.

Thereafter until the happy finish, it became terrifically appalling to Chicago partisans predominant in the stands packed with fans whose cash had lifted receipts to a new world series high.

In the seventh inning Passeau was obliged to withdraw and before his replacement, Hank Wyse, could end the inning the Cubs' 5 to 1 lead had paled to 5 to 3.

Anxiety lessened when the Cubs made the score 7 to 3 with two runs in the seventh, the second one forced home on a base on balls cast by Tommy Bridges, twice conqueror of the Cubs in the 1935 world series.

Then came the deluge in the eighth in which the Tigers made three runs to knock out Wyse. The score was Chicago 7, Detroit 5, as Ray Prim took over the Cub pitching job. The first out was accomplished on a diving catch by Harry Lowrey. But the sixth run got home after Lowrey's sterling effort. Up stepped Greenberg, who had won the second game of the series with a homer. Hank ran Prim to a count of three balls and two strikes. Then the ex-army captain drove the ball thru a cross wind of gale force, a homer onto the catwalk beyond the left field.

Borowy to the Rescue

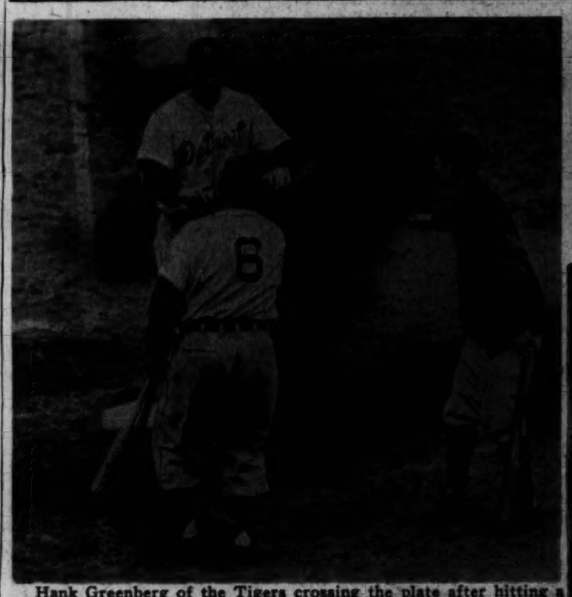
HANK SCORES AGAIN—THE WINNING PUNCH—A HAPPY CONCLUSION



Hank Greenberg of the Tigers crossing the plate after hitting a home run in the eighth inning of yesterday's sixth world series game in Wrigley field. Teammate Roy Cullenbine and the Detroit batboy welcome Greenberg with the run that tied the score at 7 to 7 and sent the game into extra innings.

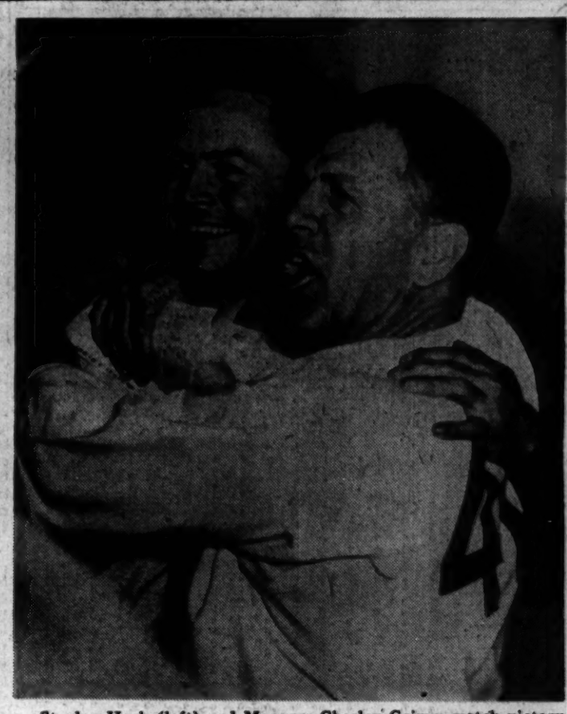
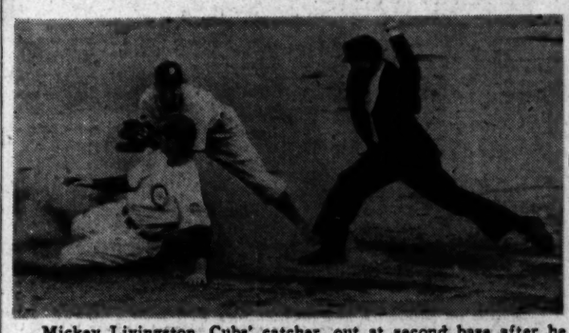
Billy Schuster, Stanley Hack, and Hank Borowy (above) formed the winning combination in yesterday's game. Schuster, who ran for Frank Secory, a pinch hitter, in the 12th inning, scored on Hack's double. Borowy received credit for the victory. Below: Schuster is scoring 12th inning run that squared the series at three victories apiece.



Stanley Hack (left) and Manager Charley Grimm match victory smiles in dressing room after the game. The veteran Cub third baseman not only made the hit that drove in the winning run, but came up with four hits in five times at bat and scored a run. These long time teammates had a happy reunion at third base after Schuster had scored the winning run in 8 to 7 victory before 41,708 fans.



Mickey Livingston, Cubs' catcher, out at second base after he tries to advance after Skeeter Webb, Tiger infielder, made a throw to First Baseman Rudy York in the second inning. Tiger catcher Paul Richards took the rebound from the boards behind first base and threw to Webb in time to catch Livingston. The umpire is Jocko Conlan.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

A SALUTE to Stanley Hack, a Cub who delivers when the chips are down. . . . It was Hack who yesterday put his team in front in the fifth inning with a single when the bases were jammed. . . . And it was Hack who again delivered in the 12th with the blow that broke up one of the wildest games in world series history. . . . The contest set a record for number of players used. . . . Each team employed 19. . . . The traffic between both benches and home plate looked like State and Madison at the rush hour. . . . The game also broke the time record for a world series engagement. . . . The previous mark was two hours and 54 minutes in the 1941 event, but when Hank Greenberg retrieved Hack's drive that got away from him in the 12th inning, three hours and 28 minutes had elapsed. . . .

The Cubs charged into their dressing room with as much spirit as if they had won the series. . . . Manager Grimm's first words were praise for Hank Borowy, the winning pitcher, who came back with only an overnight rest. . . . Hank worked six innings Sunday. . . . Borowy said he had better control yesterday than he had Sunday, especially against Greenberg. . . . Grimm also gave Hack a heavy pat on the back for his timely single. . . . Hack said he banged a low curve ball on a hit and run play. . . . Bill Schuster, who raced from first to home on the drive, said he never had run as fast in his life before. . . . Len Merullo had two cuts on his left arm where he was spiked by Joe Hoover in a play at second base in the 11th inning. . . . Claude Passeau's third finger on his right hand was black and blue from a split nail incurred in fielding Jimmy Outlaw's line drive in the sixth. . . . He said he was unable to control his pitches thereafter. . . . The Cubs will not work out today, Grimm said. . . . They will put in appearance at the park for their tickets to tomorrow's game and call it a day. . . .

The Tigers were crestfallen when they reached their dressing room. . . . Nobody spoke for several minutes. . . . Manager O'Neill announced that Hal Newhouser, who beat the Cubs Sunday, will return to the mound tomorrow. . . . The first Tiger to speak was Cullenbine who complained about the official scoring on Hack's game winning single. . . . He said Greenberg should not have been charged with an error. . . . The ball obviously took a bad hop that cleared Hank's head, Cullenbine declared. . . . Greenberg went to the shower without speaking a word or without having any one speak to him. . . . He eventually spoke up to say he never had a chance to field Hack's drive. . . . This was cleared up last night when the official scorers decided to give Hack a double and Greenberg a clean bill in the field. . . . O'Neill said the Tigers got several bad breaks. . . . He mentioned in particular Charles Hostetler's fall when he rounded third on his way home in the seventh.

Lon Warneke, one of the most popular players who ever has worn a Cub uniform, will be seen in new baseball attire next season, if his plans materialize. . . . Warneke, who turned in two victories for the Cubs in the 1935 world series, will begin a career as an umpire next spring. . . . He is negotiating with President Clarence Rowland for a contract to work in the Pacific Coast league. . . . Lon has definite opinions about an umpire's job. . . . Unlike some major league players, he says he never has met an official who had fixed prejudices against certain athletes or clubs. . . . Umpires are human, and they occasionally call one wrong, but they are right 98 per cent of the time, he opines. . . . Players who habitually protest decisions are trying to cover up their weaknesses or mistakes, he observes. . . . That's especially true of pitchers, he says. . . . Hank Greenberg won't have to worry about a job when his playing days with the Tigers are over. . . . He has purchased a Ford agency in Brooklyn. . . . Claude Passeau clung to his long standing superstition before yesterday's world series game. . . . As always, he refused to pose for camera men on the day he is scheduled to pitch. . . . One-eyed Connelly's career as a gate attendant for Andy Frain was brief. . . . It began Saturday and ended yesterday after he refused Owner P. K. Wrigley admission to the park. . . . When the Cub president attempted to identify himself, Connelly replied, "Nuts," which was the last word he spoke as an employe. . . . He wasn't fired, exactly. . . . The management requested his resignation. . . .

Two of baseball's all-time great shortstops arrived at Wrigley field yesterday almost simultaneously—Dick Bartell of the Giants, Cubs, Tigers, and others, and Dave Bancroft of the Phillies and Giants. . . .

Big Leaguers Rally Behind Chandler; Kill Ouster Rumor

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The majority of the big league baseball magnates assembled hastily yesterday in an attempt to stamp out the undercover campaign being carried on against their new $50,000 per year commissioner—Senator Albert [Happy] Chandler.

The hurriedly called meeting, held in Wrigley Field yesterday morning, resulted in an official announcement that there was no basis for published reports that an effort would be made to buy off the commissioner's seven-year contract.

Happy Still Smiles

And the commissioner who attended yesterday's sixth world series game, merely smiled and spoke softly when asked if he could name the ringleaders in the anti-Chandler movement. He said he prefers not to think that any of his 16 employers are involved.

After the meeting, at which the two New York clubs and Washington were not represented, copies of a prepared statement were passed out and beyond this none of the baseball officials would comment. The statement follows:

"Following stories appearing in today's press, stating that baseball owners, dissatisfied with the conduct of the commissioner's office, were considering the purchase of his contract, an informal meeting of the club representatives present at the world series was held this morning. The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the men present: There is no basis of fact to the story."

Agrees to Announcement

Before making any announcement of the meeting and the action taken, the owners, thru President Ford Frick of the National league, contacted Chandler. Until then he hadn't heard of the latest development in the smear campaign. He agreed that there was no objection on his part to public announcement of the meeting.

Later Chandler pointed out to newspapermen that he has a seven year contract locked in his safe and that this is not his maiden venture in business. He also laughed off the idea of resigning.

He was named after Larry MacPhail of the Yankees had talked to the 16 club representatives in a session so secret that even the two major league presidents were not invited. MacPhail was not around yesterday, having returned to New York after the close of the series games in Detroit.

Frick Makes It Clear

President Frick who engineered the movement for the special meeting as soon as he learned of the we-will-buy-him-off report, declared with emphasis that the statement as given out was a cover-up. He also repeated that he never had announced his candidacy for the $50,000 a year job. A campaign was conducted in his behalf last winter and it failed, thus arousing rumors that his backers are working off their frustration at the expense of the gentleman from Kentucky.

Frick also mentioned that because of the Giants not being represented at the meeting he had made a telephone call to learn that club's sentiment. With the answer to the call and the expressions of the seven clubs on hand, Frick said that his league was unanimous in Chandler's behalf.

Incidentally, Chandler could have gone on the baseball payroll last May but he informed the men who are going to pay him that $50,000 per for seven years that he didn't want their money until he resigned his senatorship.

Corps of Clerks Awaits Rush

How to Get Tickets

Sale—Starts at 8 a. m. today and continues until all the 36,000 box and grandstand reserved seats are sold. Only cash accepted.

Place—Wrigley field. Box seats on sale at 18 windows on Addison st., near Clark st. Grandstand seats on sale at 10 windows, Addison st., and Sheffield.

BY EDWARD PRELL

Wrigley field's ticket corridors on Addison st. last night were illuminated by fires crackling inside tubs and garbage cans. At midnight the place was alive with more than 200 half frozen rabid baseball fans of all descriptions and ages. They were there to gain priorities in the long lines which will form at 8 o'clock this morning before 28 ticket windows.

What is all this insanity about? It's the cash sale of 36,000 tickets for tomorrow's seventh and deciding game of the world series between the Cubs and Tigers.

Upstairs, behind drawn blinds and locked gates, were Owner P. K. Wrigley, Ticket Manager George Doyle, and a corps of clerks making ready for the riotous rush for tickets. They were prepared to stay all night.

There'll Be No Time Out

Doyle said that once the sale starts there will be no time out until the last ticket has been clutched by an eager purchaser.

Wrigley, natty in a brown suit and sporting the Cubs' world series lapel pin, said he was attending to the wants of his own "personal customers and rooters." He explained these numbered those fans who are regulars in lean seasons as well as the fat ones.

In the absence of police, Andy Frain and all the ushers of his organization he could round up were stationed outside the Wrigley field gates last night. Andy sent a hurry-up call to his uniformed men who were working at the Marigold Garden fights and at the ice revue in the Coliseum.

Keep All Night Vigil

Frain was kept busy bobbing his head in all directions trying to answer questions of all descriptions by fans who strolled by or staked claims to stations near the ticket windows. One fellow said he was a Cub stockholder and inquired concerning special consideration. Another one, from Waukegan, offered Andy a six pound fish if he could use his influence. Frain and his ushers were prepared to stay up all night, then continue thru the day, until the sale is ended. He estimated that by 8 a .m. 35,000 to 40,000 fans will be storming the Cubs' park.

Most comfortable of the all-night gentry was Francis Richey, a fireman who lives at 5359 Irving Park blvd. Francis brought along his fireproof coat and reclined in a cot. Others in his party were George Hill, proprietor of a gasoline station at Irving Park blvd. and Western av; Andy J. Hill, a cousin, and Curtis Moore, both from Forest City, Ia.

They're an Ingenious Lot!

Ed Redmer of Park Ridge and his brother, Will, of Norwood Park, brought along their wives and a sister, Beverly; Don Lease, 15, and Bob Denney, 16, pupils at Taft High school, nonchalantly played rummy while sitting on the cold concrete. In another group were George Hayaski, Roy Yamada, Sab Nagata, George Matsumoto, and Pvt. Ernest Komatsa, all from Chicago. The soldier is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky.

Most of the early arrivals came prepared for protection from the cold. The temperature had dropped to the low 40s before midnight. Many brought along newspapers to wrap around their feet and legs. Some took on the appearances of Indians, with blankets wrapped around their shoulders. Others carried wooden boxes to use as chairs.

They established position rights at each window by being branded on the backs of their coats with chalk numerals. It was an orderly crowd. There was no display of liquor bottles. One youngster said he was sitting it out to buy a ticket for his father—a birthday gift from his mother.

CUBS WIN, 8 TO 7, IN 12TH INNING; SQUARE SERIES

Hack's Hit with Two Out Gives Borowy Victory

the Cubs' mettle in the face of chagrin, set in after the score had been tied by Greenberg's shot.

Trout, 4 to 1 victor in the first Chicago game, became the Detroit moundsman at the start of the home eighth. He started off by walking Hack, who moved up on Don Johnson's sacrifice and to third on Lowrey's infield out. Stan was left on third when Phil Cavarretta flied to Greenberg.

At the start of the ninth Hank Borowy, winner of the 9 to 0 series opener and knocked out in the sixth inning of Sunday's Tiger victory, became the fourth Chicago pitcher. Hack threw out Rudy York, first batsman to face Borowy, but Chicago alarm was intense when singles by Jimmy Outlaw and Pinch Batter Bob Maier put runners on third and first with only one out. When Trout grounded to Roy Hughes, Outlaw was trapped between third and home and run down, Hughes to Mickey Livingston to Hack. Maier took second on the run down but Joe Hoover popped to Cavarretta.

Pafko Wastes a Double

Chicago's hopes rose and dunked in the latter half of the ninth. Andy Pafko opened with a sizzling double along the left foul line. Then Bill Nicholson struck out, Dewey Williams bounced to Trout, and Borowy flied to Roger Cramer.

The heat was on again when Cramer singled with one out in the 10th, but it eased when Greenberg grounded into a double play, Merullo to Johnson to Cavarretta.

Hack opened the 10th with his third single, but Johnson struck out after two efforts to sacrifice and Lowrey grounded into a double play.

Both sides went out in order in the 11th. In the first of the 12th Hoover singled with two out but was thrown out, Williams to Merullo, on an attempt to steal second. Merullo was hurt on the play and had to withdraw from the game. Then followed the decisive Cub 12th, details of which previously have been recited.

Details of the way the early runs were made were submerged by the excitement of later events. But here's a synopsis for the record:

Claude Walks in Run

Tigers' second — With one down Passeau walked Roy Cullenbine, York doubled and Outlaw was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Paul Richards walked, forcing Cullenbine across the plate. Virgil Trucks, starting pitcher, popped to Hughes and Skeeter Webb forced Richards.

Cubs' fifth—Livingston singled to center. Hughes beat out a bunt and the bases were loaded when Trucks threw late to third on an attempt to force Livingston on Passeau's bouncer. Hack singled to center, scoring Livingston and Hughes and when the throw-in got away from Richards, Passeau took third and Hack second. The runners held their bases while Johnson grounded out and Lowrey was given an intentional pass to load the bases. Cavarretta then lined a single to center, scoring Passeau and Hack. George Caster replaced Trucks and Pafko popped to Outlaw and Nicholson fanned.

Cubs' sixth — Livingston opened against Bridges with a double and scored on Hughes' double. Passeau flied to Eddie Mayo and Hack supplied his only out of the afternoon with a grounder to Webb.

Passeau Forced to Retire

Tigers' seventh—Hostetler batted for Webb and was safe on Hack's fumble. Mayo grounded out. Cramer singled to left but Hostetler stumbled and fell nearing home and was out, Lowrey to Livingston to Hughes in a run down. Greenberg walked and Cullenbine singled to center, scoring Cramer. Passeau, who had carried on the severely hurt when he knocked down Outlaw's smash with his pitching hand in the sixth inning, retired. York greeted Wyse with a single, Greenberg scoring. Outlaw forced York and the score was Chicago 5, Detroit 3.

Cubs' seventh — Lowrey singled with one down and Cavarretta walked. Pafko flied to Greenberg but Nicholson and Livingston walked to force Lowrey across the plate. All Benton replaced Bridges. Hughes beat out an infield single, scoring Cavarretta, but Wyse struck out.

Tiger Tie It Up

Tigers' eighth—Wyse walked Bob Swift who stopped at third on Hub Walker's pinch double. Hoover was safe when Hack fumbled Hoover's bouncer, Swift scoring. Mayo singled to center, scoring Walker but was out trying to reach second, Pafko to Johnson. Ray Prim replaced Wyse. Lowrey made a circus diving catch of Cramer's blooping fly to center, Hoover scoring. It was at this juncture that Greenberg made his tying homer.

FREDDY DAWSON K.O.'S GOMEZ IN SECOND ROUND

Freddy Dawson, former Catholic Youth organization bantamweight and featherweight champion, knocked out Alvin Gomez in the second round of a scheduled eight round bout in Marigold Gardens last night to the dissatisfaction of the overflow crowd of 1,826 which was under the erroneous impression Gomez was hit with the finishing blow while on the canvas.

Name 23 for Final Feature at Hawthorne

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Hawthorne Park embarked on the final week of its 32-day meeting yesterday and officials announced 23 nominations for the $10,000 added Illinois owners' handicap, featured event of the closing program Saturday.

The race for thorobreds owned by Illinois residents, will be at a mile and one-sixteenth and has drawn sprinters and routers alike, topped by Ruth Sidell's Burgoo Maid, winner of the Hawthorne Sprint handicap last Saturday and S. D. Sidell's St. Jock, the third place horse in that event.

It's a Fast Field

Next in line come Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing, the slow starting but fast finishing 7 year old campaigner; Walmac Farm's Wallflower, a consistent racer; Mrs. A. M. Creech's Tawny Lady; Mrs. Emil Denemark's Fire Dust and Signals Bloke; Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot and Devalue, winner of the Stars and Stripes at Washington Park this season; and Mrs. Frank Harris' Diderod.

Yesterday's ladies' day card drew a crowd estimated at 10,000 which saw a couple of outsiders win the first two races and combine for a $125 daily double.

Bolo's Choice Wins

Anthony Franco's Bean Pot, with Willie Emery up, scored in the opener at $13.80, beating Riskaire, the favorite, and Royal Empress in a field of 12. Mrs. Creech's Cid Play took the second under a good stretch ride by Roderick Hartwick and returned $17.80 for a $2 ticket.

Hyman Friedberg's Bolo's Choice, with J. Dean Jessop in the saddle, won the afternoon's feature race, the $3,000 Whichone purse, by a head from Donna Brand, owned by H. W. Ostle and ridden by Jack Fliter. Graham Brown's Dockie was third in an eight horse field. The winner paid $21.20.

OGMA WINS $2,500 CLAIMING PURSE AT ROCKINGHAM

Salem, N. H., Oct. 8 (AP)—San-Jo farm's Ogma today won the $2,500 Raymond claiming purse before an opening day crowd of 12,500 at Rockingham park. Ogma came from behind in the stretch to win.

Ogma paid $8, $3.80, and $2.60. Marksman paid $4 and $2.80. Mintlock returned $2.60. The handle was $666,559.

MacPHAIL CAN'T TALK ON PHONE; LEADS TO ARREST

Bel Air, Md., Oct. 8 (AP)—Police Chief Raymond Fulker of Bel Air said that Leland S. [Larry] MacPhail, president of the New York Yankees, posted bail of $554 today after he had been arrested on warrants containing two charges of assault and one of disorderly conduct.

Police Magistrate Stanley Spencer signed the warrants today on the complaints of Fulker, Mrs. Anna Towner, chief operator of the Bel Air office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company, and Thomas Dwyer, business manager of the office.

Fulker said the charges were preferred after an altercation which he said happened in the telephone company's office last Friday after MacPhail had complained he was not able to get long distance telephone calls from his country home at Emmerton, Md., near Bel Air. The police chief said the affair occurred during the four hour work stoppage of telephone company employes.

BUCKEYES SHARE BIG 9 SPOTLIGHT WITH GOPHERS

BY WILFRID SMITH

During Western conference football practice last summer Ohio State, defending champion, and Minnesota were nominated as the outstanding contenders for the 1945 championship. Each has started the campaign with two overwhelming victories and while only one was a Big Nine game, Ohio State's 42 to 0 triumph Saturday over Iowa, it still is apparent that the list of outstanding contenders is unchanged.

Ohio State prefaced its conference victory with defeat of Missouri, 47 to 6. Minnesota whipped the same team, 34 to 0, and Saturday ran over Nebraska, 61 to 7. This week the Buckeyes meet Wisconsin while the Gophers have another rest period before opening conference play against Northwestern.

Dick Fisher Stars Again

Both Minnesota and Ohio State have been strengthened in the past fortnight by returning veterans. If these elevens were difficult to beat before, the task now is far greater. Dick Fisher, half back on Ohio State's 1939, 1940, and 1941 teams, starred in the victory over Iowa. Don Steinberg, 195 pound veteran end, probably will be a regular at this position. Robin Friday, quarter back, and Jack Roe, guard, will see service, while Bob McGinnis, a 200 pound guard, can become a regular if his 30 day furlough from the merchant marine is extended.

At Nebraska Saturday, Minnesota started only two men without previous varsity experience, altho in two instances players had attended other schools. John Lundin, Minnesota left end, a freshman from Roosevelt High school, Minneapolis, is only 17 years of age.

Kulbitski Back with Gophers

Bob Graisiger, left guard, is in his fourth campaign. Vic Kulbitski, after one season at Minnesota, played a year at Notre Dame as a navy trainee, and now has two consecutive years as the Gophers' full back. He returned late last season. Wayne [Red] Williams, left half back, is a 23 year old senior who was eligible for competition as a freshman in 1942. Bob Hanzlik, right guard, started his collegiate competition as an end at Wisconsin, playing there in 1942 when the Badgers defeated Ohio State, conference champion. The next season Hanzlik played tackle at Michigan as a navy student.

Fitch Shifts to Tackle

Outstanding in the group of players recently discharged from service are Bob Fitch, John Westrum, and Roy Lilja. Westrum, who weighs 205 pounds, started at right tackle against Nebraska. He enrolled at Minnesota in 1941, but entered the coast guard the next year and was discharged Sept. 24, 1945.

Fitch was an end on Minnesota's 1941 national championship eleven. He now has been moved to tackle by Coach Bernie Bierman. Lilja, a graduate of West High school, Minneapolis, received a letter at Minnesota in 1942. He was substituted at end in the Nebraska game. Other service men who joined the Gopher squad after the Missouri game are Dave Thomas, sophomore half back in 1942; Joe Shields, tackle, and Dave Pulver, guard. Shields and Pulver were freshmen in 1942 at Minnesota.

BUCKEYE SQUAD RELAXES AFTER IOWA VICTORY

Sarringhaus' Injuries Are Not Serious

Columbus, O., Oct. 8 [Special]—Ohio State's battered football team had an easy time of it tonight in a short practice period after viewing pictures of their 42 to 0 victory over Iowa.

Ohio's injury list looked like the team roster, but fortunately none was serious enough to keep any of the regulars out of the game with Wisconsin here next Saturday.

Paul Sarringhaus suffered a broken nose on the first play of the Iowa game and also a twisted ankle but he'll be ready to play, according to team officials. Hal Daugherty, tho removed from the game by a severe leg bruise, was in uniform tonight. Thornton Dixon, a tackle who sat it out on the bench, will be ready as will Russ Thomas, who had trouble with his trick knee.

BADGERS EYE OHIO

Madison, Wis., Oct. 8 [Special]—The University of Wisconsin football squad emerged from its bruising battle with Purdue with few injuries of a serious nature and immediately went to work for its tough fight against Ohio State in Columbus on Saturday.

In facing the power packed Buckeyes, the Badgers should have their full strength. At the present, Jack Mead, with a stiff ankle, and Hank Fricke, with a chest bruise, are sidelined. Ohio's 16 letter men make the Buckeye eleven a top heavy favorite to register its eighth victory of the series Saturday. The Ohioans have won seven to date from the Badgers, the latter taking five. Two contests have ended in ties.

The Badgers today rested the first team, with the reserves getting a brisk drill.

Little hard work is scheduled for the squad except for tomorrow and Wednesday when scrimmage will be the order. Coach Harry Stuhldreher plans few, if any, changes in his starting lineup.

Bancroft is the player usually cited in refutation when St. Louis fans advance Martin Marion as the best shortstop the game has developed. . . . Owner Walter Briggs of the Tigers has refused to accept the resignation of General Manager Jack Zeller, but friends of Zeller say he will take leave of the club Dec. 31. . . . Bucky Harris is expected to succeed him. . . . Zeller has done an excellent job, but he is in declining health. . . . Yesterday was a day of world series memories for Donie Bush on his birthday. . . . On Oct. 8, 1909, he played with the Tigers in the opening game of the world series with the Pirates. . . . In 1927, as manager of the Pirates, he saw the world series end in a Yankee victory on Johnny Miljus' historic wild pitch. . . . Stan Coveleskie, former Cleveland pitcher, left his South Bend filling station long enough to attend yesterday's game. . . . Dizzy Dean showed up at the Palmer House world series headquarters with a 1945 press button—issued by the St. Louis Cardinals.

More players have been used in this series than ever before. . . . Standing room admission sales dropped yesterday to 300. . . . Andy Frain said it was the lightest standing room sale he can remember at a world series. . . . Ray Eliot, head football coach at Illinois, hurried away from the Quarter Back luncheon and was at Wrigley field to see Passeau deliver his first pitch. . . . Gov. Green came prepared for the frigid temperature. . . . He carried a large woolen blanket. . . . Bob Lewis, the Cubs' traveling secretary, hasn't seen an inning of this series, chained, as he is, to ringing telephones in his office.

The bleacher line numbered 1,000 at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. . . . Just as the ticket window opened, a woman who had been standing for several hours fainted. . . . When revived she demanded her ticket before consenting to go to the first aid room. . . . Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, came to the game with Manager Joe Cronin and President Billy Evans of the Southern association. . . . Witsell, acting adjutant general, wired his appreciation to the Gillette company and Mutual for beaming the play by play report to American troops thruout the world. . . . No matter which version of the scoring you accept, there's little doubt that Passeau's one hit game in Detroit Friday was tops for world series competition. . . . The Tribune reporters who covered the 1906 series, in which Ed Reulbach generally is credited with a one hit performance against the White Sox, gave the Sox two hits. . . . Following is an excerpt from the story of Charles Dryden: "Mr. Reulbach, the banker's son, choked the White Sox with two hits and one smokeless run. Some authorities allow the Sox one hit. The disputed swat came in the fourth inning. Fielder Jones shot a swift grounder between first and second. Johnny Evers attacked the ball with full speed. It bumped him on his shapely instep and squirted into the boxes back of first. Jones reached second on the swipe." . . . And this from Sy Sanborn's account of the game: "Reulbach allowed the Sox one clean hit and a scratch double. The fourth inning was opened by Jones with a smash to right. Evers partially blocked the hit, but it bounded away into the crowd, allowing Jones to reach second." . . . The play by play also credited the Sox with two hits. . . . There were official scorers in those days the same as now, but their decisions were not universally accepted. . . . Often the box scores in morning papers would disagree. . . . Dryden and Sanborn were recognized as outstanding baseball reporters. . . .

Tommy Bridges, who relieved George Caster on the mound for Detroit in the seventh, won two games from the Cubs in the 1935 series. . . . The Tiger outfield continued yesterday to be the weakest fielding unit this department ever has seen in a world series. . . . Which goes to prove you can't judge a player's worth by the box score. . . . Mickey Livingston was the man who touched off Cub rallies in both the fifth and sixth innings. . . . The temperature in the press box at 3 o'clock was 48 degrees, only two notches higher than at the opening game in Detroit. . . . When Charles Hostetler stumbled rounding third and was tagged out by Hughes in the seventh the fans knew they had seen everything in the way of baseball comedy. . . . It was more than they had bargained for at these prices. . . .

4 Draw Fines for Scalping Series Tickets

Four men were fined yesterday in Town Hall court before Judge Edward P. Luczak after they were accused of ticket scalping at the Cubs ball park over the week-end.

Charles Pirelli, 50, of 2906 Lowe av., who, according to Detective Edward Haviland, was selling $1.20 bleacher tickets for $5 each, was fined $25 and costs.

Arthur Bertolani, 28, of 4041 W. 58th pl., was fined $25 and costs. He maintained he did not attempt to sell them for more than the printed price.

Graydon Hardcastle, 39, of 5910 N. Clark st., a clerk, and John Baratto, 27, of West Terre Haute, Ind., were fined in ex-parte hearings.

All four men fined were charged with disorderly conduct. Albert Jacobson, 48, of 1235 S. Homan av., seized Sunday, and William Griffin, 32, of 1906 N. Drake av., arrested Saturday, who allegedly offered to sell Haviland a bleacher seat for $10, were granted continuances until Oct. 16.

Judge Luczak ordered Louis Pike, owner of Pike's Texaco station, 3553 N. Clark st., to appear in court Oct. 26 after Abram Neider, 43, of 3608 Sunnyside av., described by Haviland as a known scalper, said he rented the premises from Pike for $25 a month.

Holiday on Ice Wins Plaudits at Coliseum

BY JAMES SEGRETI

When the first of Chicago's fall and winter ice productions, "Holiday on Ice," opened in the Coliseum, not a single spill jinxed the performers, an omen to the cast that its stay in Chicago would be successful. The hoodoo thus far has failed to glide toward the presentation, and nightly performances are still attracting large, well satisfied crowds.

The star of "Holiday on Ice" is Dorothy Goos, 17 year old blonde skater, who teams with Murray Galbraith, and the pair receives able support from a long line of pretty, capable skaters in the chorus, beautifully costumed in all acts. Admiring fans of Miss Goos predict she will reach the stardom attained by the queen of ice shows, Sonja Henie.

Another outstanding performer, Peggy Fahey, wins considerable applause with a strip tease, an act which calls for as many encores as Gypsy Rose Lee commanded in a floor show. The cast also presents a bobby sox number, complete with jitterbugging, lively jive music, Sloppy Joe sweaters, and Ray Frost as the Great Swoonatra.

The Ink Spots, widely known on stage and radio, blend their voices in another act on the program, and they prove as pleasing in the ice show as they do behind footlights.

Stunt performances are by George Von Birgelen, noted Swiss skater, who glides about the arena on both stilts and standard racing blades. Comedy acts are supplied by two youngsters, Ring and Lamb, who present a sailor act and later join another company comedian, Phil Hiser.

Other headliners include Twinkle Watts, the juvenile skating and bowling wizard, the Everett sisters, Tony Le Mac, and McGowan and Mack, veteran duo in an apache dance number.

The show, which has been drawing nightly crowds of 3,000, will continue thru Oct. 21.

DAHLSTROM IS LOST TO HAWKS, HOCKEY; RETIRES

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 8 [Special]—Cully Dahlstrom voluntarily retired from hockey today. The veteran Chicago Blackhawks' center, who came to the team eight seasons ago, told Manager Johnny Gottselig that he was certain after a week of strenuous workouts that he could not keep pace with the speedy forwards assembled at the Regina training camp.

Doc Romnes, manager of the Kansas City American league club, immediately offered Dahlstrom a position on the Hawks' farm team, but he declined, telling Romnes that he was hanging up his skates for good. Dahlstrom is from Minnesota, and was one of the few major league professional hockey players born in the United States.

ARMOUR BLAMED BY POLICE CHIEF IN AUTO DEATH

Driving in Wrong Lane, Witness Testifies

Philip D. Armour Jr., 27, of 1500 Lake Shore dr., member of the meat packing family, was driving south in a northbound traffic lane on the four lane Skokie rd. in Northbrook Sunday when the automobile collision occurred in which Mrs. Myrtle Cooper, 55, of 807 Milburn st., Evanston, was killed, Police Chief John C. Clausen of Northbrook testified at the inquest yesterday.

Mrs. Cooper, widow of Homer H. Cooper, who was a Chicago attorney, was driving north. The two cars collided head-on as Armour was passing a truck about 100 feet south of the Sunset Ridge rd.

On Way to World Series

Armour was on his way to the world series baseball game at Wrigley field. He was charged with reckless driving and will be arraigned in the Northbrook police court at 3 p. m. Oct. 19. He and a passenger in his car, David Bryan, 18, of 621 E. College st., Lake Forest, were in the Evanston hospital yesterday. At the request of Armour's attorneys, Harry B. Sutter and Ferre C. Watkins, the inquest was continued to Oct. 18, when Armour and Bryan are expected to be witnesses.

Armour suffered abrasions on his right arm and a bump on his head. Bryan suffered lacerations and contusions on his face and hands.

Couldn't Estimate Speed

Chief Clausen said he reached the scene five minutes after the accident, at 12:30 p. m. Sunday, and Armour told him "all he could remember was passing a big truck." Armour could not estimate the speed at which he was driving, Clausen said, and Bryan's speech was incoherent because of shock and injuries.

Clausen said skid marks showed that Mrs. Cooper's car slid 40 feet, 9 inches as she applied the brakes. Armour's car made no skid marks.

He said Mrs. Cooper, driving in the northbound inner lane, could not swerve to the right out of the way of Armour's car because of the heavy traffic on the outer lane. There were many cars in both northbound lanes, he said.

TILDEN PUPIL, 17, IS ARRESTED IN RAPE OF GIRL, 17

William Babros, 17, of 4751 S. Seeley av., was arrested yesterday at Tilden High school, where he is a pupil, on complaint of a 17 year old girl that he raped her Sunday night in a prairie at 46th st. and Damen av.

A New York stenographer, 45, reported to police yesterday that one of two sailors who grabbed her as she emerged from a hotel at 172 W. Adams st. Sunday night raped her in the hallway of a nearby building. She was taken to county hospital, where physicians confirmed the fact she had been raped.

Stanton av. police yesterday were seeking a Negro who raped a 31 year old Negro woman in an areaway at 4316 Cottage Grove av. early yesterday and robbed her of $2.

A 19 year old Negro girl, who told police a Negro she knows as Albert Churchill or Robert Bishop raped her in his car in both Gary and Calumet City, Ind., was in county hospital yesterday with two bullet wounds, which she said her assailant inflicted after the second rape.

CATHOLIC VETS HEAD REBUKES HAROLD LASKI

New York, Oct. 8 [Special]—When Harold Laski, British Labor party leader, in a recent radio address "attacked the Vatican, he attacked all religion," Edward T. McCaffrey, national commander of the Catholic war veterans, said tonight in a broadcast.

McCaffrey was allotted broadcasting time to reply to the British Labor leader following the veterans' chief's protest that Laski's references to the Catholic church and to the Vatican were an "insult to millions of God fearing Americans." Laski's broadcast was made to a rally of the Spanish refugee appeal in Madison Square Garden, Sept. 24. Laski allegedly criticized the Catholic church in Spain and the Vatican, blaming on them Spain's mass poverty.

DRIVER ACCUSED OF FLEEING FROM ACCIDENT SCENE

Joseph Sucherman, 40, of 300 S. Hamlin av., a sausage manufacturer, was charged yesterday with reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident in which Fred Ladenthin, 55, of 2020 Kenmore av., was struck by a car Sunday night at Clark st. and Wrightwood av. Ladenthin suffered a possible skull fracture. Sucherman, who denied that his car hit Ladenthin, was arrested after his automobile struck a tree at Lakeview and Wrightwood avs. Elliott Richards of 6737 Champlain av. was chasing Sucherman's car after the accident at Clark st. and Wrightwood av. when Sucherman's auto ran into the tree. Sucherman was released on bond to appear in Safety court Thursday.

Francis Quimet, Friend Lose $1,360 to Hotel Thief

GREEN DEMANDS U.S. GIVE BACK FAIR GROUNDS

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8 [Special]—Protesting against the Illinois state fair grounds being used merely as a "federal junkyard," Gov. Green today appealed to War Secretary Patterson to speed the army's return of the grounds to state control so the 90th annual fair may be held next August.

Green said the extensive repairs that will be necessary to restore the fair grounds to conditions under which it can be used for fairs again after the government having utilized it will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. The army has used the grounds for an air force storage depot since May, 1942.

"Aside from the legal points involved," Green wrote, "I think you will agree that neither the state of Illinois nor the army, when this lease was executed, thought it was to be used for anything but urgent military purposes.

"Certainly we did not contemplate that it would become what many citizens of Springfield are now calling an exalted federal junk yard."

BONUS PETITIONS EXCEED HOPES, BARRETT SAYS

Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett yesterday reported that petitions urging immediate action to pay a state bonus to veterans of World War II. are piling up in his office at a rate far beyond expectations.

Hundreds of letters approving his drive have been received, the attorney general said.

Since Barrett started distribution of the petition forms a state commission, appointed to study the bonus question, has indicated that all of its members favor paying some form of state compensation to Illinoisans for their military service.

If a special session of the legislature is called to consider a bonus, proponents agree that a bond issue would be necessary to finance payment. This would be subject to approval of the voters at the November, 1946, election.

All Chicago area CIO oil workers were back at work yesterday, but because the making of gasoline is a gradual process, full production will not be obtained for several days. No wage negotiations, either with the navy or the oil firms, were being carried on.

The navy completed plans to open offices for the control of the seized refineries in the Insurance Exchange building, 175 W. Jackson blvd. A navy officer, accompanied by two members of the shore patrol, will be assigned to each of the seized plants today.

Altho the navy has designated plant managers as managers for the navy, the officer in each case will represent the navy in administrative matters.

Wages lost for the 6,000 men on strike for 18 days at an average hourly rate of $1.30 total $1,216,800. Gasoline lost at 2½ million gallons a day for the 18 days total 45 million gallons, not counting the lag until full production is resumed. EQUAL FOREIGN SHIP PURCHASE RIGHT ASSAILED

'Pro-British' Morse Opposes Favors

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 — Proposals of the Truman administration to give foreign ship operators equal opportunity with Americans to buy surplus United States merchant vessels were attacked today by Sen. Morse [R., Ore.] as measures "to sell the American merchant marine short."

Sen. Wayne Morse

Morse's blast came at a commerce subcommittee hearing on a senate bill for disposing of 17 billion dollars worth of war built shipping. A bill passed by the house last week contained limitations on the sale of ships to foreigners.

The White House recommendations, submitted in a letter from Reconversion Director Snyder to the committee, included:

1. Removal of all restrictions on the sale of ships to foreigners.

Trade-in Privilege Attacked

2. Permission to foreigners to trade in obsolete for newer vessels on the same terms as Americans.

3. Repeal of a 1934 act requiring products obtained for export under American loans to be carried in United States ships.

Morse said the trade-in recommendation would permit the British to "give us a pile of junk on credit" and to take away modern American ships which would compete in foreign trade with United States flag lines.

"I have been accused of being pro-British," asserted Morse, frequently a supporter of internationalist plans. "But I say that if we accept Mr. Snyder's proposals we will be selling the American merchant marine short. There is no basis for these proposals under the principle of common horse trading."

"Avoid Diplomatic Dishonesty"

Morse said that repeal of the act requiring goods bought with United States loans to be shipped in American vessels would give preference to England, particularly if present negotiations result in large loans to Britain.

"It is apparent that this country will have to give some aid to our recent allies," he said. "But let us avoid the diplomatic dishonesty that surrounded war loans after the last war. We cannot overplay British preferences to the disadvantage of American ship operators."

Morse also urged the subcommittee, of which he is a member, to include provision for the sale of oil tankers at the same rate as dry cargo vessels. The senate bill would set the value of tankers at 75 per cent of their pre-war cost and that of dry cargo ships at 55 per cent.

Tanker Discrimination Assailed

"The thought behind this valuation," he said, "is that tankers would be purchased by large oil companies which could afford the higher rate. This is discriminatory and might result in our being caught in another war without an adequate tanker fleet, as we were in 1941."

Ship operators who testified included W. B. Garner, vice president of the Waterman Steamship company, Mobile, Ala. He urged that nonsubsidized ship operators—those without mail or other federal contracts—be freed of maritime commission regulations on routes and other restrictions in contracts for the purchase of surplus vessels.

N. Y. Central Places Big Rail Order for '46 Delivery

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The New York Central railroad today said contracts had been let for 108,000 tons of rails and angle bars. Approximately 25,000 tons of track accessories will be required to lay the rails. The order was the first large one for 1946 delivery, but equipment circles predicted the Pennsylvania and other large roads would be in the market soon.

Steel Pricing in West Held Key to Output

BY ANTHONY WIRRY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 8—The immediate reconversion problems of Consolidated Steel corporation are being solved successfully, but the long range outlook depends on prices of steel in the west and acceptance of new products, Alden G. Roach, president, said today.

He made his observations at a conference with 18 newspaper reporters who are traveling thruout the country to observe the progress of industry's shift from war to peace.

Alden said the company's reconversion had been expedited because it had continued its peace time business of fabricating structural steel while producing 1 billion dollars of war goods, including 1,200 ships of various types and a large total of guns. Other favorable factors include an abundance of labor and materials and 59 billion dollars of orders on the books.

Include Production of Destroyers

Among other items, these orders provide for the construction of 10 new design 2,200 ton destroyers at the company's Orange, Tex., plant and 10 cargo ships at the Wilmington, Cal., shipyard near Los Angeles. Other work includes reconversion and repair of various kinds of ships and production of new "clippers," 150 foot steel vessels used in tuna fishing.

How the company will fare when the demand for ships drops depends in part upon the success of its railroad equipment production activities, a new field the company is entering to diversify its operations and stabilize employment.

The company is experimenting with a new type of refrigerator car made of alloy steel and aluminum which is designed to provide lighter weight and lower maintenance costs. Pacific Fruit Express and Sante Fe railroad have ordered two cars each. The Santa Fe cars will be of a new design.

Says Business Could Double

Discussing the relation between steel prices and the industrialization of the Pacific coast, Alden said if a lower price could be obtained from eastern producers his company could easily "double its business." Alden said his company, largest independent fabricator of steel in the west, was paying $64.60 a ton for steel tho the price in Pittsburgh is $40 a ton. This low price probably could be made available to western fabricators if government financed steel plants at Fontana, Cal., and Provo, Utah, went into full production under private control, Alden said.

The company had a war time peak employment of 42,000 in 1944, compare dwith 1,000 before the war and 30,000 at the present time. In another year, however, employment is expected to drop to 10,000 workers. The company has nine plants, seven in California, and two in Texas. Seven more will be added if stockholders of Western Pipe and Steel company accept an offer of $6,217,373 by Consolidated for all the assets of Western.

NEW STEEL SCHEDULE CUT RESULTS PARTLY FROM COAL DISPUTES

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Steel production will drop again this week, partly a result of labor troubles in the coal fields interfering with movement to the steel mills.

The American Iron and Steel institute estimated the mills would operate this week at 73.5 per cent of capacity compared with 79.7 per cent of capacity last week. A month ago the mills produced at 80.3 per cent and a year ago at 96.9 per cent.

This week's operating rate was the lowest since late August when schedules dropped to 69.9 per cent of capacity because of widespread interruptions of work after the Japanese war ended.

FISH PRICES FALL ON SUPPLY GAIN, INCREASED MEAT

A marked shrinkage in demand, increased supplies, and removal of price ceilings on Canadian caught fresh water fish have combined to bring fish to Chicago consumers at prices as much as 50 cents a pound lower than the war peak, fish retailers and wholesalers agreed yesterday.

Eliminations and reductions of ration point values on many meats have reduced fish demand about 40 per cent, asserted Max Granat, business agent of the Chicago Retail Fish Dealers' association.

October and November produce good catches for Great Lakes fishermen, he said, and abundant supplies have been reaching the markets, in contrast with war time shortages.

E. M. Concannon, president of the Chicago Wholesale Fish Dealers' association, predicted that fish prices would decline further until winter months, when fishing is difficult.

ASSERTS A. & P. DID NOT TRY TO CONTROL CO-OP

Danville, Ill., Oct. 8 (AP)—Bruce McDaniel, a witness for New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, testified today that its subsidiary did not attempt to dominate a coöperative of fruit and vegetable growers to control a large amount of produce.

A. & P. attorneys called witnesses in an effort to disprove a government charge that the company, thru its subsidiary, Atlantic Commission company, was secretly responsible for organizing in 1940 the fresh fruit and vegetable coöperative.

The government contended the cooperative was formed to control a large amount of produce so the A. & P. and its produce buying subsidiary could dispose of it to outside trade on their own terms.

One Pullman Strike Ended, Another Starts

Within an hour after normal production of troop sleeper trains had been resumed yesterday morning at the Haskell and Barker plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company at Michigan City, Ind., 1,361 employes were again prevented from working by a strike.

The employes had returned to work because local 951, United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union [CIO] agreed last Friday to withdraw its picket line. More than 300 returned during the picketing last week.

Yesterday's strike occurred when 50 welders, who had just finished welding one troop sleeper, decided not to work with 48 welders who returned during the strike. The company then discharged the 50 and the plant was closed when other employes refused to work.

The original strike began when the CIO union established the picket line to force the national labor relations board to hasten a representation vote in which it seeks to oust local 290, AFL Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, as employe representative.

Three Chicago Strikes End

More than half of 8,000 employes returned to General Motors' Electro-Motive diesel division at McCook, strike-bound since Sept. 28. At a meeting Sunday 1,500 members of local 91719, UAW-CIO, heeded an appeal of Joseph Mattson, regional director of the CIO union, and voted to end the strike. The management said it still does not know why the strike was called.

The A. Finkl and Sons company, which has its main sales offices at 2011 Southport av., resumed production of steel forging in its three plants, closed by strikes since Sept. 24. About 630 returned to work.

A strike which started Sept. 5 at the Bucyrus-Monighan company, 931 N. Kilpatrick av., ended when its 160 employes returned to work.

LULL IN DETROIT TIE-UPS

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8 (AP)—This automotive capital was without a major strike today for the first time in six weeks, but the CIO United Auto Workers completed the ground work for an even broader tie-up should its 30 per cent wage increase demand fail of adjustment.

The union filed a petition with the national labor relations board for a strike vote Nov. 7 in 51 plants of the Ford Motor company. The board already has approved strike votes in General Motors and Chrysler plants.

Wage negotiations between the CIO and General Motors were resumed this afternoon. The corporation already has flatly rejected the wage demand. Negotiations with Chrysler are scheduled for resumption tomorrow. No date has been set for wage discussions with Ford.

Termination of the six week strike at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel plant, Ford supplier, and the foremen's strike at the Hudson Motor Car company brought thousands back to their jobs. The 500 Hudson foremen made 6,000 production workers idle, and the walkout of 4,500 at Kelsey-Hayes kept 50,000 Ford workers idle.

Longshoremen Fail to Return

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The thousands of longshoremen whose strike has tied up shipping in New York harbor for the last week failed to return to work as scheduled today. The AFL International Longshoremen's association local, with more than 35,000 idle, adopted a policy of "no contract, no work, and the government can step in at any time it gets ready."

HALSEY GROUP PUTS BIG BELL ISSUE ON SALE

Winner Over East on Debenture Bid

Seventy-five million dollars of Southwestern Bell Telephone company debentures were won in competitive bidding yesterday by an investment syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago securities underwriter. The securities and exchange commission gave quick clearance to the deal and the issue was reoffered about an hour after the company made the award.

Halsey's winning of the big block of 40 year 2¾ per cent debentures was regarded as signifying a trend away from long eastern domination of Bell system financing operations. It was the second time in the last few months that a Halsey group has captured financing of an American Telephone and Telegraph company subsidiary.

The virtual monopoly by large eastern underwriters continued even after SEC ruled in 1941 that public utility issues must be offered at competitive bidding.

Obtained Big Issue in July

Halsey first made inroads on the eastern business last July when it won a 45 million dollar issue of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company 40 year 2¾ per cent debentures. Halsey, which in size and capital funds is on a par with big New York houses, was active along with other midwestern firms in urging SEC to put utility issues on a competitive basis.

The Southwestern Bell issue, due Oct. 1, 1985, was awarded on the Halsey bid of 101.28 and was reoffered at 101.83. A group led by Morgan Stanley & Co., big New York underwriter, was second bidder with 101.1199.

Morgan Stanley twice this year won big A. T. & T. debenture issues, one for 175 million dollars, the other for 160 millions. The 175 million issue was the largest ever sold thru competitive bidding. In both cases a group headed jointly by Halsey and Mellon Securities corporation was second bidder.

Will Retire Mortgage Bonds

Southwestern Bell will apply proceeds of the financing toward the retirement of an equal amount of mortgage bonds. After the redemptions the new debenture issue will comprise the sole funded debt of the company. The only other outstanding capitalization consists of 183 millions in common stock, almost entirely owned by A. T. & T.

Eastman, Dillon & Co. yesterday sold 25,000 shares of American Bantam Car company $1 par common stock at 6⅜, less a concession of 50 cents a share to dealers.

Announce Modernization Plans for Loop Building

A $50,000 modernization program, including air conditioning for the banking floor, was announced yesterday for the 16 story office building at 127 N. Dearborn st., by Leonard Downie & Co., manager of the property. Downie was sole broker in the recent sale of the building by the New England Mutual Life Insurance company to a syndicate for $425,000. Built in 1893 by the late Gov. Altgeld, it later housed the now defunct American Bond and Mortgage company for several years.

Traction Solution Nearer; Surface Lines Price Agreed

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Solution of Chicago's traction problems apparently came closer yesterday when attorneys for the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority and for six security holders' committees reported in federal District court that they had agreed on a price at which the surface lines would be sold to the authority.

Judge Michael L. Igoe received the agreement and said he would hear arguments and objections next Monday. The offer to the security holders is $88,100,000. Of this sum, 75 millions will be paid direct by the authority and the remainder will come out of funds now in the surface lines treasury.

Bonds Rise in Price

La Salle street took heed of the agreement. First mortgage bonds of the Chicago railways, a subsidiary, which would be paid in full, sold as high as 92 on the prospects and other securities in the plan sold at comparable prices.

It is also contemplated the authority will purchase the elevated lines for about 12 millions, and its lawyers announced they would at once start negotiations for an agreed and detailed proposal with the "L" company.

The surface lines compact was buttressed with reiterations from investment banking firms that they were willing to lend the authority 90 millions to make the purchase and set up a working cash fund.

In court, Atty. Werner W. Schroeder for the authority said the settlement involved the "mutual washing out of claims" among the city, the authority, and the street car company.

Credit Given to Igoe

Schroeder also said that Judge Igoe, by inviting Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly to get together on a solution had planted a seed that had "borne an abundant harvest." The legislation creating the authority had the approval of the mayor and the governor.

In addition to the surface and "L" agreements, the court is to hear next Monday a proposal of the surface lines management that it be permitted to ask for bids on 480 new buses and 400 new street cars, to cost about 15 million dollars. The lines have the cash to pay for them.

Stocks Surge to New Peaks for 8½ Years

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Active demand for steels, metals, rails, and assorted industrials today sent the stock market average to a new high for eight and one-half years. Strength also appeared in some aircrafts and utilities, farm implements, chemicals, oils, and specialties. Extreme gains were shaded by selling in the last hour but most issues held up.

Buying was attributed to a desire to invest idle money, a favorable tax outlook, and a belief that labor's wage demands could not be accomplished without raising the price of manufactured products — thus causing some inflation.

Turnover Is Larger

Of 1,000 issues traded, 585 advanced, 207 declined, and 208 were unchanged. Turnover was 1,780,000 shares against 1,420,000 Friday. The Associated Press 60 stock composite rose 0.3 to 72.2—highest since March 31, 1937. Industrials were up 0.4 to 97.0—a peak since Aug. 19, 1937.

Several stocks set new highs for 1945 or longer, including United States Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda, Kennecott, Silver King, Loew's, and Pepsi-Cola. Motors were up substantially most of the time but Chrysler ended off ¼ and General Motors unchanged.

BONDS EDGE HIGHER

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Secondary rails led the bond market in a small scale advance today. Leaders' gains ranged to about 2 points with a few up 4. Numerous issues were backward, however, and trading was slow. Sales were $6,130,000, compared with $6,100,000 last Friday.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS

Prices advanced in turnover of 40,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most active stocks included Libby, McNeill, up ¾ to a 1945 peak of 10½; Asbestos Manufacturing up, ¼ to 4½, also a new high; Radio, up ⅜, and Chicago corporation and Peabody Coal, both unchanged.

People and Events

J. Harold Merrick has been elected a vice president of Rheem Manufacturing company, the firm announced yesterday. He became associated with Rheem in 1943 as general attorney and recently was named president of a new subsidiary, Rheem Manufacturing Company of Brazil. He was with Remington Rand, Inc., and International Telephone and Telegraph company before going to Rheem.

The 34th annual meeting of the American Association of Port Authorities will be held tomorrow thru Friday in the Palmer House. Government officials will discuss prospects for foreign commerce, and a panel discussion will be held on the revival of coastwise, intercoastal, and Great Lakes shipping.

The 50th anniversary of George T. Schmidt, Inc., manufacturer of marking tools and machinery, will be observed Saturday with a dinner and dance for employes and guests in the Sovereign hotel.

MIDWEST CORN PROCESSOR RUN BY EASTERNERS

Directors, Officers Live in New York

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

The 120 million dollar Corn Products Refining company, with general offices at 17 Battery pl., New York, carries on a vast annual business based largely on corn — a leading crop of middle western farmers. Its three major plants are located in the middle west. By far the larger number of its approximately 5,000 employes works in the middle west.

The roster of the company's 14 directors, however, discloses that not one has an address outside of New York City. Not one comes from the middle west in which the company has its roots. Further, not one of the company's 10 listed executives has an address other than New York and it was learned that the only outside executive is an assistant treasurer in the company's Chicago offices at 333 N. Michigan av.

Largest Plant in Argo

With its largest plants, the source of its principal raw material, and most of its employes all in the middle west, Chicago financial interests asserted Chicago would be ideal for the location of this important company's headquarters.

Corn Products' largest plant is in Argo, Ill.—in Chicago's backyard. It is the largest corn products mill in the world and, besides its processing activities, has a large research department which also was said to be directed from New York. The Argo plant employes as many as 2,500 persons.

The other two big middle western plants are in Pekin, Ill., employing 1,250 to 1,500 persons, and in North Kansas City, Mo., with nearly 1,000 employes. The three big plants have a combined corn grinding capacity of 180,000 bushels daily.

Recovers 5 Big Products

The company realizes five major products from the grinding and refining of corn—starch, sirup, sugar, oil, and cattle and chicken feed. Its principal customers are the following industries: candy, ice cream, baking, textile, laundry, canning and preserving, brewing, rayon, meat packing, baking powder, soap, paint, chewing gum, and chicken and cattle feed. In a number of these, Chicago companies lead the country.

Location of Corn Products in Chicago would not only bring the management close to the center of its operations, but would locate it close to many of its best customers.

George M. Moffett is chairman of the board and president and Morris Sayre is executive vice president.

OPEN ANTI-TRUST TRIAL OF LARGE FILM PRODUCERS

Three Judge Court Hears Seven Year Old Case

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The seven year old anti-trust suit against eight of the nation's largest motion picture producers began before a specially appointed court today.

Robert L. Wright, assistant attorney general, asked the court to order "the divorcement of the theater operating business from the production and distribution activities of the five integrated organizations," which he named as Paramount Pictures, Loew's, Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation, Warner Brothers Pictures, and 20th Century-Fox Film corporation.

"These companies," he asserted, "together with the three other major companies—United Artists, Columbia, and Universal — control about 65 per cent of all pictures produced from selection of the story to showing in the theater."

Entire Case Documentary

Wright asked the three man court—District Judges John W. Bright and Henry W. Goddard and Circuit Judge Augustus N. Hand—to issue an injunction against what he termed "unfair and discriminatory distribution practices such as compulsory block booking and blind selling of feature films" by United Artists, Columbia, and Universal. He said the government's case would be entirely documentary.

In addition to the eight producers, 25 subsidiary and associate corporations and 132 individuals, including officers and directors, were named in the complaint. The suit began in 1938, but the government agreed to withhold prosecution during a three year period, now expired, as the result of a consent decree.

Operators Held Independent

The large court room was half filled by defense attorneys and their assistants, including Joseph M. Proskauer, John W. Davis, Whitney North Seymour, and John Caskey.

Seymour, counsel for Paramount, said the motion picture industry actually was highly competitive and that many of the procedures termed monopolistic by the government were necessary under copyright law.

Seymour said the government in effect was asking Paramount to divest itself of 63 million dollars worth of exhibition interests, and asserted "a fatal weakness in the government's case is the lumping together of all the defendants' operations when actually they operate independently."

He asserted the right of a company to integrate its various operations was well established and that relief sought by the government would be of no help to the public.

ILLINOIS UTILITY

I wish information on Central Illinois Electric and Gas company common stock, traded over the counter.—F. A.

The company serves with electricity more than 60 Illinois communities, the largest of which is Rockford. About 60 per cent of total revenues is derived from electric operations, and the remainder from gas, bus service, water, and steam heat. Freeport is supplied with gas only.

Central Illinois E. & G. common, of which 400,000 shares of $15 par are outstanding, was quoted recently at 24 bid, 25¼ asked. On the basis of original cost of electric and gas properties, which doubtless is less than present reproduction cost, tangible book value of the common stock as of last Dec. 31 was only $5.10 a share. Including $3,568,574 unamortized excess of book value over original cost, the book value was about $14 a share. This excess is being written off by annual charges to surplus income after dividends.

Common share earnings, including federal tax savings due to filing consolidated returns with the company's former parent, Consolidated Electric and Gas, were: 1944, $2.05; 1943, $2.33; 1942, $3.06; with an earlier range of $2.50 in 1940 to $1.54 in 1938. A pro forma income account, eliminating the consolidated tax savings and giving effect to refinancing last April, shows net income of $1.93 a common share in 1944 and $1.99 in 1943.

Outstanding are 14 million dollars first mortgage 3 per cent bonds, 1975; and 40,000 $4.10 cumulative preferred shares.

BOOST CEILINGS ON HOGS TODAY; ARRIVALS FALL

Effective today, the ceiling price for barrow and gilt hogs in the Chicago market will be $14.85 a hundred pounds instead of $14.75, and the ceiling for packing sows, stags, and boars will be $14.10, instead of $14, the office of price administration announced yesterday. The increase had been scheduled for next Friday but was moved ahead because the delay was curtailing receipts at many selling points, officials said.

Thirteen other markets also got an increase of 10 cents, and 29 were raised 5 cents.

Farmers shipped only 1,500 hogs to the open market at Chicago yesterday, altho 5,000 came direct to packers, a disruption of normal distribution caused by the change in ceilings, trade members said. The scant supply cleared quickly at ceiling prices.

Prices of most classes of meat animals were mixed with losses of some kinds ranging to 55 cents, lambs off most. About 30 car loads of steers reached the $18 ceiling and the majority sold $16 to $17.90.

Sheep receipts, at 12,000, were largest since May 28, but below normal for the season. The $14.50 top was down 25 cents. Old sheep sold steady, with top ewes at $6.50.

REVISE COTTON CROP FORECAST TO 11 YEAR LOW

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—An official estimate that this year's cotton crop is the smallest since 1934 raised the possibility today that growers may be permitted another year of uncontroled production.

The department of agriculture placed the crop at 9,779,000 bales, the smallest since part of the 1934 acreage was plowed under thru an agricultural adjustment administration program designed to reduce a price depressing surplus.

This estimate is 247,000 bales smaller than the total forecast a month ago. Production last year was 12,230,000 bales and the 10 year [1934-'43] average was 12,293,000 bales. Unusually poor weather, along with a small war time acreage, contributed to the drop.

Two Firms Agree to Pay on Price Violation Counts

Rudolph Kohner & Co., furniture wholesaler at 666 Lake Shore dr., charged with violating price regulations on furniture, lamps, kitchen stools, and hassocks, consented before Federal Judge LaBuy yesterday to a judgment for damages of $1,500. Globe Houseware company, 1106 S. Canal st., consented before Federal Judge Shaw to a judgment for damages of $1,100 for overcharges on stepladders, galvanized and enamelled ware, electric wire, and hardware.

4 FLAWS LISTED FOR CORRECTION IN BUILDING CODE

Industry Leaders Call on City Council to Act

BY LEWIS HUNT

Leaders in the building industry are hopeful that discussion of the Chicago building code will not end with listing its faults. They believe there is timely need for bringing the code up to date and that the flaws cited in this series of articles will show the city council where correction is required.

The comments of architects, builders and material dealers agree on these principal points:

1. The code, approved in 1939, has been permitted to remain inert, retaining its insistence on obsolescent materials and denying Chicagoans the advantages of newly developed materials and building methods.

2. Procedure set up for amending the code to admit new ideas is open to political influence.

3. By favoring some special interests, the code takes on a character that tends to foster the perpetuation of uneconomic working rules of the building trades union.

4. The code is so massive and complicated that it hampers architects and builders and is unintelligible to layman planning to build a home.

A. of C. Report Due Soon

The subject of code revision is expected to be emphasized soon when the Chicago Association of Commerce publishes its findings after a 10 months' study, including comparison with the regulations of other large cities. Whatever the recommendations in this report may be, it is presumed that the city hall cannot be inattentive to the ideas of the city's business and industrial interests.

Statements on code revision have been made by the presidents of two other groups whose prime interest is the city's development—the Chicago Real Estate board and the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders association. Floyd G. Dana, president of the Real Estate board, said:

"For several years the Chicago Real Estate board made a vigorous effort to secure a substantial revision of the building code. The revised code of 1939 is to a large degree the result of that effort.

For Modernizing Sections

"To make certain that future home building in Chicago will not suffer because of any inadequacy in our code, it is suggested that at least certain portions of the present code be studied with the view to their modernization. This is particularly true of the provisions regarding remodeling.

"The code must remain elastic in order that improvements in building materials and equipment may be utilized. We should have a code that cannot be held responsible if building is retarded in the months ahead."

Opinions of Officials Differ

Arthur E. Fossier, president of the Home Builders association, whose membership includes approximately 90 per cent of the builders in the Chicago area, said:

"Home builders have experienced great difficulty in separating from a compendium of complex regulations, applying to all types of construction, those provisions in the Chicago code that apply to single family dwellings.

"The usual procedure is to take the plans to the city building department for compliance opinion. The fact that such opinions are not always the same when expressed by different officials indicates the difficulty of interpreting some provisions.

"During the war the city council passed an ordinance patterned after and practically identical with the minimum requirements which the federal housing administration had compiled for war time use. It was simple and understandable and easy to comply with.

"Its provisions have opened the eyes of both builders and city officials to many things that were not fully understood before. With the exception of a few materials that had to be substituted and modified because of war time scarcity, the homes built to these standards might well serve as a pattern for the construction of single family dwellings in the future.

Better Metals One Need

"Add to war housing some better grades of metal and some standard equipment in place of 'victory' grades and we can produce a structure that undoubtedly will last out its 25 year mortgage tenure in prime condition.

"Another matter that should receive serious attention is the investigation of new materials as they appear on the market. The code at present provides for a committee on standards and tests, but grants it no authority. This committee should be galvanized into action, given proper authority, and made to function as an entity to keep Chicago abreast of the times.

"The building commissioner should be given authority to permit substitutions where materials comply with code specifications. The standards committee and the commissioner should be free from politics. The council should not have authority to override their decisions.

What Home Builders Need

"Many have expressed the opinion that the entire code should be rewritten and simplified. This is a matter that concerns those engaged in building large structures. The home builders find a number of code requirements that could be simplified, with a saving in costs, and some that should be added to insure better construction.

"The principal difficulties appear to be that the code is cumbersome, inert, and old fashioned, with no definite machinery for keeping it abreast of research and development of new materials and methods."

DELAYS BY BORRELLI ON LANDLORD'S FINE LEAD TO BAR INQUIRY

Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli's conduct in granting eight continuances on a motion to vacate a $100 fine imposed on a landlord for violation of the city building code was placed under investigation by the Chicago Bar association yesterday.

The association's committee on the Municipal court will conduct the inquiry.

Judge Borrelli's eighth continuance to the defendant landlord, Joseph Winkler, was granted last Thursday. The fine Winkler has put off paying was imposed last May 10 for building code infractions in a building at 541-543 N. Clark st.

Winkler won each continuance by pleading that he needed time to make repairs demanded by city building inspectors.

STRIKE IS OVER AT HIGH SCHOOLS IN RACE PROTEST

Nearly all pupils at Englewood and Calumet High schools who were absent last week because of racial troubles were back in school yesterday, the principals reported.

Joseph C. Thompson, Englewood principal, said absenteeism yesterday was below the average. Of 187 pupils absent, many were those who had not been on strike. Glenn C. Worst, Calumet principal, said all pupils had returned.

Acting Capt. Barth J. Moran said he had withdrawn a detail of police stationed at Calumet High school since last week, when a gathering of 1,700 pupils was dispersed by policemen and leaders of the anti-Negro demonstration were lectured at the district police station.

PARENTS UNITE AS GARY SCHOOL STRIKE SEQUEL

More than 300 parents of pupils who recently conducted a strike at Froebel High school in Gary formulated plans last night for a permanent organization at a meeting in Spanish hall, 11th av. and Van Buren st., Gary.

John Jadrnak, chairman of the parent group's temporary committee of 13, presided. The organization is planned, it was explained, so that the parents involved can act as a group in meetings with the school board.

Jadrnak said another meeting will be held soon at which the committee of 13 will submit nominations for a committee to select officers and to decide on a name for the organization.

FIRST SNOW IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 (AP)—The first snow of the autumn began falling shortly before midnight in Moscow last night and it was still snowing this morning.

MANY SEE FIRE SHOW ON ANNIVERSARY OF DISASTER HERE IN '71

Several thousand persons yesterday attended the annual fire prevention show on the first floor of the Commonwealth Edison building, Clark and Adams sts., in observance of fire prevention week, which began yesterday, on the 73d anniversary of the great Chicago fire.

Sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Chicago Board of Underwriters, and the Chicago fire department, the show provides lectures, movies, and actual demonstrations of preventing fire. In each of the four daily shows miniature buildings are set ablaze by short circuited wires, dust explosions, and spontaneous combustion to demonstrate the peril of carelessness.

Displays include modern fire fighting equipment and an alarm bell hooked up with the fire department's alarm system which gives the location of any fire occurring in the city during the show. The show will remain open from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day. It will close at noon Saturday.

Fine Girl for Gun Threat to GI Who Borrowed $100

Miss Harriet Adamowicz, 22, of 12355 Wallace st., who used a revolver to collect a $100 loan from Sgt. Theodore M. Limanowski, 25, of 11925 Prairie av., a former suitor, was fined $95 and $5 costs by Judge Justin F. McCarthy in Municipal court yesterday on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Limanowski had her arrested when she threatened him with a revolver last Friday in a tavern at 11015 Michigan av. He gave her the $100 in court yesterday.

PLAN TO SAW UP WAR DWELLINGS; SELL IN PIECES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 (AP)—The government tonight announced a surplus housing sales campaign intended to save the government more than $50,000,000 demolition cost and perhaps yield some actual return on the war housing investment.

A 20-acre "showcase" demonstration will be held here in December to demonstrate how the temporary housing can be sawed into panels, then reërected as barns, camp buildings, country school, tourist cabins, garages or roadside fruit stands.

275,000 Units to Be Sold

About 275,000 temporary dwelling units—most of them of the "multiple housing" type—will be sold to bidders, Klutznick said. A few in Wichita, Kas., will go on the block within a month, the rest in a gradually swelling volume over two years or more.

To prevent them from degenerating into slums, congress ruled they must be removed within two years after the war, unless special provision is made.

Klutznick said: "We could let contracts to tear them down but we discovered the cost would exceed the salvage value after contractors had figured their costs of labor, overhead, restoration of the site, and after the contractor gave himself a profit.

Can Be Sawed in Panels

"By tests we learned that this supposedly immovable housing could be moved by sawing it into panels."

For exhibit purposes, a replica of a typical temporary war community will be built by moving dwellings to a tract near Silver Spring, Md., two miles from Washington. Samples of the peace time uses—milk houses, boat houses, gas stations, and the like—will be erected.

RECORDS TWO QUAKES

New York, Oct 8 [AP]—Rev. Joseph Lynch, Fordham university seismologist, said today the university recorded two earthquake shocks at 8:29.47 a. m. and 8:34.54 a. m. [Chicago time] yesterday which probably originated about 2,100 miles southwest of here in Central America.

PEAK OF RUSH HOURS REPORTED CUT 50,500 BY STAGGER SYSTEM

Traffic surveys show that staggered hours of operation of stores, offices, schools, and other institutions have reduced by 50,500 the daily maximum rush period crowds in the central district, 27,500 in the morning and 23,000 in the afternoon, Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, said yesterday.

He said there are 13,500 fewer riders on mass transit vehicles, including suburban railroad trains, during the peak morning rush and 7,000 fewer in the maximum afternoon period. Street congestion also has been alleviated by a reduction in the number of automobiles at peak hours, he said.

All the benefits accrued despite a greater daily influx into the district, which is bounded by the river on the north and west and by Roosevelt rd. on the south, Sorenson, chairman of the traffic engineering subcommittee of Mayor Kelly's committee for staggered hours, said efforts will be made to retain and possibly expand staggered hours in the post-war era.

LAD WHO FIRED AT STEPDAD PUT ON SUPERVISION

James Wooten, 18, of 6902 Wentworth av., charged with an attempt to kill his stepfather Sept. 29, and the youth's mother, Mrs. Wilma Wall, 40, charged with being an accessory in the attempt, were placed under supervision of the Boys' court for six months yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude.

Mrs. Wall's husband, William, 40, was fined $200 and costs and placed on probation for six months after Dr. David B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, reported he was a chronic alcoholic. The fine was suspended.

Wall was charged with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Wall testified that he threatened to strike her with a milk bottle and her son fired one shot with a gun which she had given him. The shot missed.

RICKENBACKER TO BE NARRATOR OF AIR HISTORY

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker is to be the narrator for a weekly series of original radio plays dealing with aviation. The broadcasts will cover experiences of pioneers in aviation, starting with the early days of flight nearly 40 years ago and continuing to the present. The series, to an extent, will be autobiographical. The plays will be written by Col. Hans Christian Adamson, who until his recent retirement was chief of the air forces' project to collect and write the human interest history of aviation in the World War II.

Col. Adamson was with Capt. Rickenbacker when their plane was forced down in the Pacific and they endured great hardships before they were rescued. Capt. Rickenbacker will donate his fees for the show to the Army Air Forces Aid society to help disabled airmen and AAF widows and families. The network and the opening have not been announced.

A new frequency modulation [FM] circuit, announced yesterday by Stuart W. Seeley of the Radio Corporation of America laboratories, promises a reduction in costs and increased noise suppression. Seeley describes his invention as a "ratio detector." Its use, he said, eliminates the need for additional tubes and parts formerly considered necessary for noise suppression. This simplification, he added, should cut the costs of FM receivers to a point comparable to standard radio sets.

Bob Elson, former W-G-N sports announcer who is just out of the navy, will return to the air at 1:45 p. m. next Sunday with an interview show over WBBM. Elson will take his microphone to the La Salle st. station to talk with prominent persons as they board the 20th Century. The program also will be heard at 6:15 p. m. on Thursdays and at 5:45 p. m. on Saturdays.

LIQUOR THEFT SUSPECTS FREED

Matthew Rauen, 41, of 2648 E. 78th st., and Howard Larson, 42, of 7353 E. 79th st., arrested Sept. 3 as suspects in the burglary of 35 cases of liquor from a store at 3516 E. 79th st., were discharged yesterday by Judge Matthew J. Hartigan in Felony court. Alexander Rolnick, 6754 S. Oakley av., who saw the burglars and called police, testified he did not recognize Rauen or Larson.
